The United States yesterday issued an eleventh-hour warning to France not to court American reprisals by joining Germany in making war on Great Britain.

The statement by Secretary of State Cordell Hull contained no direct threats to the Vichy government, but in every paragraph were scarcely veiled hints that this country is prepared to reverse its hitherto friendly attitude if France becomes an instrument of "aggression and oppression."

"Scarcely believable" preliminary reports, urgently requested from Ambassador William D. Leahy, show that Vichy is adopting "the policy of collaboration with other powers for the purpose of aggression and oppression," Hull stated.

The conclusion was inescapable from Hull's statement that, if his worst fears prove true, the United States would feel free to seize French possessions in the Western Hemisphere, to withdraw diplomatic recognition from the Vichy regime, to tighten controls over frozen French funds and, of course, to ban all further shipments of food and supplies to France and her North African possessions.

Foreshadowing a major decision regarding France, Hull concluded his statement with this grim paragraph:

Nazi 'Peace' Gesture By Hitler Rumored

Vichy, June 6 (U.P.)—Rumors of an impending "peace gesture" by Adolf Hitler in an effort to forestall open United States intervention in the war flew thick and fast in Vichy tonight.

These reports said the Axis is prepared to restore at least quasi-independent status to invaded Holland, Belgium, Denmark and Norway providing Hitler and Mussolini are given a free hand in "organizing" Europe.

The rumors developed as the French-British crisis came nearer the point of explosion and France's relations with the United States likewise continued in an acute state.

A 'No' Would Be 'Regretted'

Japanese Call for Showdown With Dutch Indies on Supplies

Relations Are on 'Edge of Precipice,' Negotiator for War Materials Declares

By the Associated Press

Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, June 5.—Japan's year-long efforts to draw from the Indies great quantities of such war essentials as rubber, oil and tin tottered tonight on what the chief Japanese negotiator himself called "the edge of a precipice."

With friendly relations thus delicately poised, the Dutch have promised to reply formally to the Japanese demands Friday. Reliable sources indicated that the Dutch would offer fractional concessions that the Japanese would not accept.

The extent of the Japanese demands has not been disclosed, and the Dutch said that their answer also was not likely to be published.

Reliable sources said, however, that the Dutch would offer to meet Japanese requirements only on the basis of average annual Japanese imports for the past five years and to an extent designed to prevent any of the economic sinews of war being transshipped to Germany.

Further, the Dutch would reserve the right to cut quotas still further if British or United States war industries required it.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, former foreign minister of Japan, who has been in charge of the prolonged negotiations here since January, said he had been forbidden to accept less than the amounts Japan has asked.

"We have reached the edge of a precipice; now we either fall over or retain our foothold," he was quoted by Aneta, the Netherlands Indies news agency. "The next 24 hours are decisive.

"If the Netherlands Indies replies irrevocably 'no' about the main questions of the negotiations, then the negotiations will be ended. If the Netherlands Indies reply is unfavorable, this would have the most unfavorable reaction on public opinion in Japan and would be very much regretted by the Japanese government."

Billions for Defense

By John G. Norris

The House yesterday received a record $10,000,000,000 Army supply bill, carrying funds for 12,856 new airplanes, and learned that while America will turn out 3,300 planes monthly by next summer, German production may go well beyond this figure.

Testimony given to the House Appropriations Committee behind closed doors and made public yesterday disclosed that Army chiefs estimate the present Reich plane production at "conservatively" 3,000 a month—compared with our present 1,300 to 1,400.

Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson, who gave the estimate of present German capacity, also revealed that the Nazis have embarked on a program to utilize plane factories in conquered countries which should "substantially" add to their output within 12 to 18 months—and provide a potential capacity of 4,000 to 6,000 planes a month.

OPM Director William Knudsen, however, indicated before the same group that the additional planes asked in the bill should boost American production to new heights.

40,000 Planes for Army

"No one on God's earth has ever attempted to make that many airplanes a month but the United States," he declared.

His testimony as to what the projected monthly output would be, however, was not made public, although other officials disclosed during the hearings that the Nation's production capacity would reach a rate of 40,000 a year after July, 1942.

The committee also disclosed that the additional 12,856 planes asked would give the Army a total of 40,000, not including 10,000 craft being built for the Navy.

Presenting the bill, largest in peacetime and second largest in history, the Appropriations Committee warned that the $9,826,509,492 cash and $183,145,695 contractual authority would not last through the 1942 fiscal year. Together with funds pending for the Navy, the outlay will run defense appropriations for 1941 and 1942 to $30,115,051,142.

A total of $648,158,934 was added to the budget estimates by the committee, principally to speed up payments on new munitions plants which are ahead of schedule and because of rising costs.

The funds will provide for an Army of 1,663,200 maximum strength next year, including 119,292 officers

Murray Demands C.I.O. Union End Lumber Strike on Coast; Mediation Board Backs Miners

On the Labor Front

PHILIP MURRAY, C. I. O. PRESIDENT, called on 12,000 West Coast lumber workers to accept a Mediation Board recommendation that they return to work, and denounced an attack on the board by O. M. Orton, the strikers' president. The board, at the same time upheld its panel's recommendations in the case. Page 1.

THE DEFENSE MEDIATION BOARD made public its recommendations for a $7 basic wage in the soft-coal industry, which would end the 40-cent wage differential in favor of Southern mines. Page 1.

A WALKOUT OF C. I. O. WORKERS at the North American Aviation Corporation plant was staged in defiance of the Mediation Board efforts to settle their dispute. The board suspended negotiations while company and union representatives sought a settlement at the strike scene. Page 6.

Union Victory

Seeking to prevent a new strike and to terminate the three-month soft coal labor dispute, the Defense Mediation Board last night made public recommendations calling for a basic $7-a-day wage for all miners, Northern and Southern, and constituting, in effect, a hands-down victory for C. I. O. union demands.

The board recommended the elimination of the 40-cents-a-day wage differential, for three months the stumbling block to acceptance by Southern operators, and the prime cause of the Nation-wide soft coal stoppage through the month of April.

The recommendations, covering 26 mimeographed pages, were announced at a press conference by Board Vice Chairman William H. Davis. He said that all parties, the Southerners, the Northern operators and the United Mine Workers, were given until 6 p. m., June 9, to make their replies. He refused, however, to give any indication of whether the terms were favorably received when they were discussed earlier in the day at closed meetings with the disputants.

Murray Resentful

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

C. I. O. President Philip Murray yesterday went over the heads of leaders of one of his organization's own unions and called on 20,000 West Coast loggers to return to work and end their three-week strike.

In a vehement blast against O. M. Orton, president of the International Woodworkers of America, who Wednesday refused to recommend the Defense Mediation Board's peace proposals and stomped out of board conferences with a fierce denunciation of its efforts, Murray wrote the officers and members of the striking local that their best interests would be served by accepting the board recommendations.

Murray's letter, made public late last night, was the first break in day-long conferences of the entire board, who debated future action after Orton's flat rejection of their first "test case" attempt to make binding public recommendations under the full emergency declaration of President Roosevelt.

Board Indorses Panel

Shortly after Murray's statement was issued, 19—all those present in Washington—of the 21 board members issued a declaration reviewing and indorsing, as a body, the back-to-work settlement proposals issued two weeks ago by the panel considering the case.

The statement said that "the emergency declared by the President demands that prompt action be taken." It gave no indication, however, of what form the action would take. It was believed, however, that if Murray's plea failed of success, the board would be obliged to demand drastic steps from President Roosevelt himself.

Murray's letter, commenting on Orton's statement Wednesday in which he accused the board of indulging in an "all-out labor-busting and strike-breaking device" and attempting to "bulldoze" workers, declared Orton had "indulged in a campaign of misrepresentation, slander and abuse contrary to all of the well defined policies of the C. I. O."

Eklund Home Night of Sniper Slaying, His Mother Testifies

Suspect Screams Denial of Charges Made by Policeman

Dry-eyed but tense, the mother of John Eugene Eklund swore yesterday that her son was at home, practicing on a stenotype machine, two hours before the sniper slaying on October 15 of Hylan McClaine, colored, 17, for whose death Ecklund is on trial for his life in District Court.

The mother, Mrs. Sadie Eklund, Navy Department clerk, took the stand to testify that she and her son were together the week preceding the murder, enjoying her vacation which ended with a visit to the New York World's Fair the Saturday before the murder, which occurred on Monday.

On the night of the murder, she said, Eklund was stenotyping when she went to bed at 11 p. m., two hours before McClaine was killed, and that he was at home when she got up early to go to work.

She thus substantiated her son's contention that he did not go out that night and was nowhere near the wooden bridge in Rock Creek Parkway, where the killer waited for his victim.

Property Draft Limit Offered By Connally

Move Gains in Both Houses to Modify Stimson-Backed Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Strong moves to modify the draft property bill received leadership support in Senate and House yesterday as Secretary of War Stimson urged passage of the measure without "frivolous objections" in Congress.

A substitute, limiting the wide grant of authority to specific powers to take over defense plants tied up by labor troubles or other causes, was sponsored in the Senate by Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas.

A similar extension of the President's Selective Service Act powers carried the indorsement of Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, acting Administration leader of the Senate.

A fresh outburst of "dictatorship" charges was aimed at the broader property requisition measure in the House as the Senate Military Affairs Committee ordered hearings on the bill, beginning June 16. Chairman Reynolds said the Connally substitute will be considered at the same time "as it apparently accomplishes the same result."

Sabath Says It Has No Chance

Byrnes, who has long privately advocated extension of Selective Service Act powers to take over plants, said he was "confident language can be drawn that will calm any fears" concerning its purpose. Like the President, Byrnes said he had not read the draft property measure now under fire.

House Rules Committee Chairman Adoph Sabath, a stalwart Administration supporter, declared the

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

President Roosevelt's request for swift approval of the St. Lawrence power and navigation project yesterday appeared to be heading into one of the major legislative battles of the year.

In a special message to Congress the President yesterday warned that there is no assurance "the country's danger will be over" before 1945, the date by which the $266,000,000 development can be completed.

Opponents of the waterway and hydroelectric power project, advocated by the Administration as an imperative defense measure, have argued that it could not be finished in time to affect the outcome of the war.

Mr. Roosevelt told Congress the project can be completed in four year and, "under emergency pres-

House Passes Bill to Pipe Oil To East Coast

About Power

For Defense Wheels

Following a warning by Secretary of Interior Ickes that within the next month the Atlantic Coast might face a shortage in oil which would mean restrictions on pleasure car driving at all times, as well as limitations on oil for heating of homes, the House yesterday passed legislation to permit construction of pipe lines to bring the much needed supplies to the Eastern Seaboard.

Ickes recommended the pipe line construction as the speediest way of alleviating the transportation problem responsible for the shortage.

The situation, which is the result of transfer of 50 tankers to British use, would be met at first, the Secretary indicated, by voluntary methods, in which all users would cooperate to save fuel.

The measure passed by the House, permitting the Government to construct and operate the lines whenever the President finds such action "desirable in the interests of national defense," was made necessary

Houston 'Pleased' At Appointment To D. C. Committee

Senator Andrew Jackson Houston, 86-year-old son of the man who helped give Texas to the Union, yesterday was given to the District of Columbia.

He was named to the Senate District Committee, a post most Senators are careful to avoid, but when informed of his assignment he said he was "pleased" and that he would put forth his "best efforts for the District."

Senator Houston holds the seat of the late Morris Sheppard by appointment of Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel.

In a statement issued from his apartment in the Carroll Arms Hotel, Senator Houston said he thought the Federal Government "should bear its just share of expenses of the District on whatever basis is thought to be just and proper."

—But Not a Drop to Drink

Dairymen Willing to Provide 5-Cent Milk for D. C. Needy

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

In contrast with their front office spokesman, who "can't be bothered" with the problem of Washington's milk-starved needy, dairy farmers demonstrated yesterday they have no intention of impeding that program.

It happened at a novel "press conference," held in Rockville, Md., seat of Montgomery County. Dairying is the second biggest industry in that nearby area, heart of the District milkshed.

Bruce B. Derrick, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, has refused to state the membership's position in The Post's campaign to bring low-cost surplus milk to a greater number of deserving Washington needy.

So The Post went directly to the farmers. There were eight in the conference, some big producers and some small. All are members of the association.

What they said may be fairly summed up about as follows:

The dairy farmers are sympathetic with the Capital's surplus milk relief program. They want to have their product drunk by impoverished people who can't afford to buy it at the regular market price of 11 to 14 cents a quart.

If the Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the local welfare board, wishes to supply these people at a nickel a quart, well and good. But let them keep chiselers out. No below-cost milk for families that squander their money.

In any expansion of this relief program, either by selling milk to school children at a cent a glass

Schulte Ready to Offer Bill to Fix Price

Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, said yesterday he plans to introduce a bill fixing the top retail price on milk in Washington at 12 cents a quart.

It is now 14. The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association is asking the Department of Agriculture to increase the schedules so that it would go up to 15 cents a quart, home-delivered.

Money Doesn't Count, Quest For Typical Father Reveals

Doctors, barbers, men who are too ill to work and mind the house while their wives are out breadwinning, jobless unfortunates—all these and more are grist for the mill in The Post's quest of Washington's typical father.

Letters which are being received by the Father's Day editor demonstrate it isn't money that counts, but whether dad is "regular." And the Capital can boast a good many who are, if the nominations in this contest are any gauge.

"My daddy is the best dad in all the world," writes 9-year-old Martha B. in a penciled scrawl. "He does things that are always good and he don't drink no whisky and he comes home from his work at night and stays with mother and I and he works and strives and provides for mother and I."

Her candidate, Martha explains, is a barber "and he don't make lots of money."

From a higher income neighborhood comes a letter entering a Public Health Service doctor in the Father's Day competition. His sponsors are the two sons and the wife.

They believe he deserves the crown as the model father "because, even though he is busy, he always has time to listen to our little problems, and our big noise; because he greets us with a smile of love and a word of encouragement; because we love him and think he's the best dad in all the world."

Keech Goes Back to Charles I, Decides New Airport Is in D. C.

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

The new Washington National Airport, located across the Potomac River on the Virginia shore, is a part of the District of Columbia, according to an opinion submitted to the District Commissioners by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Keech's opinion represents a momentous, though perhaps not final, legal chapter in a controversy that traces back to 1632, when King Charles I granted to Lord Baltimore the province of Maryland, out of which the District was carved.

If his opinion prevails, it means that air travelers and the thousands who are expected to flock to the airport as spectators will be able to buy a cocktail or highball, something that would be illegal under Virginia law. It means that the District of Columbia will collect the large gasoline tax at the airport, together with certain license fees. And it also means that a wrongdoer at the airport will land in a District police station, even though he will have to be brought over the Mount Vernon Boulevard and across Virginia territory to get here.

It was questions over matters like these that led to Corporation Counsel Keech's opinion. With the $15,000,000 airport scheduled to open soon, lawyers for the big air lines wanted to know about license fees. Airport Manager John Groves wanted to know whether his special policemen were to be deputized by the police chief of Washington or

Weatherman Promises Capital Fair Skies Today

Mostly clear weather, with temperatures ranging in the seventies was predicted for Washington today after yesterday's rain.

A minimum of 56 degrees was predicted before daylight. The Weather Bureau said that almost 2 inches of rain had fallen here since last Friday, with the drought declared broken in the northeastern and Middle Atlantic States, including Maryland and Virginia. The rainfall yesterday measured .63 inches, while the total for a week was 1.73 inches.

Dry weather persisted in much of the deep South, particularly in Georgia. Gov. J. M. Broughton said a 3-inch rain that ended a 30-day drought in North Carolina was worth a million dollars a county.

Arthur James, Rail Magnate, Is Dead at 74

By the Associated Press

New York, June 4.—Arthur Curtiss James, 74, one of the 12 richest men in America, died today of pneumonia in Harkness Pavilion, 30 days after his wife's death.

James, who inherited copper, silver and gold mines and railroad securities rrom his grandfather and father, used his wealth to purchase more railroad stock until he was reputed to hold more railroad securities than any other man in the country.

His investments at one time were estimated at $350,000,000 in approximately 40,000 miles of railroad.

While the largest individual holder of Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad shares, James purchased control of the Western Pacific in 1926 which, with the Missouri Pacific, jointly controlled the Denver & Rio Grande.

He was an ardent yachtsman and twice circled the globe in his squared-rigged Aloha. He was commodore of the New York Yacht Club in 1909 and 1910.

While he and his wife were active socially, entertaining in their home on Park Avenue and at their Newport, R. I., estate, James was not prominent in public life.

Known as a stanch Republican, he announced his support of Alfred E. Smith for President in 1938, however, and was chairman of the Independent committee for election of Franklin D. Roosevelt as Governor of New York the same year.

A rugged, vigorous man, 6 feet tall, James was known for his love of flowers. Bedrooms in his Park Avenue house opened on a central hothouse filled with orchids.

His grandfather was Daniel James, who founded the Phelps-Dodge Corporation, great mining concern, in 1828, and it was with that concern that he became associated upon his graduation from Amherst College in 1889. His father was D. Willis James who was associated with James J. Hill in rail development of the Northwest.

Concerned Over Dakar

By George Bookman

The United States yesterday issued an eleventh-hour warning to France not to court American reprisals by joining Germany in making war on Great Britain.

The statement by Secretary of State Cordell Hull contained no direct threats to the Vichy government, but in every paragraph were scarcely veiled hints that this country is prepared to reverse its hitherto friendly attitude if France becomes an instrument of "aggression and oppression."

"Scarcely believable" preliminary reports, urgently requested from Ambassador William D. Leahy, show that Vichy is adopting "the policy of collaboration with other powers for the purpose of aggression and oppression," Hull stated.

The conclusion was inescapable from Hull's statement that, if his worst fears prove true, the United States would feel free to seize French possessions in the Western Hemisphere, to withdraw diplomatic recognition from the Vichy regime, to tighten controls over frozen French funds and, of course, to ban all further shipments of food and supplies to France and her North African possessions.

Foreshadowing a major decision regarding France, Hull concluded his statement with this grim paragraph:

"We are therefore undertaking as

Japanese Call for Showdown With Dutch Indies on Supplies

By the Associated Press

Batavia, Netherlands East Indies, June 5.—Japan's year-long efforts to draw from the Indies great quantities of such war essentials as rubber, oil and tin tottered tonight on what the chief Japanese negotiator himself called "the edge of a precipice."

With friendly relations thus delicately poised, the Dutch have promised to reply formally to the Japanese demands Friday. Reliable sources indicated that the Dutch would offer fractional concessions that the Japanese would not accept.

The extent of the Japanese demands has not been disclosed, and the Dutch said that their answer also was not likely to be published.

Reliable sources said, however, that the Dutch would offer to meet Japanese requirements only on the basis of average annual Japanese imports for the past five years and to an extent designed to prevent any of the economic sinews of war being transhipped to Germany.

Further, the Dutch would reserve the right to cut quotas still further if British or United States war industries required it.

Kenkichi Yoshizawa, former foreign minister of Japan, who has been in charge of the prolonged negotiations here since January, said he had been forbidden to accept less than the amounts Japan has asked.

"We have reached the edge of a precipice; now we either fall over or retain our foothold," he was quoted by Aneta, the Netherlands Indies news agency. "The next 24 hours are decisive.

"If the Netherlands Indies replies irrevocably 'no' about the main questions of the negotiations, then the negotiations will be ended. If the Netherlands Indies reply is unfavorable, this would have the most unfavorable reaction on public opinion in Japan and would be very much regretted by the Japanese government."

British Reported Poised to Invade Country 'Soon'

Istanbul (Friday), June 6.—Relays of German transport planes loaded with men and materials early today were reported streaming across the Mediterranean into Syria, where the Nazi airforce was said to be taking possession of key French airdromes.

The German transports were said by reliable diplomatic informants to be maintaining "constant shuttle service" between Rhodes in the Italian Dodecanese Islands and the Syrian coast, about 300 miles eas

Weatherman Promises Capital Fair Skies Today

Mostly clear weather, with temperatures ranging in the seventies was predicted for Washington today after yesterday's rain.

A minimum of 58 degrees was predicted before daylight. The Weather Bureau said that almost 2 inches of rain had fallen here since last Friday, with the drought declared broken in the northeastern and Middle Atlantic States, including Maryland and Virginia. The rainfall yesterday measured .63 inches, while the total for a week was 1.73 inches.

Dry weather persisted in much of the deep South, particularly in Georgia. Gov. J. M. Broughton said a 3-inch rain that ended a 30-day drought in North Carolina was worth a million dollars a county.

Property Draft Limit Offered By Connally

Move Gains in Both Houses to Modify Stimson-Backed Bill

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Strong moves to modify the draft property bill received leadership support in Senate and House yesterday as Secretary of War Stimson urged passage of the measure without "frivolous objections" in Congress.

A substitute, limiting the widest grant of authority to specific powers to take over defense plants tied up by labor troubles or other causes, was sponsored in the Senate by Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas.

A similar extension of the President's Selective Service Act powers carried the indorsement of Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, acting Administration leader of the Senate.

A fresh outburst of "dictatorship" charges was aimed at the broader property requisition measure in the House as the Senate Military Affairs Committee ordered hearings on the bill, bginning June 16. Chairman Reynolds said the Connally substitute will be considered at the same time "as it apparently accomplishes the same result."

Sabath Says It Has No Chance

Byrnes, who has long privately advocated extension of Selective Service Act powers to take over plants, said he was "confident language can be drawn that will calm any fears" concerning its purpose. Like the President, Byrnes said he had not read the draft property measure now under fire.

House Rules Committee Chairman Adoph Sabath, a stalwart Administration supporter, declared the

Keech Goes Back to Charles I, Decides New Airport Is in D. C.

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Staff Writer

The new Washington National Airport, located across the Potomac River on the Virginia shore, is a part of the District of Columbia, according to an opinion submitted to the District Commissioners by Corporation Counsel Richmond B. Keech.

Keech's opinion represents a momentous, though perhaps not final, legal chapter in a controversy that traces back to 1632, when King Charles I granted to Lord Baltimore the province of Maryland, out of which the District was carved.

If his opinion prevails, it means that air travelers and the thousands who are expected to flock to the airport as spectators will be able to buy a cocktail or highball, something that would be illegal under Virginia law. It means that the District of Columbia will collect the large gasoline tax at the airport, together with certain license fees. And it also means that a wrongdoer at the airport will land in a District police station, even though he will have to be brought over the Mount Vernon Boulevard and across Virginia territory to get here.

It was questions over matters like these that led to Corporation Counsel Keech's opinion. With the $15,000,000 airport scheduled to open soon, lawyers for the big air lines wanted to know about license fees. Airport Manager John Groves wanted to know whether his special policemen were to be deputized by the police chief of Washington or

The House yesterday received a record $10,000,000,000 Army supply bill, carrying funds for 12,856 new airplanes, and learned that while America will turn out 3,300 planes monthly by next summer, German production may go well beyond this figure.

Testimony given to the House Appropriations Committee behind closed doors and made public yesterday disclosed that Army chiefs estimate the present Reich plane production at "conservatively" 3,000 a month—compared with our present 1,300 to 1,400.

Undersecretary of War Robert Patterson, who gave the estimate of present German capacity, also revealed that the Nazis have embarked on a program to utilize plane factories in conquered countries which should "substantially" add to their output within 12 to 18 months—and provide a potential capacity of 4,000 to 6,000 planes a month.

OPM Director William Knudsen, however, indicated before the same group that the additional planes asked in the bill should boost American production to new heights.

40,000 Planes for Army

"No one on God's earth has ever attempted to make that many airplanes a month but the United States," he declared.

His testimony as to what the projected monthly output would be, however, was not made public, although other officials disclosed during the hearings that the Nation's production capacity would reach a rate of 40,000 a year after July, 1942.

The committee also disclosed that the additional 12,856 planes asked would give the Army a total of 40,000, not including 10,000 craft being built for the Navy.

Presenting the bill, largest in peacetime and second largest in history, the Appropriations Committee warned that the $9,826,509,492 cash and $183,145,695 contractual authority would not last through the 1942 fiscal year. Together with funds pending for the Navy, the outlay will run defense appropriations for 1941 and 1942 to $30,115,051,142.

A total of $648,158,934 was added to the budget estimates by the committee, principally to speed up payments on new munitions plants which are ahead of schedule and because of rising costs.

The funds will provide for an Army of 1,683,200 maximum strength next year, including 119,292 officers

Suspect Screams Denial of Charges Made by Policeman

Dry-eyed but tense, the mother of John Eugene Eklund swore yesterday that her son was at home, practicing on a stenotype machine, two hours before the sniper slaying on October 15 of Hylan McClaine, colored, 17, for whose death Ecklund is on trial for his life in District Court.

The mother, Mrs. Sadie Eklund, Navy Department clerk, took the stand to testify that she and her son were together the week preceding the murder, enjoying her vacation which ended with a visit to the New York World's Fair the Saturday before the murder, which occurred on Monday.

On the night of the murder, she said, Eklund was stenotyping when she went to bed at 11 p. m., two hours before McClaine was killed, and that he was at home when she got up early to go to work.

She thus substantiated her son's contention that he did not go out that night and was nowhere near the wooden bridge in Rock Creek Parkway, where the killer waited for his victim.

Roosevelt's Waterway Bill Faces Battle

President Requests Swift Approval of St. Lawrence Project

President Roosevelt's request for swift approval of the St. Lawrence power and navigation project yesterday appeared to be heading into one of the major legislative battles of the year.

In a special message to Congress the President yesterday warned that there is no assurance "the country's danger will be over" before 1945, the date by which the $286,000,000 development can be completed.

Opponents of the waterway and hydroelectric power project, advocated by the Administration as an imperative defense measure, have argued that it could not be finished in time to affect the outcome of the war.

Mr. Roosevelt told Congress the project can be completed in four year and, "under emergency pres-

House Passes Bill to Pipe Oil To East Coast

About Power

OPM CHIEF KNUDSEN and Secretary Ickes dispute assertions by C. W. Kellogg, OPM power expert, that there is ample electric power generating capacity. Page 7.

Following a warning by Secretary of Interior Ickes that within the next month the Atlantic Coast might face a shortage in oil which would mean restrictions on pleasure car driving at all times, as well as limitations on oil for heating of homes, the House yesterday passed legislation to permit construction of pipe lines to bring the much needed supplies to the Eastern Seaboard.

Ickes recommended the pipe line construction as the speediest way of alleviating the transportation problem responsible for the shortage.

The situation, which is the result of transfer of 50 tankers to British use, would be met at first, the Secretary indicated, by voluntary methods, in which all users would cooperate to save fuel.

The measure passed by the House, permitting the Government to construct and operate the lines whenever the President finds such action "desirable in the interests of national defense," was made necessary

Woodworkers' Chief Charged With 'Lying Defamation;' Mediators Urge Basic Daily Wage Of $7 for Both the North and South

On the Labor Front

PHILIP MURRAY, C. I. O. PRESIDENT, called on 12,000 West Coast lumber workers to accept a Mediation Board recommendation that they return to work, and denounced an attack on the board by O. M. Orton, the strikers' president. The board, at the same time upheld its panel's recommendations in the case. Page 1.

Union Victory

Seeking to prevent a new strike and to terminate the three-month soft coal labor dispute, the Defense Mediation Board last night made public recommendations calling for a basic $7-a-day wage for all miners, Northern and Southern, and constituting, in effect, a hands-down victory for C. I. O. union demands.

The board recommended the elimination of the 40-cents-a-day wage differential, for three months the stumbling block to acceptance by Southern operators, and the prime cause of the Nation-wide soft coal stoppage through the month of April.

The recommendations, covering 26 mimeographed pages, were announced at a press conference by Board Vice Chairman William H. Davis. He said that all parties, the Southerners, the Northern operators and the United Mine Workers, were given until 6 p. m., June 9, to make their replies. He refused, however, to give any indication of whether the terms were favorably received when they were discussed earlier in the day at closed meetings with the disputants.

Murray Resentful

By Alfred Friendly
Post Staff Writer

C. I. O. President Philip Murray yesterday went over the heads of leaders of one of his organization's own unions and called on 20,000 West Coast loggers to return to work and end their three-week strike.

In a vehement blast against O. M. Orton, president of the International Woodworkers of America, who Wednesday refused to recommend the Defense Mediation Board's peace proposals and stomped out of board conferences with a fierce denunciation of its efforts, Murray wrote the officers and members of the striking local that their best interests would be served by accepting the board recommendations.

Murray's letter, made public late last night, was the first break in day-long conferences of the entire board, who debated future action after Orton's flat rejection of their first "test case" attempt to make binding public recommendations under the full emergency declaration of President Roosevelt.

Board Indorses Panel

Shortly after Murray's statement was issued, 19—all those present in Washington—of the 21 board members issued a declaration reviewing and indorsing, as a body, the back-to-work settlement proposals issued two weeks ago by the panel considering the case.

The statement said that "the emergency declared by the President demands that prompt action be taken." It gave no indication, however, of what form the action would take. It was believed, however, that if Murray's plea failed of success, the board would be obliged to demand drastic steps from President Roosevelt himself.

Murray's letter, commenting on Orton's statement Wednesday in which he accused the board of indulging in an "all-out labor-busting and strike-breaking device" and attempting to "bulldoze" workers, declared Orton had "indulged in a campaign of misrepresentation, slander and abuse contrary to all of the well defined policies of the C. I. O."

Houston 'Pleased' At Appointment To D. C. Committee

Senator Andrew Jackson Houston, 86-year-old son of the man who helped give Texas to the Union, yesterday was given to the District of Columbia.

He was named to the Senate District Committee, a post most Senators are careful to avoid, but when informed of his assignment he said he was "pleased" and that he would put forth his "best efforts for the District."

Senator Houston holds the seat of the late Morris Sheppard by appointment of Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel.

In a statement issued from his apartment in the Carroll Arms Hotel, Senator Houston said he thought the Federal Government "should bear its just share of expenses of the District on whatever basis is thought to be just and proper."

Dairymen Willing to Provide 5-Cent Milk for D. C. Needy

By Gerald G. Gross
Post Staff Writer

In contrast with their front office spokesman, who "can't be bothered" with the problem of Washington's milk-starved needy, dairy farmers demonstrated yesterday they have no intention of impeding that program.

It happened at a novel "press conference," held in Rockville, Md., seat of Montgomery County. Dairying is the second biggest industry in that nearby area, heart of the District milkshed.

Bruce B. Derrick, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association, has refused to state the membership's position in The Post's campaign to bring low-cost surplus milk to a greater number of deserving Washington needy.

So The Post went directly to the farmers. There were eight in the conference, some big producers and some small. All are members of the association.

What they said may be fairly summed up about as follows:

The dairy farmers are sympathetic with the Capital's surplus milk relief program. They want to have their product drunk by impoverished people who can't afford to buy it at the regular market price of 11 to 14 cents a quart.

If the Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the local welfare board, wishes to supply these people at a nickel a quart, well and good. But let them keep chiselers out. No below-cost milk for families that squander their money.

In any expansion of this relief program, either by selling milk to school children at a cent a glass

Schulte Ready to Offer Bill to Fix Price

Representative William T. Schulte (Democrat), of Indiana, said yesterday he plans to introduce a bill fixing the top retail price on milk in Washington at 12 cents a quart.

It is now 14. The Maryland-Virginia Milk Producers Association is asking the Department of Agriculture to increase the schedules so that it would go up to 15 cents a quart, home-delivered.

Money Doesn't Count, Quest For Typical Father Reveals

Doctors, barbers, men who are too ill to work and mind the house while their wives are out breadwinning, jobless unfortunates—all these and more are grist for the mill in The Post's quest of Washington's typical father.

Letters which are being received by the Father's Day editor demonstrate it isn't money that counts, but whether dad is "regular." And the Capital can boast a good many who are, if the nominations in this contest are any gauge.

"My daddy is the best dad in all the world," writes 9-year-old Martha B. in a penciled scrawl. "He does things that are always good and he don't drink no whisky and he comes home from his work at night and stays with mother and I and he works and strives and provides for mother and I."

Her candidate, Martha explains, is a barber "and he don't make lots of money."

From a higher income neighborhood comes a letter entering a Public Health Service doctor in the Father's Day competition. His sponsors are the two sons and the wife.

They believe he deserves the crown as the model father "because, even though he is busy, he always has time to listen to our little problems, and our big noise; because he greets us with a smile of love and a word of encouragement; because we love him and think he's the best dad in all the world."

Vichy Reports Hitler-Stalin Deal on Wheat

By the Associated Press

Vichy, June 5.—Reports received in diplomatic circles tonight said Adolf Hitler and Josef Stalin at a secret meeting had agreed on a far-reaching European-African collaboration scheme in which the Russian Ukraine would undertake to step up wheat production to see that all Europe has bread.

These reports said only that the German and Russian leaders had agreed at an unstated time and place on the basic arrangement, and that the Ukraine would make up any deficit in the wheat production of France, French North Africa and Hungary.

(Last January 10 Russia and Germany announced an "economic plan" which the official German news agency said included the greatest wheat deal in history. Amounts were not specified, but Russia set out immediately to try to buy large wheat supplies in Argentina and elsewhere, even including Canada.

(Recently German sources said the Russian trade was working out even better than expected, so any forceful action in the direction of Russia was on the shelf.

(Only last May 25, Pravda, official Communist Party organ, seized upon an alleged Finnish report to deny that Germany was going to lease the Ukraine.)

In the meantime, France appears to be turning more and more toward the colonial angles of the German Eurafrican collaboration idea.

Marshal Petain recently conferred with Gen. Weygand, his proconsul for Africa, and reports from Tunisia said Admiral Jean Esteva, governor of that colony, was en route here. Pierre Boisson, governor of French West Africa, arrived last night, and it was believed that Admiral Jean Marie Abrial, governor of Algeria, also would come hither.

Close Liaison With Africa

Well-informed French quarters here contemplated the idea that France now was directed toward a policy which would be able to guarantee her against being placed in "the position which her defeat a year ago might have cost her."

These circles noted that "organization of Europe looks forward to close liaison with Africa, where France is in an exceptional situation."

In German-occupied Paris, the newspaper Noveaux Temps said:

"France no longer has any reason to occupy herself about the strictly continental aspect of the situation, which is taken care of by German victory. But as the most interested party she can occupy herself with the colonial aspect of European defense."

Invasion of Russia Reported Set for Mid-June

Ankara, June 5 (AP).—Turkish and foreign quarters exchanged reports tonight saying Germany is putting heavy pressure on Russia for access to the wheat granaries of the Ukraine, even going to the extent of planning a joint German-Rumanian invasion by mid-June.

Authoritative Turkish circles said they were informed 155 German and Rumanian divisions—from 1,250,000 to 2,325,000 men—are massed in Poland and Rumania, ready for a drive against Russia which would have for its objective the procurement of food, oil and minerals for a long war against England.

Contrary to Previous Reports

One foreign diplomat claimed to have received information that the Rumanian legation here had been informed by its government to expect the opening of hostilities by mid-June.

These reports were contrary to information received from reliable quarters in Berlin only a few days ago when Reich authorities were reported so pleased with a new agreement with Russia by which Germany is to receive even larger quantities of foodstuffs than she had requested that they had shelved all thoughts they may have entertained of an invasion.

(Recent Vichy reports said Hitler was almost under compulsion to win the Ukraine's food resources, by peaceful means or otherwise, before he moves on Gibraltar, as otherwise he would be without stores to feed the hungry Spanish population.)

Rumania Calls Up Troops

Turkish sources said they had learned that Germany has about 100 divisions in Poland and another 30 divisions in Rumania while Rumania has mobilized another 25 divisions sent home only six weeks ago.

(Authoritative sources in Bucharest admitted some soldiers are being recalled, Berlin dispatches said, but declared the action was normal at this time of the year when troops are called up for a few weeks' training. Tales that Rumania is mobilizing for speedy intervention in the war were declared "coffee house" gossip.)

Turkish sources said they had learned Russia is aware of the situation, and is removing civilians from Bessarabia, the Rumanian province the Red army occupied nearly a year ago.

Rumanian Premier Antonescu has voiced Rumanian determination to recover the province ever since his country was occupied by German troops.

Hull Warns France Not to Make War on Britain

speedily as possible to assemble every material fact and circumstance calculated to shed light on this alleged course of the French government."

As recently as May 15 President Roosevelt rebuked France for lending itself to a "voluntary alliance" with Germany. At the same time he took the precaution of ordering Coast Guardsmen aboard 14 French merchant ships in United States harbors.

This was followed by rejection of France's protests against the ship seizure and by a warning from Hull on May 20 that France must prove its government is not Nazi-controlled before it can enjoy the confidence of other nations.

Hull's statement, based on Leahy's preliminary reports from Vichy, was evidence that United States relations with France have worsened in the last fortnight.

Arrival of German "tourists" in French-mandated Syria, and reports that Germany is already using the French West African base at Dakar, have caused State Department concern.

In warning the French government, Hull painstakingly reviewed the "concrete evidence of our sympathetic friendship" that the United States has extended to France in "her present difficult situation."

The Secretary of State called upon France once again not to exceed the terms of the French-German armistice. This admonition has been issued by Hull repeatedly, both in public statements and in private conversations with French Ambassador Gaston Henry-Haye.

He reminded Vichy of this country's consistent policy of friendship and helpfulness, enumerating many instances.

"Frankly," Hull said, "we are very much concerned about the situation which seems to be growing up" in Vichy.

The public statement was issued as a crisis between France and Great Britain appeared to be rapidly approaching.

There was nothing to indicate that the United States Government planned action soon to seize any French possessions in this hemisphere.

Official quarters said that the United States still is giving France the benefit of the doubt, that France has not yet been written off as a Nazi ally.

Every preparation has been made, however, for a sudden reversal of attitude toward France. Even military measures that might be necessary to safeguard French possessions in the Western Hemisphere have been planned, it has been reported.

Officials with intimate knowledge of the situation, said that the United States Government has been led to believe that Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, French Chief of State, could be trusted not to collaborate with Germany any more than required by the armistice.

Each stride that Vichy has taken toward outright alliance with Germany has come as a genuine shock to American officials, it was said.

There has been no disposition in Washington to have confidence in the politicians who surround the aged marshal, but United States diplomats have felt that Petain himself could be relied upon to maintain the independence of his country.

Consequently permission for Germany to use Syrian airfields a few weeks ago during the uprising in Iraq was a surprise to American officials, it was explained. More recent reports of German soldiers in Syria and German activity at Dakar have been even more surprising to American officials.

Hull's statement yesterday was interpreted, thus, as partly an appeal to the French to withdraw from their apparent collaboration with Germany and partly a warning of the consequences if they should not withdraw.

Britain Awaits James Roosevelt

London (Friday), June 6 (AP).—It was reliably reported here early today that Capt. James Roosevelt would arrive in England Monday.

Roosevelt and Maj. Gerald Thomas, both of the United States Marines, left Cairo, Egypt, last Sunday after three weeks as special observers with Britain's forces in the Middle East.

Nazi Raiders Fire Harbor At Alexandria

By the Associated Press

Berlin, June 5.—A heavy Nazi aerial attack on Alexandria, Britain's eastern Mediterranean naval base, was reported officially today almost simultaneously with an authoritative declaration that the British Empire's last and greatest bastions in that vital area are now "touched by the point of the German sword."

Commenting upon the improved German striking position since the fall of Crete and the shortening of the lines of German attack, Die Wehrmacht, a military magazine published by the high command, thus elaborated:

"Cyprus, Britain's last great island base in the eastern Mediterranean, is reachable after only 650 kilometers (040 miles) of air travel.

"The route to Alexandria has been reduced to 820 kilometers (510 miles)."

Along with this statement was a map showing a wide pattern of probable German assault: Haifa, in Palestine; Port Said, Suez and Sidi Barrani, in Egypt; Tobruk, the port in Italian Libya thus far held by the British.

The bombing of Alexandria, apparently the first in a series of blows in the Middle East for which the German air force now is poised, was carried out last night. Oil tanks were left aflame, said an official account, and the harbor was struck with "good effect." Far at sea, it was added, could be seen the red glare of burning oil.

Referring to the Irish Minister's protest to the German government today against air bombing of Dublin, the Dienst said the incident was being investigated but that in the meantime reports that the Dublin bombs were German-made "cannot be considered as proof that they were dropped from German planes . . . The Reich would not have the least occasion for such incidents with Ireland, but on the other hand lays value on a continued friendly relationship with Ireland."

[A New York Times dispatch and sources close to official German quarters in Ankara claim the attack on Crete was not a rehearsal for an attack on Britain but for an occupation of Ireland. It is pointed out such a move is necessary to complete the blockade of British ports and cut off supplies from America.]

A 6,000-ton British auxiliary warship was declared sunk off the English coast yesterday by German speedboats attacking light British naval units.

150 Killed in First Mass Raid on Alexandria

By International News Service

Cairo, June 5.—At least 150 persons were killed and more than 200 injured in the war's first mass air attack on Alexandria, it was learned tonight, as military observers termed the raid the opening Axis blow in a probable offensive against the Suez Canal.

The assault on the Egyptian seaport, where Britain maintains her main Eastern Mediterranean naval base, was staged Wednesday night by waves of Luftwaffe bombers that poured tons of high explosives and showers of incendiary missiles upon the city of 600,000 inhabitants.

News reaching Cairo tonight from Alexandria said most of the bombs fell in the thickly-populated Arab quarters of the ancient city, demolishing many homes. Work crews were still digging in the debris tonight, searching for additional victims.

British warships based at Alexandria joined ground guns in sending up a terrific barrage, but it was not known whether any of the raiders had been shot down.

Founded by and named after Alexander the Great 2,273 years ago, Alexandria is one of the chief British bastions of defense of the Suez Canal. It is 150 miles west of the canal's northern entrance at Port Said and about 300 miles east of the Salum area on the Egyptian-Libyan frontier where German and Italian troops for weeks have been trying to drive into Egypt.

The raid on Alexandria followed by 24 hours a heavy Royal Air Force bombardment of the Libyan seaport of Bengasi, which a Cairo communique termed "successful" and said "considerable damage" was wrought.

Also on Tuesday night, it was added, R. A. F. bombers struck at the Maritza airdrome on the German-occupied Island of Rhodes in the Italian Dodecanese.

Cairo circles, meanwhile, predicted that Wednesday's R. A. F. attack on oil depots at Beirut, capital of Lebanon and Syria, will be followed by systematic raids against Syrian points in accordance with Britain's declared policy of "hitting at the Germans wherever they show themselves."

Japan Hints Break With Dutch Indies

tions on both sides since Ichiro Koyabashi started them last August. In November he finally arranged to increase Japanese imports of Indies oil from 494,000 tons to a rate of 1,800,000 tons annually. The oil was mostly crude instead of the highest gasoline the Japanese wanted, but the agreement was renewed for six months on May 5.

(The Japanese press has grown steadily more insistent that the Dutch give in on other trade matters and has accused the United States and Britain of stiffening the Dutch resolve.)

The Netherlands Indies press has blamed the Japanese for any delay in the proceedings.

Rain Cancels 12th Infantry's Farewell Review for C. O.

The Twelfth Infantry's farewell review for Col. O. H. Saunders, its commander, was called off yesterday at Arlington Cantonment after a day of almost ceaseless rain.

Instead, officers and ladies of the garrison gave a reception for Col. and Mrs. Saunders at the Officers Club. Maj. Gen. Courtney Hodges, recently appointed chief of infantry, who was to have taken the review as Col. Saunders' guest, shared honors with him at the reception.

The regiment, it was learned yesterday, will leave next Thursday for Fort Dix, N. J., where its second battalion will be reconstituted and all companies raised to war strength. An advance detachment, under Maj. W. H. Schildroth, will leave Arlington for Dix Tuesday.

At Fort Dix, it was understood, the Twelfth will occupy the tent camp vacated by the Forty-fourth Division, now maneuvering in Caroline County, Va. The Forty-fourth has been moved into a wooden cantonment.

More than 500 men and 28 officers of the Twelfth will remain at Arlington Cantonment to be organized into a military police battalion under Lieut. Col. Everett M. Yon, of the Washington Provisional Brigade.

Organized in 1798, the Twelfth Infantry has taken part in every conflict in which the United States has engaged since that time. Although the regiment itself did not go overseas in the World War, being at a port of embarkation when the armistice was signed, it trained several hundred officers and several thousand men who fought in France and took part in the Siberian expedition.

Soldiers Find Out Meaning Of Maneuvers

By Jerry T. Baulch
Associated Press Staff Writer

With the Army in Tennessee, June 5.—The 35,000 soldiers participating in the Tennessee war games began to realize today that modern warfare involves plenty of mobility—that you can't win a war standing still.

"We've moved so much since we started on maneuvers that I haven't had a chance for a shave or a bath since May 28," declared a member of the Thirtieth Division, composed of Georgia, Tennessee and North and South Carolina troops.

Yet the make-believe fighting this week was slow compared to the speed it is expected to reach when 11,000 men of the Second Armored Division from Fort Benning, Ga., move in against the Seventh Army Corps after June 15 with attack of quick jabs that can be met only with fast-moving defenses.

Three divisions started their fighting against an imaginary enemy today after an overnight halt for rest, but many of the troopers still were bleary eyed from the constant moving about over the 600-square mile area.

A night's rest for the Twenty-seventh Division of New Yorkers was broken at dawn with orders to move miles to the rear in a reserve position. The infantry slung packs over their backs and trudged mile after mile in 90 degree weather over dust-fogged roadways.

The Fifth Division, Regulars from Fort Custer, Mich., a heavily motorized unit, aroused from the comforts of Cumberland Spring's lake shore was ordered to rush some 30 miles northward to attack.

Before they moved in, however, the enemy hit them and forced the Fifth to battle day and night.

25,000 Troops Await Zero Hour In Woodlands of Virginia

By Marshall Andrews
Post Staff Writer

Bowling Green, Va., June 5.—Somewhere in the dripping wilderness east of here 25,000 men lay on their arms in concealed camps and waited for dawn to light the way to battle.

While they snatched what sleep they could, airplanes roared overhead, observers peering down into the deep black forests for some telltale glimmer of light. Two commanders and their staffs sat awake, trying to sift some fact from information brought to them by their airplanes and by scouts feeling along the blacked-out roads.

Sometime tomorrow morning these men will rise from their scanty bivouacs and march, one body of 18,000 southward, another body of 7,000 or so toward the north, each seeking the other and each guarding against surprise. When and where they will collide, where their far-ranging patrols will suddenly touch in the deep woods and strike the spark that will flame into battle, no one could guess tonight.

At the north end of the 70,000-acre A. P. Hill Military Reservation was the Forty-fourth Division, 18,000 former National Guardsmen and selectees from New Jersey and New York, under Maj. Gen. Clifford R. Powell, were encamped in the general vicinity of Moss Neck. At the southern end were an unknown number of regulars, estimated at about 7,000, under Col. F. C. Mahin, commanding the Sixtieth Infantry, Ninth Division.

The Northern force is a war-strength square division with four regiments of infantry, two of light artillery, one of medium artillery, one regiment each of engineers, medical and quartermaster troops and various service units. It is organized in two brigade combat teams, each of two infantry and one light artillery regiments with attached engineer and other troops. The medium artillery is in division reserve.

The Southern force, whose composition has been held as secret as possible, is built around the Sixtieth Combat Team, the Sixtieth Infantry, reinforced by one battalion each of light and medium artillery and half of an armored reconnaissance squadron. Four troops of the Third Cavalry, from Fort Myer, Va., are believed to be with it, and possibly other elements whose presence has not been discovered.

At 5 p. m. today, Gen. Powell was notified that an enemy force of unknown strength had been observed moving north on Virginia State Highway No. 2 to Bowling Green, where it turned east and disappeared in the woods.

At exactly the same time, Col. Mahin was informed that an enemy force, strength not known, had crossed the Rappahannock at Port Royal and was somewhere south of the river.

Roads Blocked

Also at 5 p. m., all roads leading into the maneuver area were blocked and all vehicles were ordered off the roads until dark, after which they moved with only their ghostly blue black out lights showing. Observation planes took off from hidden airdromes on both sides and sought to pierce the veil of darkness and secrecy.

Tomorrow's battle, which will initiate use of this recently acquired tract as an Army maneuver area, will test the ability of a heavy square division, its infantry marching on foot, to beat off the savage lightning attacks of a small mechanized force with room to maneuver. It will be rapier against bludgeon, brute strength against speed and a Sunday punch.

Here to observe the battle personally is Maj. Gen. Henry C. Pratt, commanding the Second Army Corps. Members of his staff are serving as senior umpires, with more than 100 unit umpires drawn from the Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Divisions.

In reaching this area, both sides traveled about 200 miles in the last rainy 48 hours, cramped in trucks and with little time or opportunity for rest or sleep. Except for military police guarding roads, outposts and the questing patrols, men of both forces were given a few hours' rest tonight before tomorrow's collision somewhere north and east of here.

During the afternoon a battalion of the 119th Quartermaster Regiment, Forty-fourth Division, lost for four hours, was discovered on the edge of Bowling Green, squarely in the enemy's territory.

At least three large French airdromes in Syria, including Damascus Airport, already have been taken over by the German airforce, it was said.

The others are at Aleppo in northern Syria and at Palmyra in the interior about 80 miles from the frontiers of Iraq and Transjordania where strong British forces are massing, perhaps for an invasion of French Syria at any hour.

[From London came reports that the British fleet was moving into battle positions off the coast of Syria as imperial forces, awaiting an order to attack, faced French defense forces across frontier barricades.]

British military and neutral informants here estimated that nearly 5,000 Germans, including the crews for 200 planes, had arrived in Syria and more were believed arriving steadily.

(The N. B. C. correspondent in Ankara reported Thursday night that German forces had "occupied Damascus.")

British Expect Showdown

By the Associated Press

London, June 5.—Britain's big Middle Eastern army was believed tonight to be ready to move into French-mandated Syria, possibly within a day or two.

Reliable reports said Britain was ready for action, with a showdown inevitable soon. A British attempt to beat the Germans to occupation of Syria was seen as a logical development if persistent reports of heavy German troop movements into the region are true.

The British government, which has been moving swiftly to cope with a German drive through Syria, today laid an economic blockade around Syria and neighboring Lebanon, classing the area as "enemy-occupied territory."

Reports arriving in Ankara from the Syrian border said a freighter had landed German technicians with antiaircraft guns and airplane parts at Latakia and another Syrian port.

French Bomb Trans-Jordan

Copyright by New York Times

Ankara, Turkey, June 5.—French aircraft have bombed Amman, the capital of the British mandate of Trans-Jordan, it was learned this afternoon.

The general belief is that this is a reprisal for the British bombardment of the harbor of Beirut yesterday. The extent of the damage is not known, but it is reported from Palestine that the aircraft used were of French manufacture.

Fury of War Served to Troops On a 'Platter'

Camp Beauregard, La., June 5 (AP). Soldiers served as human "guinea pigs" today in a huge outdoor laboratory to test their reaction to the real noises of war.

The synthetic battle sounds blared over Army practice grounds from mobile, greatly intensified loud speakers.

Maj. Gen. E. L. Daley, commander of the Fifth Army Corps, said the troops reacted favorably.

A master record repeated the zooming of attacking dive-bombers, the staccato of machine guns, crash of canon and the wailing siren warning of a gas attack.

Approval Given For Alexandria Army Warehouse

Construction of an Army warehouse at Alexandria, Va., to cost an estimated $2,500,000 was approved by the House Appropriations Committee yesterday among District, Virginia and Maryland War Department projects totaling $3,800,000.

The expenditures were proposed as a part of a $196,756,056 program of construction and land acquisition at military posts during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In addition to the Alexandria project, largest in this area, the committee approved $250,000 for reconstruction of fire-destroyed barracks and $84,000 for magazines and radio receiving station at Fort Myer, Va.; $350,000 for an experimental building at Bolling Field, D. C.; $300,000 for Air Corps facilities at Edgewood Arsenal, Md., and $963,406 for improvements at Langley Field, Va.

and 1,563,906 men. Indirectly, the committee strengthened the combatant strength still further by adding funds for the employment of 30,000 civilians to relieve soldiers of post "housekeeping" duties.

Lauding the Army chief of staff, Gen. George C. Marshall, the committee voted him a $25,000,000 "blank check" fund for emergencies, and authorized him to place orders for equipment for additional mechanized or other units he may consider necessary.

About half of the $10,000,000,000 provided will be spent on the air force, it is said, while $45,000,000 is provided for purchasing 3,000 barrage balloons and necessary equipment.

House debate on the measure began late yesterday with a plea by Chairman Snyder of the Military Appropriations subcommittee for speedy passage. A vote is expected this afternoon.

During the hearings on the bill, made public yesterday, Gen. Marshall disclosed that the First Division, a regular Army unit, had been classified as a "task force of first priority" and would be included in any initial expeditionary force.

The division, he said, has been given a high percentage of veteran soldiers and the most modern equipment. Other units, including some National Guard divisions, have been placed in the same category, he said.

Murray Asks Woodworkers To End Strike

dicate the lack of understanding displayed by the international officers of the I. W. A.," Murray wrote.

"In a statement released to the newspapers yesterday," he continued, "Mr. Orton . . . accused the National Defense Mediation Board, if not directly, then by implication, of being a labor-busting organization. This is, of course, a most reprehensible, lying defamation, for the very simple reason that the statement implies that Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, and Phillip Murray, president of the C. I. O., are engaging in this kind of activity."

Consolidation of Gains

Murray explained that he wanted it "definitely known" that he opposed arbitrary grant of powers to any Government agency which would seek to deprive workers of their rights "to exercise their economic power" to redress their wrongs, and that he was in sympathy with the I. W. A. aspirations for better working conditions.

However, he pointed out, the board's recommendations would "consolidate the gains" of the union and that it was "a reasonable expectation" that the proposed fact-finding commission would make mutually satisfactory recommendations for a permanent agreement.

Earlier in the day, another board panel announced that a neighboring I. W. A. local, involved in a dispute a few hundred miles south in the Columbia River, Oregon, district, had accepted a board proposal almost identical with that which Orton and the Puget Sound group had rejected.

Working Conditions Same

In this case, involving from 3,500 to 4,000 loggers and mill workers in 35 companies, a strike had been called off at the board's request.

In announcing the settlement, board member Charles E. Wyzanski, jr., stressed the fact that the working conditions were the same in both areas, that about three-fourths of the agreement, negotiated directly between employers and union, was almost synonymous with the board recommendations in the Puget Sound area, and that the board's final recommendation, which related only to the issue of the union shop, was almost identical with the Puget Sound proposal.

In implied contrast to Orton's behavior, Wyzanski said that the board had never dealt with a more cooperative group—both labor and management—or one which acted so completely in the spirit of the President's emergency proclamation. Board Chairman C. A. Dykstra, who headed the panel in the Puget Sound case, said he hoped the Columbia River settlement would be the basis of a back-to-work movement of the local union in the Seattle area.

Orton, however, it was learned, heads a so-called "red wing" faction of the union, while the Columbia River area local is led by an opposition group known as the "white wing."

Must Keep Good Standing

Both disputes arose in May over wage and union shop demands. Whereas the Columbia River dispute did not materialize to a strike, the Puget Sound workers left their jobs on May 9. The case was certified to the board on May 12.

After conferences, the board issued recommendations, providing, besides a wage increase and vacation allowance, that every present union member and all future members remain in good union standing. A provision similar to this in the Columbia River case was characterized yesterday by John Brophy, a C. I. O. member of the panel, as working out, "for all practical purposes, as a union shop," which was the I. W. A.'s original demand.

Meantime, representatives of a C. I. O. United Auto Workers union conferring with a board panel on the settlement of a dispute at the North American Aviation Co., requested and received permission to recess hearings in order to return to the plant at Inglewood, Calif., and induce workers to return to their jobs.

The plant's 9,000 employes struck late Wednesday while negotiations were proceeding here, despite a promise to postpone the walkout pending board conferences. The issues are a high minimum wage and general wage increases.

Refused by Orton

Although employers accepted the board's proposals, Orton did not. He later reported from Seattle that the plan had been vetoed by union delegates.

In the meantime, the President proclaimed a full emergency and declared, in his speech of May 27, that the American people expected both labor and capital to accept the recommendations of the Government's mediation agencies.

The board thereupon announced that its proposals should be considered as "recommendations." Orton still refused to accept them and declined a board request that they be submitted directly to the union members. His summons to Washington at the first of this week was the result.

At the Capitol, meanwhile, Senator Connally Democrat), of Texas, told the Senate that a strike against a plant holding defense orders was "in effect a strike against the United States Government."

A proposal to ban strikes unless a majority of workers in a plant had voted for one in a Government-supervised election came from Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire.

Demanding that President Roosevelt take action to halt strikes on defense work, Bridges said the Chief Executive could issue an Executive order and "settle our defense production troubles" within 48 hours.

Text of Defense Mediation Board's Report on Northwest Lumber Strike

The statement issued last night by the Defense Mediation Board on the Northwest lumber strike follows:

The National Defense Mediation Board today unanimously approved the findings and recommendations of the panel of the board which heard the dispute between the employers negotiating committee representing 52 employers in the Puget Sound lumber industry and the International Woodworkers of America representing 12,000 Puget Sound workers.

The recommendations are designed to do three things: first, to secure the immediate resumption of production upon the basis of an equitable temporary settlement; second, to institute at once thereafter a study of the entire question by an impartial commission whose report will furnish the basis for further negotiations and a permanent settlement; and third, to protect the interest of the employes during the period of this study by providing that any benefits granted in the permanent settlement shall be retroactive to the date work is resumed.

When the employers and the union came before the board they were in disagreement principally on four points: Union protection, wages, vacations and piece work. On these four points the following were the original views of the parties and the recommendations made by the panel and indorsed by the full board.

Union Protection

On union protection, the union wanted a closed shop with a union hiring hall. The employers at first opposed anything beyond the requirements of the National Labor Relations Act but later offered to accept the terms of the Snoqualmie Falls settlement applying to another group of workers in the same industry in the Northwest. The board, taking into account settlements in the same area recommended that, first, every present employe who belongs to the union and every future employe who joins the union shall, as a condition of employment, maintain union membership in good standing and, second, the employers shall recommend that new employes shall join the union within 40 days after being employed. This is substantially the same provision that has been accepted by representatives of the parties in the Columbia River Basin case, and that has been overwhelmingly ratified by the workers in the Snoqualmie case in April, 1941.

As to wages, the union asked 7½ cents an hour increase for every employe. The employers were willing to raise wages, but not to the extent that the union asked. The board found that in October, 1940, the employers had raised wages 4 per cent in some classifications and 5 per cent in others, and in December, 1940, had further raised wages 2½ cents per hour per man. The board recommended that the wages should be again increased so that every class of workers should receive 12½ cents an hour above the rate prevailing in September, 1940. This brings the wages into line with those agreed upon in the Columbia River Basin case on June 5, 1941.

As to vacations, the union asked for a retroactive vacation-with-pay clause. The employers were reluctant to grant any vacation with pay in view of the wage increases. The board recommended that provision should be made for vacations with pay to be effective in 1942 and to be included in the contract now to be negotiated.

Piece-Rate Compensation

The questions of piece rate compensation presented complicated issues which cannot be briefly summarized and which could not be promptly solved by the board. The board, therefore, recommended that it should at once appoint a commission to study that problem together with the three other problems as to which temporary solutions had been recommended and also numerous related labor and industrial problems in the Douglas fir belt. The recommendations of the commission are to be the basis for a report to the board and for collective bargaining between the parties. The final settlement is to be retroactive to the date work is resumed. When work is resumed the board will direct the commission to report within 60 days.

The recommendations of the board members who heard the case were submitted at the regular meeting of the board and were unanimously approved. The recommendations providing for higher wages and improved working conditions were made to bring about immediate resumption of production upon a fair and equitable basis pending a full investigation of the facts by an impartial commission. The emergency declared by the President demands that prompt action be taken. No injustice can result to anyone from the suggested procedure. It is expected that upon a proper understanding of the situation the workers will accept these impartial recommendations which involve substantial immediate benefits to them.

The members of the board who were present at the meeting today included:

C. A. Dykstra, board chairman; William H. Davis, vice chairman, and Frank Graham, George W. Stocking, Charles E. Wyzanski, jr. and Walter P. Stacy, representing the public.

Philip Murray, Thomas Kennedy, Clinton Golden, George Meany, James Wilson and Robert F. Watt, representing the employe.

Walter C. Teagle, Eugene Meyer, Roger D. Lapham, Cyrus Ching, Charles E. Adams, John Connelly and Gerard Swope, representing the employers.

Murray on the Lumber Strike

The statement issued by Philip Murray, C. I. O. president, on the lumber strike follows:

To the officers and members of the International Woodworkers of America in the Puget Sound Area, C. I. O.

Greetings:

Pursuant to the executive order of the President of the United States and in conformity with the policies enunciated and followed by the National Defense Mediation Board, a panel representing the board conducted lengthy hearings concerning the claims made by the International Woodworkers of America to employers representing 52 operations in the Puget Sound Douglas Fir Belt growing out of a strike beginning May 9, 1941, and still in effect.

The panel, in an effort to compose the differences between the employers and the I. W. A., suggested a temporary arrangement providing for improvements over conditions now in existence. The recommendations of the panel are as follows:

(a) That the representatives of the I. W. A unions accept:

1. The union maintenance agreement here offered and the proffer of the employers representatives to recommend union membership to all new employes pending any further recommendations of the board.

2. The basic wage increase amounting to 7½ cents together with the schedule which gives a 12½ cents increase "across the board" as of last September.

3. The revised vacation schedule which reduces the 1,600 hour proposal for the mills to 1,400 hours and the 2 cent suggestion for logging camps.

4. The proposal for a study by joint committees of the relation of piece work to hazard.

(b) That work be resumed pending the findings of the investigating commission and the final recommendation of the board with the understanding that any final proposal on wage rates or increases shall be retroactive to the time of the resumption of work and any findings on vacation which affect payments of any kind shall also be retroactive as of the same time.

It was distinctly understood that these improvements would continue, pending a study by an impartial commission of the following items:

1. Union and management relationships in the Douglas Fir Belt.
2. Wage practices in the area.
3. The general condition of the industry.
4. The influence of seasonal and climatic conditions as they affect the industry.
5. The problems of hazard.
6. The piece work practices now in effect.
7. Vacation practices and policies.
8. The possibilities for the stabilization of the entire industry for the period of the emergency.
9. Other relevant facts and situations which may be deemed important as the study progresses.

It was further understood that this commission, upon the completion of its studies, would submit the results of the study to a joint collective bargaining conference of the employers and the representatives of the I. W. A., to be used as a basis for the final perfection of a mutually satisfactory agreement.

Acceptance Urged

It was further understood that in the event of a disagreement in such a conference, the matters at issue would be brought back to the National Defense Mediation Board for further study and recommendations.

I have personally recommended the acceptance of the board's proposals to the officers of the I. W. A. believing that the interests of the union would best be protected by following this course.

Unfortunately, the officers of the I. W. A. who have met with Mr. Brophy and me, and with other members of the board, have refused to accept these recommendations which are those not only of the board but also of the president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. In so doing, they have indulged in a campaign of misrepresentation, slander and abuse contrary to all of the well-defined policies of the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

These officers of the I. W. A. have refused to recommend acceptance of this temporary agreement which has been proposed in order that the Government of the United States of America, through the National Defense Mediation Board, be given the fullest opportunity to investigate the facts and make competent, intelligent recommendations. This conduct indicates the lack of understanding displayed by the international officers of the I. W. A.

"Lying Defamation"

In a statement released to the newspapers yesterday, Mr. Orton, president of the I. W. A., accused the National Defense Mediation Board, if not directly, then by implication, of benig a labor-busting organization. This is, of course, a most reprehensible, lying defamation, for the very simple reason that the statement implies that Thomas Kennedy, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, and Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations are engaging in this kind of activity.

It is the considered, calm judgment, not only of myself, but of all C. I. O. representatives who are either members, or alternate members of the National Defense Mediation Board, that the interests of the I. W. A. will be better served by accepting the recommendations of the board.

A continuation of the strike, under existing circumstances, is no longer regarded as being directed against the employers, but rather against the National Defense Mediation Board.

The position of the president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations should not be misunderstood. I want it to be definitely known that I am opposed to a grant of arbitrary powers to any Government tribunal which would seek to deprive the workers of the right to exercise their economic power for the purpose of seeking redress of wrongs.

The president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations is wholeheartedly in sympathy with all of the legitimate aspirations of all the members of the I. W. A., and with his associates will strive consistently not only to maintain but to improve conditions for workers employed in American industry.

I, therefore, strongly urge the need of meetings to be held at the earliest possible date for the purpose of giving consideration to the recommendations made by the president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations to return to work.

The recommendations of the board consolidate the gains which the International Woodworkers of America have already secured. It is a reasonable expectation that the report of the special commission, which the panel has proposed, will make recommendations for a permanent agreement which will be mutually satisfactory to everyone.

I express the confident hope that, in your own best interests, you will accept the recommendations which have been made to you by the board.

PHILIP MURRAY,
President, Congress of Industrial Organizations.

OPM Disavows Kellogg Stand On Power

C. W. Kellogg, OPM power chief who declared Tuesday that no shortage was to be expected in electric power, yesterday received the remedial "front office" treatment advised by Interiar Secretary Ickes.

In a tongue-lashing reminiscent of the golden age of Ickesian invective, the Secretary told a press conference that "Papa"—meaning defense chiefs Knudsen and Hillman—"should take Kellogg into the front office and tell him the facts."

Four hours later, OPM issued a point blank repudiation of Kellogg's remarks, made at Buffalo, N. Y., before the Edison Electric Institute, of which he is president. A spokesman said the unusually terse and unequivocal statement was issued "with the express approval" of Knudsen.

In charging Kellogg was "misrepresenting the facts to the public," Ickes referred to Kellogg's comments that the utility industry could increase power output by 20 per cent and that "any allegation of a power shortage is unwarranted."

Ickes disclosed that while Kellogg was making his speech other OPM officials were in his office asking help in a defense program to expand electric generation by 1,000,000 kilowatts.

Speech "Carefully Prepared"

In Buffalo, N. Y., Kellogg was advised of Ickes' comments, and replied that his speech had been made only after "careful preparation" and said he would prefer "leaving my speech stand for the present."

A few minutes later, however, the OPM statement was released. It said Kellogg's view "could only have been expressed . . . in his individual capacity, as it does not represent the position of the OPM."

"The OPM," it continued, "is not in agreement with the views on this subject which the press has ascribed to Mr. Kellogg.

"On the contrary, representatives of the Office of Production Management have been actively engaged with other agencies of the Government in developing a program to provide the additional power needed for the expanding defense requirements, particularly in the fields of aluminum and magnesium production. It is clearly evident that without civilian curtailment in important areas, sufficient power will not be available in time to produce the supplies of aluminum and magnesium demanded by the growing aircraft and lend-lease program. All possible efforts are being made to expedite completion of the necessary hydro-electric and steam projects to meet the shortages that are known to be imminent."

Sharply Repudiated

Observers believed that this was one of the sharpest repudiations ever to have been administered by a Government agency to one of its officials.

The OPM, it is understood, is so concerned with an imminent power shortage that it looks favorably on legislation to propide national daylight saving time. It is withholding recommendations, however, according to its executive secretary, Herbert Emmerich, until a study on the subject under way in the Federal Power Commission is further advanced.

At the Federal Power Commission, officials said their daylight saving time study had not yet progressed far enough to provide any measure of the energy savings which could be accomplished by such a measure. They indicated that Commision Chairman Olds' current field trip to confer with members of the industry would also be directed to this phase of the problem.

In New York, where Olds met yesterday with New England and Middle Atlantic Coast utility executives, Olds told the Associated Press that it was the general impression of the gathering that daylight time would be a distinct advantage for conservation purposes.

Nelson Urges Re-Negotiating of Defense Contracts for Speed

Donald M. Nelson, chief of the division of purchases of the Office of Production Management, urged yesterday that all defense contracts be renegotiated and delivery dates be set forward with the idea of speeding up production. It was the only way, he said, that factories could be forced to put on several shifts and to subcontract, thus utilizing a vast number of small machine shops which are not being put to use.

Appearing before the Senate committee investigating the defense setup, Nelson let it be known that it was the War and Navy Departments which had stood in the way of renegotiating contracts. The OPM, he said, had "tried to sell it" to the Army and Navy, but without success.

This caused Senator Joseph H. Ball (Republican), of Minnesota, to suggest: "Maybe we'd better get the Army and Navy up here and find out why. But it seems to be the duty of the OPM to put the steam into this effort. If the people down there can't do it, we'd better get rid of them and get somebody that can."

While Nelson was suggesting this radical revision of contracts because "we are going to have to make an all-out effort in this country," the production division of OPM was ordering curtailment of the production of sheet and strip metal, normally used for civilian goods such as automobiles and refrigerators, so that more of it could be processed into defense articles such as ships and railway cars.

When Nelson suggested that Congress should appropriate more money for defense orders, he was met with the testimony of another OPM witness, Stacy May, chief of the Bureau of Statistics, who had told the committee that production was lagging up to 50 per cent on the orders which had already been contracted for. Nelson maintained that "we could spend it" if it were appropriated.

Senator Connally (Democrat), of Texas, expressed general dissatisfaction with the production picture, saying that the feeling over the country was that "we are in a slump on production—plowing through the mud and not getting much of anywhere."

Senator Mead (Democrat), of New York, suggested that a separate department be set up in the OPM and given over entirely to subcontracting defense orders to small plants.

Nelson testified that in England the government forced the principal contractors to subcontract from 30 to 35 per cent of the main contract, a system which had worked very well and which the OPM was willing to put into effect in this country if it were necessary.

Senate Confirms 3 Appointments

The Senate confirmed yesterday the nomination of Claude L. Draper, of Cheyenne, Wyo., for a new term as a member of the Federal Power Commission.

It also confirmed the nomination of Ganson Purcell, of New York, to be a member of the Securities Exchange Commission.

Likewise approved was the nomination of Howard O. Hunter, of Illinois to be work projects commissioner.

Ankara, June 5 (U.P.).—Riots broke out in front of bakeries in Istanbul today for the second consecutive day because of a bread shortage attributed to faulty distribution methods.

Striving to control the unrest, the government announced that effective tomorrow, all bread in Turkey must consist of 50 per cent wheat, 30 per cent barley and 20 per cent rye. The government has been making strong efforts to economize on the consumption of wheat in order to preserve a reserve supply in the present unsettled conditions.

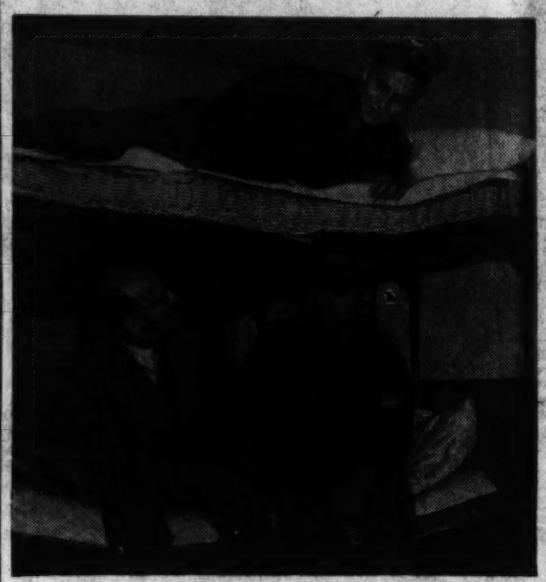
Truck Drivers, This Isn't the Bunk



Baltimore Truck Drivers Raymond Hill (top) and Joseph Vetters try out bunks and give their approval to S. A. Markel

No longer will it be necessary for truck drivers passing through Washington to pull off the road and curl up behind the seat to pass the night. Instead, for a nominal charge, they may now sleep in a $750,000 Highway Transportation Terminal at 1525 New York Avenue Northeast which was opened yesterday.

Contained within the commodious building are air-conditioned dormitories, club and game rooms, a barber shop and restaurant. Complete facilities for the physical and mental comforts of the men behind the wheels have been installed.

The terminal will accommodate 120 men in its dormitories and will do much to speed up defense transportation and reduce accidents on the roads, it is expected. A first aid station will render free service to persons injured on the highways.

Plans call for a chain throughout the Nation of more than 400 such terminals and 100 are to be constructed within the year.

The terminal houses the Nation's largest public scale capable of registering weight up to 80,000 pounds, and there are railroad sidings on the premises as well as warehouses for merchandise transfer and storage purposes.

Markel Service Incorporated is constructing the chain of terminal buildings. Yesterday Commissioner Joseph Eastman, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, in a coast-to-coast broadcast dedicated the building.

LOU GEHRIG

Bill Cunningham's Column: Lou Gehrig Was the True Sportsman . . .

By Bill Cunningham

St. Louis—The death of gallant Lou Gehrig, whose life on the field and off it was as clean and as white as a heavenly star, calls for the superlative in epitaphs, but perhaps, after all, the simplest is best.

From the depth of his heart-break over the loss of his own son, Calvin Coolidge, while President, wrote to a father who had similarly lost a boy who was the apple of his eye, a letter of condolence which contained the line: "Your boy and my boy, who, by the grace of God, will be boys throughout eternity."

Something of that seems to be true of the Yankees' famous "Iron Horse." We who hymned his deeds from the pews high aloft as he ran that unbelievable string of 2,130 consecutive games across the 15 years that closed with the 1939 World Series, will never see him as the Lou of those last tragic months, but always as the buoyant, smiling powerhouse of the broad shoulders and sturdy legs who first-based the greatest baseball teams of an historical generation.

Superlatives are dangerous, so the masters tell us, but superlatives are understatements in the case of Lou Gehrig. There was nothing about his story, anywhere, that you couldn't give your young son and say, "Try to be like that, and you'll come out all right."

Gehrig was clean. He was generous. He was not only a star, he was a practising sportsman. His strongest rooters were the umpires, for he never questioned a decision. He took the good with the bad, the fair luck and foul with the same infectious smile. He was not a Pollyanna. He didn't like to lose, but, as he said to me one time when I asked him why he didn't climb on an umpire, "It was a question of judgment. He thought he was right. He's got a wife and five kids. Why turn the wolves loose on him by throwing a bat? After all, there's the chance that he may have been right. My decision on the matter couldn't be called strictly unbiased."

These are military times, and when we use such words as "bravery" and "courage," the connotation is usually something akin to daring in the murderous skies or on the doubly treacherous seas. But courage of noble sort isn't reserved enthirely for battlefields, nor is bravery explusive with those who bear arms.

Bravery to me will always mean the face of Lou Gehrig when sentence of death was pronounced on him by the best medical forecasting that money could buy, and the words of his white-faced wife, who stood steadfastly at his shoulder as he gave that information to us of the press.

Without the slightest suggestion of faltering, he told us what the doctors had said. They didn't know when it would be, he reported. They weren't even sure that he couldn't still win the battle with sheer willpower and the reserve of great strength that had once been his. The strange disease, an inexplicable solidifying of the spinal cord, was still really in the twilight zone of medical knowledge. They weren't sure, they said.

"We'll See It Through"

He didn't further elaborate except to say, "I've still got one more strike at least. I intend to swing on it."

"Whatever comes," the pretty wife at his shoulder said, "we'll see it through together."

That was all. There were no heroics, no surrender, no refusal to admit facts. We hoped and prayed they'd win the fight. It promised to be long, according to medical history. The suddenness of the finale came as a terrific shock to many of us who were planning to look in on Lou and talk over old times the next time we got close to his neighborhood.

Maybe, some day, there'll be another who will wipe those many records of his from the books. It doesn't seem likely, for they've been matchless thus far. But new lads come up every year, just as he came up, a burly youngster from Columbia University by way of Hartford away back in 1923.

But nobody will ever remove the memory of the smiling carefree, companionable young giant who would have been the greatest of his age, except for the fact that the greatest of them all, Babe Ruth, was in the same spangles with him. Typical of him was that instead of resenting Ruth, he idolized him.

May the diamonds be ever green where he's gone.

Board Backs Miners' Union

"reject clause," long anathema to the Southern miners, whom the board supported in their claims that they have been penalized by the clause's operation.

2. Granting of a ten-day vacation with pay each year, with the limitation, however, that the vacation not be taken this summer "in this critical stage of the Nation's affairs," unless the industry could otherwise make up the production which would be lost.

3. Elimination of a provision demanded by the miners whereby the union, without consent of the operators, could call "memorial" mourning periods during which work would cease.

4. Elimination of a clause which would have given the U. M. W. the right to call a strike throughout the industry at any time, the agreement's "no strike clause" notwithstanding.

The board also made recommendations on several technical and less important points.

Davis pointed out that the 40-cent differential in favor of the South applied only to auxiliary mine workers—timberers, track layers and maintenance men.

The board did not recommend, nor did the union ask, Davis explained, elimination of the differential in tonnage rates, applying to the men who actually mined the coal.

The existing differential, he added, amounts to about 18 cents per ton in the cost of mining. Elimination of the 40-cent differential reduces the South's competitive advantage by only 3 to 3½ cents per ton, whereas a 15-cent differential, applying to tonnage rates, is still maintained to the South's advantage.

Although the terms of the agreement appeared to be an obvious victory for union demands, Davis placed a different construction on the matter.

Refers to Southerners' Ad

With a wry smile, and implying by his voice that the Southerners may have been hoist by their own petard, he produced a full page advertisement which they had run in daily papers two weeks ago. Holding the Southerners to their own words, Davis showed that the board had eliminated "all the items which those gentlemen professed to be so much concerned about."

The report, discussing in exhaustive detail the principal points of the controversy, was the fruit of weeks of discussion and study by the board panel, which, besides Davis, included Walter Teagle, Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey board chairman, representing the employers, and Clinton Golden, C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing Committee official, representing labor.

The report, discussing in exhaus- the disputants failed to negotiate an agreement with the board in conferences during May. These meetings, in turn, were the result of a deadlock in direct negotiations between U. M. W. President John L. Lewis and the Southern operators. The negotiations had been resumed on May 12 following a settlement of the April strike on terms of a Presidential proposal, providing a $1 a day wage increase for the Appalachian area, and a resumption of operations while negotiations were resumed.

The strike, which badly crippled steel operations during its last days, affected between 330,000 and 400,000 miners. The temporary settlement raised wages in the North to $7 a day, and in the South to $6.60.

In concluding an agreement with the Northern operators, who sided throughout the controversy with the mine workers union, a "most favored nation" clause was granted which provided, in effect, that the $7 figure was contingent on the South meeting that level, and that the North would pay no more than was finally agreed upon in the lower part of the Appalachian area.

To protect this agreement, Davis explained yesterday, the miners inserted in the Northern contract a provision permitting them to declare a Nation-wide strike "to preserve and maintain the integrity and competitive parity of this agreement."

If the board's recommendations were accepted, Davis explained, this clause would no longer be necessary, and hence its removal was recommended.

Pointing out that the settlement showed a "box score of 5 to 1 in favor of the owners," Davis solemnly read the Southern operators' national advertisement, in which the owners said that the wage raise was not their "sole reason or even chief reason" of their refusal to sign.

Instead, he continued, the advertisement listed as the principal causes Lewis' demands for the "memorial period" rights, the vacation that would cause "all the mines to be shut off at one time" and "the right to strike any and every mine at any time at his own will or pleasure."

Straight-faced against the guffaws of reporters, Davis remarked that all of these union demands were eliminated in the board's recommendations.

London Firefighters Here for Show

RECOUNT LONDON BLAZES—D. D. Ivall, Clarence Palmer and Rudolph Haybrook, London firefighters in Washington to attend the show tomorrow night in Constitution Hall for the benefit of British firefighters' widows and orphans, met with District firemen yesterday and told of battling the fires started in London by Nazi air raiders. Here, they recount their experiences. Left to right—Capt. H. F. Harding, of the District Fire Department; Ivall, Palmer, George Richardson, of Washington; Haybrook, and Dan Deasy, fireman from New York

Three London firemen, one cruelly scarred, talked individually here yesterday of taking their apparatus through blacked-out streets with only the glare from great fires to give direction.

But when the question was asked of how the British are standing up under it these days all three spoke together and their eyes flared.

"Never better than now."

"Morale was never higher."

The three are R. Haybrook, D. D. Ivall and Clarence Palmer. Palmer's arms have been left bright red from burns. Last September he was fighting a blaze in a seven-story warehouse. He was on the first floor of the structure, in East London, when it came down, literally, on his head. He was pinned under a heavy beam for half an hour, until other firemen got him out of the wreckage. His friends asked him to tell about it and he did, in a matter of fact voice.

They all talked that way until asked how England was taking it. Then they were more emphatic. "He can start the invasion whenever he likes," Ivall said. The tone of voice told what he meant by that.

The firemen have fought blazes in structures dear to English hearts and history. Haybrook spoke of how they feel about it. There is no great surge of anger, he said. The people simply turn cold and in a cold determined way they declare this evil won't be allowed to prevail," he said.

"They are not casual," he insisted. "They are simply determined. Everyone is. Everyone helps."

Another spoke up, "And business goes on as usual when the bombings aren't in progress. There isn't any panic, even when there are bombings."

Ivall said they take their apparatus over bumpy streets, knowing the city and having the glare to guide them. "We have the fires out by morning or are sitting pretty tightly with them," he said. They spoke easily about it, as though situations don't get away from them and emphasized that everybody is united against the fires, united in everything.

With them here, to attend the firemen's benefit show tomorrow night in Constitution Hall, for benefit of British fire fighters' widows and orphans, was Battalion Chief Daniel Deasy, of the New York fire department. He recently spent three months in England, observing war-time firefighting technique. He called firemen in modern war the first defense line and affirmed that Britishers are sitting tight and will.

The benefit show is sponsored by the D. C. Firemen's Association. Films of London fires will be included in the program.

Eklund Home Night of Crime, Mother Says

evidence against him, followed his mother to the stand.

"Did you shoot a colored man named McClaine?" his attorney, James R. Kirkland, asked him.

"I certainly did not," was the earnest, level reply of the former college man.

The defendant said he remained at his mother's home, 2109 F Street Northwest, the entire night of the slaying.

Outburst By Eklund

Later, Eklund lost his calm for the first time during the trial and shouted fiercely when the Government charged that a "deep and bitter hatred of colored people" was the motive for the sniper murder.

When his own lawyer asked him about it, Eklund quietly denied that he held any such racial prejudice.

On cross-examination, Assistant District Attorney John W. Fihelly suggested to Eklund that while he was in jail at Third Precinct Station a colored prisoner called out a request for cigarettes. Fihelly asked:

"And didn't you shout this to that man: 'You black son of a ——, if you had been out about a month ago I'd have given you a cigarette in the back!'?"

Eklund screamed back: "That's something the police have made up! I never said that!"

Patrolman James W. Garland, of the Third Precinct, took the stand a few minutes later and collaborated on Fihelly's version. While he was doing so, Eklund leaped to his feet and shouted:

"I wish you'd tell the truth on that stand!"

A United States marshal shoved Eklund back into his seat and proceedings were held up a few minutes while Defense Counsel Kirkland and Leonard P. Walsh pacified their client.

A 38-caliber revolver played a prominent part in yesterday's session of the trial. Identified as the same weapon that killed at least three men, including McClaine, and wounded another in Washington last fall, it vanished afterwards.

Man Who Was Shot Testifies

Tests showed it sent three bullets into the body of Percy McKinnie, 28, colored, the night of September 28.

Called to the witness stand, McKinnie said that he saw his assailant and that it was not Eklund, not a white man at all.

"The man that shot me," said McKinnie, "was Rowhelia Bailey. I know him well. I heard he threatened me. I saw him plainly. My eyes would not fool me."

Called by the Government, Bailey protested with earnestness equal to Eklund's that it was not he who fired the sniper's weapon at McKinnie, about 1 a. m. the night of September 28.

Bailey said he and a girl friend were in a Riggs Place rooming house from 15 minutes after midnight until 11 o'clock the next morning. The girl friend and the landlady told the same story. Both said they were sure about the time.

The introduction of the McKinnie shooting into Eklund's trial gave Assistant District Attorneys Fihelly and Charles B. Murray the right to tell the jury about two other murders of which Eklund is indicted. Until yesterday every mention of the other shootings had been rigorously avoided.

A little after midnight the night of October 6 last year, Theodore Gofney, 45, and Samuel Banks, 62, colored, were shot in the back with the sniper's pistol. The Government was allowed to show that Bailey could not have killed these men, because he was then in jail for the McKinnie shooting.

Capt. John H. Fowler, firearms expert, testified that he was positive that McClaine, Gofney, Banks and McKinnie were shot with the same .38 caliber gun.

The 12 men who will withdraw this afternoon to deliberate whether Eklund should be freed or sent to the electric chair have been offered no certain proof of who owned the weapon or what happened to it.

They have only seen its bullets, 11 of them, taken from four bodies, and from a fence post and a tree where Eklund was reported seen at pistol practice. They have heard expert testimony that all these bullets came from the same .38-caliber revolver.

Justice James M. Proctor told the jurors, who have been closely guarded since the trial began Monday, that they were due to get the case late today.

Dairymen Willing to Sell 5-Cent Milk to Needy

Maryland Producers Urge Cut, However, In Distribution Costs

or relaxing the eligibility rules for 5-cent quarts, let the plight of the farmer in this marketing area be clearly borne in mind: Increasing labor costs, rising feed prices, pasture damage caused by the spring drought, increasing costs of cow replacements.

"Thirty to 40 per cent of our cows are mortgaged," said W. L. King, who has a 91-cow barn near Gaithersburg. "Some of us haven't paid for barns built ten years ago.

"The demand for milk is way up and we have to hustle to keep up with it. More machinery. More cows. Cows we thought we could buy for $125 casts $200."

King, most articulate of those present, warmed up.

"Do you want us to give milk away to people who spend 80 cents a gallon for beer and $2 a gallon for cola drinks? (His figure on the latter is somewhat off.—Ed. note.) Why are people who spend money on luxuries entitled to low-cost milk at our expense?"

Prices Are Compared

J. Vinson Peter, whose dairy farm is just outside Rockville, came in with:

"Why is it always 'the high price of milk?' How about meat and potatoes? Why doesn't someone kick about those prices once in a while?"

(The Maryland-Virginia Milk producers Association this week asked the Department of Agriculture, under terms of the milk marketing order, to increase the producers' price by 1 cent a quart. If granted, this would almost certainly result in the boost being passed along to the consumer.)

"Now consider the total cost of the milk they're selling in Washington to reliefers at 5 cents a quart," said O. W. Anderson, county agricultural agent, in whose office across the street from the courthouse the meeting was held.

"The buyer pays a nickel, which goes to the producers. The Federal Government pays the 3 cents a quart handling charge the distributor gets. I'd say another 2 cents per bottle goes for WPA labor at the selling depots, and add another penny for overhead. Each bottle, then, costs 11 cents.

"Still, anyone at all can go into almost any grocery and buy two quarts for 19 cents. That's only 9½ cents a quart."

Urges Cheaper Distribution

Anderson's point is that economies can and should be effected in the nickel milk program, so that more needy may benefit or the loss taken by the farmers in supplying this milk, may be reduced, or both.

"The association has repeatedly written and telephoned us to produce more and still more," continued Anderson, who has 60 milk cows on his farm near Gaithersburg.

"We've even been told to sell our milk-drinking calves so the supply can be increased by that much. That should give you an idea how small the market surplus is. With an adequate surplus we have no objection to low-cost milk to the needy, in schools or at home."

He said he is paying $1.75 a 100 pounds for grain feed, compared with $1.35 last June.

Anderson's views were seconded by J. D. King, brother of the aforementioned W. L., and whose farm is near Germantown.

"If there is a surplus big enough to stand a relief milk program, I'm in favor of it," said Douglas B. Diamond, of Gaithersburg.

Others present nodded assent. They included, besides those already mentioned, Edwin D. Frye, of Laytonsville, Basil Mobley, of Derwood, and William Griffith, of Barnesville.

That the milk surplus today is precariously low is attested by Charles I. Dunn, administrator of the milk marketing order which governs prices paid producers by the dairies.

Consumption having increased as much as it has in the last few months in Washington and vicinity, part if not all of the reliefers' milk being sold at 5 cents a quart could be disposed of at the top producer price of $3.17 per hundredweight. Instead, the farmers are receiving only $1.99 for it.

So little of this low-cost milk is being sold, however—about 700 gallons daily—that the farmers' sacrifice is negligible.

W. L. KING, Gaithersburg, Md., farmer, states the milk producers' position. "Cows we thought we could buy for $125 cost $200"

Bill Would Limit Draft of Property

President did not want the powers conferred by the broader bill and "it hasn't a chance." Modification of the measure, in line with the Byrnes-Connally proposals, was predicted by other leaders.

Secretary of War Stimson at a press conference meanwhile, said the so-called property seizure bill was one of the most important before Congress and "ought to be passed with as little delay as possible."

He said power for the President to relieve machine tool bottlenecks, aluminum shortages and German control of vital defense patents was necessary and Congress should ignore "frivolous objections."

Stimson said he had no objections to a time limit on the powers if it would relieve "the feeling of those who believe they are putting the crimps on a would-be dictator." He denied critics' charges that "the President could take over everything."

Stimson also stressed need of such a law to permit the United States to take over patents held by the German government and vital to this Nation's defense.

Machine tools not in use or in plants not working on defense orders, he said, also could be brought into the defense program by the law.

Large stocks of raw materials, including great quantities of aluminum now being used in private industry, likewise could be brought within Government control, he said.

"On one side," protested the Secretary, "we are being pounded for not going faster and on the other we are meeting frivolous objections to the methods we ask to help us go faster."

In the House, critics again opened fire on the measure, with Representative Woodruff charging it "gives the President power to extinguish any or all rights of private ownership in any property he might choose forever."

Senator Connally, meanwhile, without mentioning the draft property bill, introduced his Selective Service Act amendment empowering the Government to take over and operate during the period of the emergency any industrial plant, producing defense materials or convertible into a defense manufacturing plant, in which the defense effort may be impeded by an existing or threatened failure of production from "a strike or other labor disturbance or other cause."

In a Senate speech, Connally said skilled labor was exempted from conscription to permit work in defense industries and that as a matter of right the President should have power to compel maximum operation of defense plants.

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming, agreed "that this war is going to be fought on the assembly line and not in the front line trenches."

Chairman George of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee said the general requisitioning measure could not pass in its present sweeping form but voiced belief requisition legislation is necessary in some form "to prevent interruption to the defense structure we are building up." George said he thought the bill would be satisfactorily revised before it reached the floor.

Communists Lead Strikes, Says Starnes

Representative Starnes (Democrat), of Alabama, acting chairman of the Dies Committee, charged yesterday that leaders of the West Coast lumber strike, the North American aircraft strike and the threatened Cleveland aluminum strike are known Communists.

"The time for some effective action against treason has arrived," Starnes told the House.

He said O. M. Orton, president of the C. I. O. International Woodworkers of America, who defied the Mediation Board's order to end the month-old lumber strike in the Puget Sound area, was identified by the Dies Committee as a Communist nearly three years ago.

Starnes said that Elmer J. Freitag, president of the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers local in the Inglewood, Calif., plant of North American Aviation Corporation, had testified before the Dies Committee last week that he was registered as a Communist voter in Los Angeles in 1938.

Lou Michener, chief C. I. O. organizer on the Pacific Coast, who accompanied Freitag to the Dies Committee hearing, has been identified as a Communist "again and again," Starnes stated.

The leader of the striking union in the Cleveland aluminum plants is Alex Balint, identified as a Communist by "indiputable evidence" before the Dies Committee, the acting chairman said.

Starnes' speech drew a bitter reply from Representative Marcantonio (American Labor), of New York, who said one of the Pacific Coast lumber employers "has increased his profits by 43,000 per cent, yet refuses to give his employes the same rate of pay as workers in other sections with whom they are in direct competition."

Capitol Pages To Be Graduated

Speaker Sam Rayburn of the House of Representatives will address the graduating class of the Capitol Page's School at the first commencement exercises in the history of the school, when eight of the youngsters who serve the Senate and House members will receive their diplomas on June 16 at 8 p. m., Superintendent Kendall of the school, announced yesterday.

The boys who will receive their high school diplomas are Robert March and Harry Sonnenberg, Senate pages, and Newton Harris, Albert Manley, Mac Arnold, Robert Garrigan, Barry Moyerman and Earl Morgan, of the House of Representatives page staff. Negotiations are under way to have the Navy Band furnish the commencement music and many distinguished sponsors of the Senate and House pages are expected to be in the audience.

The family's monthly income is $84.25, of which $23.50 goes for rent. The children, says their mother, are all healthy "and I must give the credit for all this to their dad."

sure, it may be completed in less time.

"I should like to agree with the people who say that the country's danger will be over sooner than that," he wrote. "But the course of world events gives no such assurance, and we have no right to take chances with the national safety."

Legislation is now pending in the House to give effect to the Canadian-American agreement of March 21, calling for construction within four years of a 27-foot channel through the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence and a huge hydroelectric power development on the New York-Ontario border.

Hearings to Open June 16

Hearings on the bill, introduced by Chairman Mansfield (Democrat), of Texas, will open June 16 before the Rivers and Harbors Committee.

No waterway bill has yet been introduced in the Senate and Senate leaders were still uncertain yesterday as to which committee would handle such a measure. The President's message was referred to both the Foreign Relations and Commerce Committees.

Both Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia, head of the Foreign Relations Committee, and Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, Commerce chairman, opposed the waterway in 1934, when the Senate last voted on the project. Neither has indicated his present stand on the project.

George yesterday recalled his previous opposition and said he wanted to give thorough study to the Administration proposal to learn whether "any change in circumstances" now justifies the project. He said he would not introduce the waterway bill in the Senate.

Barkley May Be Sponsor

Majority Leader Barkley, of Kentucky, may sponsor the measure, it was reported yesterday, but a number of other Democratic stalwarts in the Senate come from regions hostile to the waterway and are known to be luke-warm toward the legislation.

Senator Byrnes (Democrat), of South Carolina, would not go beyond a statement that he voted for the waterway in 1934 and would do so again. Senator Hill (Democrat), of Alabama, majority whip, praised the President's message and said there is "very compelling need for the development of more power."

From Administration opponents came prompt criticism of the President's message. Senator Clark (Democrat), of Missouri, referring to Mr. Roosevelt's description of the waterway as a defense measure, said, "It's a fake."

Senator Brooks (Republican), of Illinois, said the Administration was "taking advantage of the war to conceal all of its proposals behind a national defense label."

House Passes Oil Pipeline Bill

after the Georgia Legislature earlier this year supported refusals by the railroads to grant rights of way to a previously projected pipe line.

Approved by a voice vote after brief debate, the measure authorizes the President to announce by proclamation a shortage of facilities for oil transportation.

"In the event that it is impracticable for any private person (or corporation) promptly and satisfactorily" to construct the needed pipe lines, the President could order Government construction under terms of the bill.

The House adopted an amendment offered by Representative Halleck (Republican), of Indiana, requiring the Government to cease operation of any pipe lines it may build under the legislation within a year after expiration of the present unlimited emergency.

Coffee Makes a Charge

Debate on the measure brought a charge from Representative Coffee (Democrat), of Washington, that the bill "is something the oil companies have wanted for 50 years."

"It all dovetails with this carefully built-up series of announcements designed to instill in the American people a fear that they might not have enough oil," he said.

The American Automobile Association told the Associated Press a ban on pleasure driving might affect 10,000,000 of America's 26,000,000 passenger cars. An A. A. A. official pointed out that the region served by tanker transportation included all of New England, large parts of New York State and Pennsylvania, all of New Jersey, the District of Columbia, parts of Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas and the Atlantic Coastal areas of Georgia and Florida.

Daylight Time Again Urged

It was emphasized, however, that it was not expected that 10,000,000 automobiles would be put out of use entirely, since the A. A. A. estimates that of all use of automobiles 60 per cent is "necessary driving." It is estimated further that on Sunday 20 per cent of all automobile use is necessary.

Keech Goes Back to Charles I., Decides New Airport Is in D. C.

the police chief of the Commonwealth of Virginia. The men who hold the concession for the big dining room in the Terminal Building wanted to know whether they were to abide by the beer-and-wine law of Arlington County, Va., or the more liberal ABC law of the District.

Back to 1632

The District Commissioners, to whom such queries were addressed, put the matter up to the city's attorney, Corporation Counsel Keech.

Keech began at the beginning, which was June 20, 1632, the date of King Charles' grant to Lord Baltimore. By the terms of the charter, the Maryland grant embraced the Potomac River, the islands therein and the soil under it to the high-water mark on the southern or Virginia shore.

After the American Revolution, the rights of the English Crown and Parliament became vested in the State of Maryland, and the grant to Lord Baltimore established the boundary between Maryland and Virginia as the high-water mark on the Virginia side as of the date of the grant.

The District of Columbia was established in 1791 by acts of cession from Maryland and Virginia. In 1846 that part of the District on the southern bank of the Potomac, including Alexandria, was ceded back to Virginia after many complaints that all the public buildings were being put up in erstwhile Maryland territory.

Thereupon the boundary between the District of Columbia and the State of Virginia became the high-water mark on the Virginia shore as of the date of the grant to Lord Baltimore.

Decisions and Opinions

Keech found court decisions and opinions that held that all natural or artificial accretion to the Virginia shore since 1632 has become a part of the District.

The Washington National Airport is largely "artificial accretion." In 1938, before President Roosevelt slashed through red tape and ordered a start on the "dream airport," the site at Gravelly Point was in large part a watery area. The first dredge went to work filling in this area on November 19, 1938. In the months that followed, four dredges were put to work, and ultimately there was evolved a 740-acre airport that is being hailed as "the finest in the world."

From the beginning, there has been intense speculation over how much of the airport area belonged to the District and how much to Virginia, and also over the question of whose liquor laws would prevail. It was contended that about one-third of the area was in the District and the other two-thirds in Virginia.

Legislation was proposed last year in the House which would have brought all of the airport within the District. Virginia officials fought it, and predicted that the Virginia Legislature would never approve it. The Civil Aeronautics Administration backed the legislation, and the word was passed around at the Capitol that President Roosevelt also backed it.

Virginia Taxes Cited

CAA officials argued that Virginia taxes would saddle the air lines with a burden that would necessarily result in a reduced revenue to the Federal Government, which expects to make the airport pay for itself in the long run.

The State of Virginia, it was pointed out, was collecting 3 cents a gallon for aviation gasoline sold at the Washington-Hoover Airport on a basis of mileage traveled over the State by the air lines.

The District refunds taxes on gasoline used in aviation, its theory being that the gasoline tax is really a road tax and that, since airplanes travel through the air, they should not be penalized.

The legislation to declare the airport a part of the District, which was in the form of an amendment to another bill, was shelved at the last session.

Corporation Counsel Keech, in the opinion he wrote recently for the District Commissioners, said that, while the high-water line of 1632 cannot now be definitely described, it appeared that all or a substantial part of the Washington National Airport was within the District.

Offers Recommendations

He gave it as his opion, therefore, that persons engaging in business or other activities at the airport should be held to be subject to the laws of the District.

Keech recommended that the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board be advised that the airport was within the District's jurisdiction and that the District liquor laws would prevail there.

He recommended that Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police, also be advised so that he could arrange for the issuance of commissions to the special policemen at the airport.

Finally, he recommended that John Groves, manager of the airport, be advised that the airport was considered to be within the jurisdiction of the District and that the District's laws would be in effect there.

The Washington National Airport is scheduled to open June 16, but the last has not been heard of his boundary dispute.

Coast Guard To Man Navy Transports

Describing as "transports" 21 merchant ships recently turned over to the Navy, Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau yesterday revealed that upward of 3,000 Coast Guard sailors would be transferred to the Navy to man the vessels.

Morgenthau's use of the word "transports" at a press conference was the first official intimation of what use would be made of 28 merchant ships the Maritime Commission has purchased. Twenty-one have been turned over to the Navy and 7 to the Army.

Morgenthau said at a press conference that this transfer of seamen was the cause of an Executive order sign by President Roosevelt Wednesday directing that an unspecified number of Coast Guardsmen should "operate as a part of the Navy."

The Treasury Secretary estimated that 700 of the Coast Guardsmen would man the luxury liner America, which the Maritime Commission requisitioned from the United States Lines last week and assigned to the Navy. The huge passenger ship was ordered to put back into the port of New York in the middle of a scheduled passenger cruise.

Release of ten Coast Guard cutters to Great Britain freed some men for the Navy work and others are being collected from Coast Guard stations throughout the country.

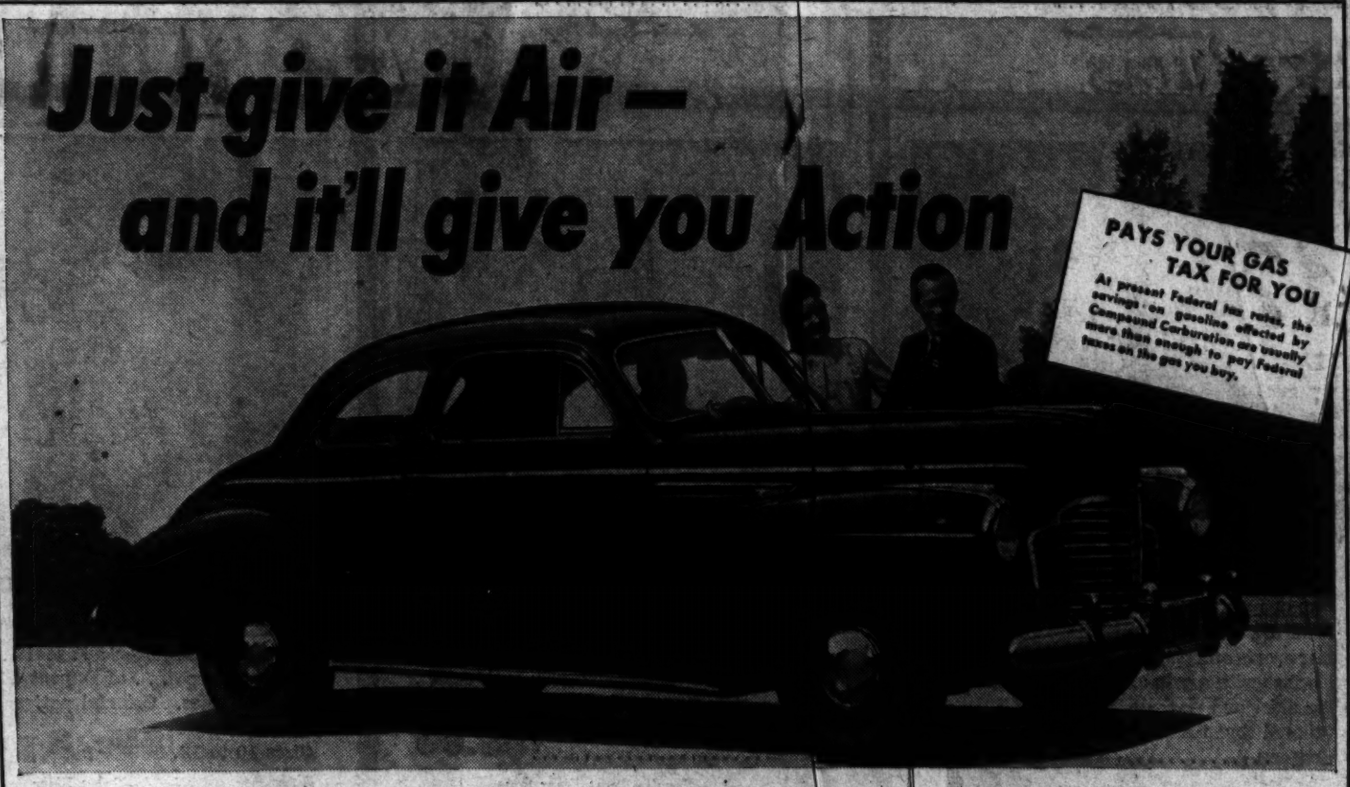
Just give it Air — and it'll give you Action



PAYS YOUR GAS TAX FOR YOU
At present Federal tax rates, the savings on gasoline effected by Compound Carburetion are usually more than enough to pay Federal taxes on the gas you buy.

MAYBE you didn't know that an efficient gas mixture for your car has about 9,000 parts of air by volume for every one part of gasoline.

That being so, you can see how important air-handling capacity is to your power plant.

Take this stunning Buick FIREBALL straight-eight, with Compound Carburetion† stepping up its horsepower.

Ordinarily, this engine purrs along sweetly with only one of its two carburetors functioning.

That's all you need for most everyday travel at your customary easy-going pace.

But step down on the gas treadle and what happens?

A second carburetor opens up. Doubles the air-handling capacity. Steps up power, lift, life, action. You go swooshing off like a scared boy with a bee behind him.

Would feeding more gas accomplish the same result?

After a fashion, yes — but why be spendthrift? Why feed your engine gasoline when what it wants is air?

Why indeed — when Compound Carburetion means power as you want it and when you want it — with gas economy that owners say runs as high as 10% to 15% over last year's Buicks?

For that matter — why get less room, less style, less comfort, less value than Buick offers at such little prices?

And why NOT see your nearest Buick dealer now — and at least get the figures on the car that's admittedly the big buy of the season?

$930 for the Business Coupe illustrated above, including Compound Carburetion, delivered at Flint, Mich. State tax, optional equipment and accessories — extra. Prices and specifications subject to change without notice.

†Available at slight extra cost on Buick SPECIAL models, standard on all other Series.

Soldiers Vital to Defense Jobs To Be Released From Army

Any soldier who held a key position in the defense industry prior to his induction or enlistment into the Army and whose services are now required by his former employer may be released from military service to return to his civilian position, the War Department announced yesterday.

The employer requesting the soldier's release must agree to reemploy the soldier immediately upon his release from the military service, and the fact that he is a key man specifically needed must be established to the satisfaction of the War Department.

Enlisted men and selectees so released from active military service, it was announced, will be transferred to the enlisted reserve as occupational specialists and in the event they leave their key positions they will be recalled to active service.

Top Age Limit of 27 Asked

Meanwhile, yesterday, other changes in the Selective Service Act were urged by Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, and Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of the draft.

A top age limit of 27 years for men to be drafted was advocated by Gen. Hershey. Legislators said the draft director told the Senate Military Committee at a closed session that this was the age limit President Roosevelt would fix under a requested amendment to the Selective Service Act.

The present draft ages are 21 through 35, but the amendment would empower the President to defer men" by age group."

Chairman Reynolds (Democrat), of North Carolina, said the Senate committee probably would approve the request at a session today and other Senators suggested that the definite limit of 27 years be written into the legislation.

Permanent Draft Urged

Gen. Hershey said all men who had reached 27 years on October 16, 1940, would be deferred under present plans, while an informed Army officer said that men above this age, already in training, probably would be excused if they so requested.

In testimony made public by the House Appropriations Committee yesterday, it was disclosed that Gen. George C. Marshall, Army Chief of Staff, urged Congress to make the draft law permanent.

Gen. Marshall also told the committee the Army has no plans to keep draftees in service beyond their one-year term. The Chief of Staff declared present plans were to start the National Guard from active service next September 15, when they will return to their States and probably drill once a week.

Thrill Night Is Planned for This Evening

With only the possibility of a heavy rain as an obstacle, everything was declared in readiness for the 1941 Night of Thrills to be given this afternoon and tonight by the Masonic bodies of the District at Griffith Stadium for the benefit of the Masonic and Eastern Star Home.

A last-minute inspection of the grounds last night by Thomas O. Valentyne, general chairman, and his aids revealed that the condition of the stadium would not interfere with the program providing it was not raining at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, when a baseball game will open the long program of events.

Valentyne said he expects a crowd of between 20,000 and 30,000 and added that tickets would be available through the day at the Masonic Temple and at the stadium.

The baseball game between the Heurich Brewers and O'Donnell's Grill, leading teams of the Industrial League will be followed by a short intermission and then the Chevy Chase Dairy Band will give a concert.

Miss Dorothy E. Clair will be crowned queen of the pageant at 8 o'clock, with Col. O. H. Saunders, commanding officer of Arlington Cantonment, officiating. Following the coronation a pageant will encircle the stadium, with many fraternal organizations participating. Brig Gen. Albert L. Cox will be marshal.

The pageant will be followed by an exhibition drill, with the following units participating: Washington Commandery, No. 1, Knights Templar, Reuben A. Bogley, jr., captain; Ranger's Drill Team, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, John C. Davis, captain; Arab Patrol, Almas Temple, Jesse E. Porter, captain; Grotto Drill Team, Kallipolis Grotto, Richard R. Umhau, captain; De Molay Patrol, Leland W. Warner, jr., captain; Bethel No. 1, Job's Daughters, Miss Ethel Read, captain; Bethel No. 2, Miss Evelyn Lawrenson, captain, and Bethel No. 5, Miss Margaret Miller, captain. The Alexandria Shrine Drum and Bugle Corps will play for the drills.

The four-ring circus, brought here from Philadelphia, will follow the drills.

Roosevelt Message on St. Lawrence Seaway Project

Holds Immediate Development Urgent Defense Need

Following is the text of President Roosevelt's message asking legislation to authorize immediate development of the St. Lawrence seaway and water power project:

To the Congress of the United States:

I recommend authorization of construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, pursuant to the agreement of March 19, 1941, with Canada, as an integral part of the joint defense of the North American Continent.

Production and more production is the keynote of our all-out race for national defense. Electric power and transportation are limiting factors in the production of planes, guns, tanks and ships.

The enemies of democracy are developing hydroelectric resource and every waterway from Norway to the Dardanelles. Are we to allow this continent to be outmatched because shortsighted interests oppose the development of one of our greatest resources?

Your action on this project will either make available or withhold 2,200,000 horsepower of low-cost electric power for the joint defense of North America.

Your action on this project will either open or keep bottled up one of the greatest transportation resources ever offered a people.

Both countries need the power. Both face power shortages which threaten to grow more serious as the demands of the defense program multiply with almost incredible rapidity.

Let us remember that it takes tens of thousands of kilowatt hours of electricity to produce the materials that go into a single airplane. Our present aluminum program alone calls for more than 10,000,000,000 kilowatt hours a year. It is constantly expanding with the need for more planes to outstrip the aggressors.

Steam power plant construction offers no substitute for St. Lawrence power. No steam plants can provide the large blocks of low cost electric energy required for certain essential defense industries. Furthermore, we are going to need all our capacity to produce steam power plant equipment to meet the tremendous demands which are growing in other parts of the country and to build power installations to drive our merchant and naval vessels.

Our defense production is a gigantic assembly line. Transportation is its conveyor belt. If raw materials cannot flow freely to our great industrial plants and the products cannot move continuously to the front, defense breaks down. Bottlenecks in transportation are as serious as shortages of power.

Expanding production is going to burden the railroads to the limit. We are expanding their rolling stock as fast as we can, but even the present orders for new cars and locomotives are competing for manufacturing capacity which could otherwise produce tanks and other items of heavy armament.

The seaway will help prevent transportation bottlenecks. It will provide a great highway to and from important defense production areas. It will cut by more than 1,000 miles the stretch of dangerous open whater which must be traveled by supplies to Great Britain and strategic North Atlantic bases. It will increase our capacity to build ships.

The Great Lakes today hold many shipways and dry docks, as well as resources of men and materials for ship building. They are bottled up because we have delayed completing the seaway. If we start the seaway now, scores of additional merchant ships may be built in coastal yards freed by transferring a portion of the longer-term naval program to the Great Lakes.

The St. Lawrence project must be expedited. No comparable power, shipbuilding and transportation facilities can be made available in the time required to construct this project.

In dealing with the present emergency, too many people have underestimated the degree to which our present resources will be taxed. We cannot afford to make any more mistakes of that kind.

I am advised that we can build the St. Lawrence project in four years. Under emergency pressure it may be completed in less time. I should like to agree with the people who say that the country's danger will be over sooner than that. But the course of world events gives no such assurance; and we have no right to take chances with the national safety.

I know of no single project of this nature more important to this country's future in peace or war. Its authorization will demonstrate to the enemies of democracy that, however long the effort, we intend to outstrip them in the race of production. In the modern world that race determines the rise and fall of nations.

I hope that authorization will not be delayed.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

Political Pressure to Block Big Contract Laid to Pepper

By the Associated Press

A House Military subcommittee was told yesterday Senator Pepper (Democrat), of Florida, used pressure on Government officials to prevent the execution of a contract for 3,600,000 gallons of asphalt to a Georgia concern.

Fred T. Bridges, vice president of Allied Materials, Inc., Atlanta, told the House group that because of the activities of Pepper and others, he could not get shipping instructions on the order although his company was admittedly low bidder.

The order involved was on asphalt to be used in the construction of runways at Eglin Field, Fla.

The question that arose was whether the Atlanta concern or the Pan American Petroleum Corporation was actually low bidder. Pepper in a Senate speech several weeks ago contended Pan American, bidding from its Pensacola, Fla., office, was entitled to the contract.

Bridges said "the leg work" against Allied was being done here by Roy Schroder, then Florida WPA administrator and now regional director at Atlanta. He said Schroder had told his subordinates in Jacksonville that anybody who issued shipping instructions to Allied Materials would be fired.

The WPA had agreed to obtain the asphalt for the Engineer Corps. The question arose over whether land grant railroad rates would make Allied's bid lower than Pan American's, which was to ship by barge.

Bridges said former Representative Millard Caldwell, of Florida, now connected with Pepper's old law firm at Tallahassee, had been retained by Pan American and was in Washington "doing a right smart of talking." He said Caldwell told a Georgia member of Congress he had a $15,000 fee involved in the case.

Finally, Bridges said, his firm agreed to a compromise by which Pan American got 1,800,000 gallons of the business and Allied 1,800,000. The latter was promised an additional 1,800,000 gallons on another job, he said.

Asked whether it was "political intervention" that prevented his getting the whole order, Bridges replied, "there's no question about that."

Earlier, Col. Earl T. Gessler, of the Engineer Corps, had testified that large deliveries as proposed by Pan American was "more convenient to the project." Questioned by A. W. Perry, committee counsel, Gessler admitted the controversy caused a delay of at least a month in getting work started.

Europe Might Make U.S. Model, Jackson Says

Albany, June 5 (U.P.).—Attorney General Robert H. Jackson said tonight that Europe should consider this country's federation of States as a model for any plan for permanent world peace.

"In her hour of penance, if one comes," he said, "Europe may well ponder upon the product of our own American legal culture, as setting forth the most hopeful example, even if not a perfectly adaptable one, for world organization."

Jackson spoke at the commencement exercises of Albany Law School, from which he was graduated in 1912.

U. S. Ships Land Goods in Egypt

Copyright by New York Times

Cairo, June 5.—United States ships which have arrived in the last few days at Egyptian ports have brought quantities of American merchandise for Egyptian use, it was revealed here today. Much interest is shown in importation of goods from America, particularly paper, of which there is a near shortage in Egypt.

Word has been received from the Egyptian commercial attache in Washington that a place will be reserved on the American ships for paper. The ships which already have arrived brought motors, machines, coal and medicines. Also on the list of articles which local Egyptian officials recommend for importation from America are typewriters, gum, rubber, spare parts for agricultural and mechanical machines and red wax.

Boys Can Help Save Freedom, Hoover Says

New York, June 5 (INS).—Former President Herbert Hoover declared tonight that the youth of America, through proper guidance, can stave off spread of degenerating forces sweeping "over the whole world" and aid in the preservation of freedom in America.

Addressing the thirty-fifth annual convention of the Boys' Clubs of America, of which he is chairman, Hoover called for vigorous expansion of the organization's program, saying:

"It is no use to believe that freedom will live unless it lives in the minds of boys. And the equally important responsibilities that freedom implies will not live unless they live in the minds of boys."

By the Associated Press

Defense officials disclosed yesterday that the Army has asked for bids on 6,000,000 pounds of South American canned corned beef.

Officials said that the bids had been asked by the Quartermaster Corps' office in Chicago. They were without information as to when bids would be opened.

The purchase was proposed, officials said, after the War Department had certified that the quantity and quality desired was not available in domestic beef.

SHOREHAM TERRACE SKATING. Come Monday, skating will be in order on the Shoreham Terrace. Helen Reynolds and her Eight Skating Girls will fly over the dance floor like mad. These lithe lovelies are fresh back from a South American tour which started in January and took them to Rio, Buenos Aires and other big centers where, we're sure, they were delightful "Good Neighbor" emissaries. All the Reynolds Girls come from Rensselaer, Indiana, and while they are in Washington it's certain Representative and Mrs. Charles Halleck, also of Rensselaer, will visit the Terrace frequently . . . Also on the Terrace next week will be dancers Woods and Bray, longtime Washington favorites, and Lew Hoffman, unusual trickster, who's also scored previous success at the Shoreham.

Helen Malcolm, novachordist, and warbling Virginia Joy are new arrivals at the Silver Fox and doing very prettily, thanks. Accordionist Nick Hope and pianist Tommy Johnson remain very much in the Silver Fox picture. But dynamic Lina d'Acosta is under the weather at Sibley Hospital, plans to vacation later at her home in Mexico.

RAMBLING CAMERA. Rainbow Room. Henry G. Larned, of the Adjutant General's Office. Friends also saying goodbye to Johny Muller, of the Social Security Board who's off to camp. And another party for William Harrison, of the Social Security Board who'll be married by the time you read this . . . King Cole Room. Commander Crawford, navigator of the U. S. S. Bear, just back from his long cruise to "Little America" off the South Pole. He was in King Cole the night before he sailed last fall, made a bee line for it as soon as possible after he returned.

THE VERY ODD MR. HELLMAN. Most people remember Bob Hellman for the gigantic piano harmonies he rolls out in the Neptune Room in conjunction with his li'l pal, Bertie. But for us,—we always think of him as the only person we ever saw who dunked cheese sticks in soda water. Also, he made his hankie into a sort of "white mouse" that jumped at us.

MARY LA MARR, now singing with Bill Strickland's band at the Lotus

HI HATTING. Carmela Lazari, all done up in shell and feather Mexican song in paso doble time, jewelry, is caroling a shining new It's called "El Reliciaro" . . . Oscar, of the Hi Hat and his assistant greeter, Dennis, are summerish as all get-out in new marine blue coats, white trousies and blue cravats . . . While you listen to Jimmy Summerville's Four M's play "Strawberry Blonde" you can sip Hi Hat's new cocktail of the same name. Its pink and frozen and has a strawberry on the top.

Tonight and tomorrow offer you your last chance to enjoy a terrific evening at Paul Young's until this spiffy spot reopens in September. Don't miss . . . Raestro Al Spieldoek is planning to spend the summer with his wonderful missus, Helen Forrest, who's singing in Chicago with Benny Goodman's band.

AT RESTAURANT "823." Violinist Jane Marlow is still wreathed with smiles over the wondrous surprise birthday party that was tossed for her at the home of pianist Oscar Heintze. All of the "823" staff was there and the presents stacked up to the roof of the rumpus room . . . Singer Van Taylor is losing sleep because he lives next door to the a-building Hotel Statler. When the steam shovels and what-not wake him up, he can't resist going to the window for his mezzanine view of the excavating activities.

1942 AT GLEN ECHO. Paul Kain's band is going great guns at Glen Echo again and it's already being prophesied that they'll be in the Spanish Ballroom again next year. This seems all the more likely because Paul is married and holds a 3-A draft classification.

LOVELY LISTENING. "Get the Mood Out of our Eyes,"—sweet as saccharin when done by those sweety-pies, the Three Smart Girls with Jack Coffey's orchestra in the Metronome Room . . . Any number done by Hal Yates in the Carlton cocktail lounge who always considerately pitches his music so that it's an accompaniment to conversation and not an interference . . . That comedy nifty, "I Have a Bone To Pick With You," when blued smartly by Eileen George, of the Anchor Room. . . . The dizzy "Russian Fantasy" violined by the Plymouth's Michel who claims that he's the only Russian fiddler who never played fiddle for the Czar . . . And both lovely looking and listening is the oriental dance being done at Lotus by Bryant, Rains and Young to the fruity harmonies of "In a Persian Market."

You can find more musicians at Mayfair than at the musicians' union. The other afternoon we met Al Spieldock and Louise Lee, from Paul Young's; Eddy Johnson, of the Silver Fox; Jack Norman, of Lotus' Continentals; Billy Gibson, from Glen Echo. In the general confusion we failed to get any new lowdowns on Mayfair's own Chordsmen.

HITHER 'N AROUND. Many large club and organization parties are being held in the spacious and air-cooled private dining rooms of Olmsted's Grill . . . The bouncey "Rumble Seat Cocktail" served in Ciro's Famous Village was invented by Mayor Ciro after a week of experimentation . . . Billy Bernath, small son of Maestro Bert Bernath, of the Pall Mall Room, is already learning to play the fiddle. He and his daddy do "Pop Goes the Weasel" duets . . . Dick Wilson, new band leader on the Starlight Roof, says that its view of the Potomac is only comparable to that of New York harbor from the Marine Roof of Brooklyn's Bossert Hotel . . . Gaillard, of the Madrillon staff says that he's raising black sweet corn on his farm. Yes, black sweet corn!

AT KAVAKOS' GRILL. That sweetly pretty brunette who often sings with the floor show or band is Lillian Morris. She's also Bill Kavakos' girl friend. And she can really "go to town" with any of the new numbers . . . Kavakos week-end floor shows start tonight, continue through Sunday.

NIGHTINGALE NOTES. Don Wilson, pianist-arranger of Rodd Raffell's band, calls everyone "Cousin." It's just his friendly, mid-West way . . . Saxist Harry Elkins' style is said to be copied by many musicians. He used to teach sax . . . Nightingale is open every night in the week except Monday.

The Gallup Poll

LaGuardia Popular With New York Voters As Parties Warm Up for Mayoralty Race

By Dr. George Gallup

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 5.—National attention will be focused in coming weeks on the mayoralty campaign in New York City, where Fiorello H. LaGuardia has indicated his willingness to be drafted for a third term. More than ordinary interest attaches to this race not only because LaGuardia's recent appointment as Civilian Defense director has increased his prominence as a national figure, but also because the New York election will be probably the outstanding political contest of 1941.

A survey of voters throughout New York City by the institute indicates that the mayor is popular with a majority of voters at this time. The institute's survey asked a representative cross-section of the city's voters:

"If LaGuardia runs for re-election as mayor next fall, will you vote for him or against him?"

The results are:

Persons saying they will vote for him	59%
Persons saying they will vote against him	26
Undecided	15

If a strong opposition candidate enters the field against the mayor it is possible that a large proportion of the present "undecided" vote will go to that candidate, and of course, some of those who now say they will vote for LaGuardia may, when the time comes, vote against him.

The mayor's popularity today compares favorably with his strength at the time of the mayoralty election four years ago. In that race, LaGuardia, running on the Republican, Fusion and American Labor Party tickets, polled 60 per cent of the vote, against 40 per cent for Jeremiah T. Mahoney, the Democratic candidate.

One of the most interesting circumstances in the present race is that though LaGuardia ran as a Republican in 1937, he has more strength today among the nearly 2,000,000 New Yorkers who voted for Roosevelt last November, than among the approximately 1,250,000 who cast their Presidential votes for Willkie in New York City.

The division of sentiment by parties in the survey follows:

	For La Guardia	Against	Undecided
Persons who voted for Roosevelt in 1940	71%	16%	13%
Persons who voted for Willkie in 1940	43	40	17

Despite the mayor's popularity with the rank and file of Democrats, the latest indications are that Democratic leaders in the five boroughs are at present opposed to indorsing him in the primaries, preferring a "regular" Democratic candidate. Today's survey is not an indication of how the mayor would run in a primary contest.

Text of Hull's Statement On Franco-German Relations

The text of Secretary Hull's statement on Franco-German relations, made in reply to inquiries at a press conference, follows:

We have received some preliminary reports from Adm. Leahy. Frankly, we are very much concerned about the situation which seems to be growing up. As you know, we have throughout our history been sympathetic to the true aspirations of Fnace. We have fought beside her. Her cause has been our cause. The principles of free representative government by the people have been the basis of the democratic institutions of both our countries.

In her present difficult situation we have given concrete evidence of our sympathetic friendship and thought for the well being of the French people and the French empire.

We have continued to maintain full and friendly diplomatic relationship with the French government at Vichy and have received its emissaries freely in this country. We have given the fullest and most sympathetic consideration to financial problems connected with the maintenance of French establishments not only in this hemisphere but in the Far East, both diplomatic and semi-diplomatic services.

Basic Policy Made Clear

We have, through Admiral Leahy, the American Ambassador at Vichy, consistently conveyed to the French government our understanding of the difficulties of their position and our determination to be of every assistance we could in solving their problems for the ultimate benefit of the French people.

We have made clear to the French government that a basic policy of this Government was to aid Great Britain in her defense against those same forces of conquest which had invaded and are subjugating France.

We have aided in the furnishing of food stuffs for unoccupied France and children's supplies are now being distributed through the American Red Cross, and we had planned the continuation of these services.

We have facilitated the passage of ships from this hemisphere to France's African colonies. We have collaborated with the other American republics as well as with the French government in safeguarding the welfare and maintaining the integrity of the French possessions in the Western Hemisphere.

In collaboration with the French government we have arranged for the maintenance of the economic stability of the French North African territories by providing facilities for increasing trade and the purchase from us of commodities urgently needed by the people of North Africa with a view to maintaining their previous status as an integral part of the French Empire.

United States Interest Explained

Happily, whenever such action was necessary, Admiral Leahy has been able to assure the Vichy government that this Nation had no other interest in any territories of the French Empire than their preservation for the French people.

We have given the most sympathetic consideration to the financial problems arising out of the freezing of French funds.

It has been the determined policy of this Government to continue friendly and helpful cooperation with France in the present difficult situation in which its action is restricted and limited by the terms of its armistice with Germany and Italy. This policy has been based upon assurances by the French government that there was no intention on its part to exceed the strict limitations imposed by those terms.

It would seem scarcely believable that the French government at Vichy should adopt the policy of collaboration with other powers for the purpose of aggression and oppression—despite indications appearing in our preliminary reports.

Such action would not only be yielding priceless rights and interests beyond the requirements of a harsh armistice, but it would at once place France in substantial political and military subservience and would also make her, in part, the instrument of aggression against many other peoples and nations. This could only be utterly inimical to the just rights of other countries, to say nothing of its ultimate effects on the liberties, the true interests and the welfare of the people of France.

We are therefore undertaking as speedily as possible to assemble every material fact and circumstance calculated to shed light on this alleged course of the French government.

M. Michael Edelstein

Seldom has the passing of a House member brought greater shock to his colleagues than has the death of Representative Edelstein. Those present who had listened to his impassioned plea for racial tolerance sat literally stupefied at the announcement that that effort had cost him his life. Their shock was naturally heightened by the poignancy of the event. Only a few minutes before he had risen in defense of a fundamental American concept, refusing to yield the floor until he had had his say. To many, there seemed no need for eulogy. By his last public words he pointed the way: "Whether a man be Jew or Gentile, he may think what he deems fit."

Moral Order

Lord Halifax's high-minded address at Columbia University on Tuesday will help undo the impression created in this country by Mr. Eden's statement of Britain's war aims. Mr. Eden seemed to foreshadow a fettered Germany after the war. It is understandable that a people who are periodically subjected to the irruption of militarism in Germany should think of ways and means of keeping the German people in leading strings. But that is no way to insure what Mr. Eden calls a "moral order" in Europe in place of the Nazi tyranny. Lord Halifax had a better concept of the foundation of the moral order when he drew a distinction between Hitlerism and Germany. "The destruction of Hitlerism, and all it stands for," he said, "must remain our first war aim, for there is no hope otherwise of recovery."

There is nothing unforgiving in this cardinal item in war aims. If the object of war is a more perfect peace, the ground must first be cleared by the overthrow of those conditions which breed war, and the setting up in their place of the conditions which will foment peace. To win a real peace in this war there must obviously be some faith in the German people, since, as the great English jurist, John Selden, said, "good faith is the essence of all relations." Of course, time will be needed to restore such faith. Even after victory guarantees no doubt will be necessary, but if the goal is forgotten, there will never be the establishment of the moral order which President Roosevelt seeks and which Mr. Eden indorsed.

It is what Hitler stands for more than Hitler himself that has prevented the German people from living in harmony with their fellows. Hitlerism is the apotheosis of a philosophy of the state which has run through German philosophy back to Hegel and before. It says, in brief: the state is god, and god is the state. This philosophy decked out in action by a bristling militarism has had two consequences. First, it has shattered all pre-existing ties between man and man across the frontier, so that nothing is allowed to be common between them—neither religious convictions nor standards of conduct. This is the negative side of the nihilistic force in the body politic of Europe which is Hitlerism. The positive side has come with the erection of myths of superiority which have welded an esoteric unity within Germany out of the destruction of the old European unity. In their manifestation under Hitler these myths have become a war cry against other groups of men as the only insurance of survival till complete domination has been achieved.

All this makes a negotiated peace with Hitler out of the question except as a breathing spell for Adolf Hitler. Let those who talk peace with Hitler answer the question whether they would commit this country to disarmament just on the basis of Hitler's signature on a peace document. The notion is fantastic. We should have to keep on building bigger and better armaments; but Hitler, with a continent of slaves back of him and a vast superiority in technical and material resources, would always be ahead. Eventually we should have to bow to his Diktat. And the reason that we could never beat our swords into plowshares as long as Hitler and Hitlerism hold sway in Germany lies intrinsically in the nature of the evil thing that has come out of Germany. As Lord Halifax said, it is the antithesis of the spirit of our way of life no less than of the British way. Theirs is the denial of the human spirit, ours is the elevation of it—a refusal to "invest the state with attributes distinguishing it from the sum of the individuals whom it represents." But, when it is overthrown, we must all participate, Germans and all, in making our restored liberties the opportunity for reintegrating our world society according to those moral principles which were common among men before the state was made god.

Untenable Position

The unreasonable conduct of the Puget Sound lumber workers was given striking emphasis yesterday when the National Defense Mediation Board effected a settlement of the dispute between lumber workers and their employers in the Columbia River area. Working conditions in the two areas are similar. The agreement accepted by representatives of the Columbia River lumber workers is substantially the same as that proposed by the Mediation Board to the Puget Sound group. The Columbia Basin unions cooperated wholeheartedly with the board in response to President Roosevelt's appeal of May 27. Leaders of the Puget Sound strikers have denounced the board in reckless and abusive language after refusing to accept its fair and well-reasoned proposal.

At the suggestion of the board the Columbia Basin employers and employes settled most of their differences among themselves. One point—that of union protection—was referred to the board for recommendations. Negotiators for both sides have now agreed to recommend acceptance of the compromise which the board worked out. Here is an excellent example of collective bargaining under the pressure of an emergency. The disputants went as far as they could in settling their own differences, meanwhile continuing production essential to national defense. In loyalty to their country they then accepted the good offices of the Mediation Board to make their agreement complete.

In the light of this record the epithets hurled by the radical branch of the International Woodworkers of America fall of their own weight. The Mediation Board needs no defense against such an attack. The public knows that the vehemence of this denunciation is intended to cover up the refusal of the leaders of a large and powerful union group to cooperate in the defense program along with the great majority of American workingmen. No amount of abusive language, however, can disguise the lack of patriotism in this defiance of the Government in the present grave emergency.

This episode recalls the letter written by President Wilson to the striking machinists at Bridgeport when they refused to abide by an award from the National War Labor Board after agreeing to arbitration of a dispute with their employers. "Your strike against it (the award)," Mr. Wilson wrote, "is a breach of faith calculated to reflect on the sincerity of national organized labor in proclaiming its acceptance of the principles and machinery of the National War Labor Board. . . . To strike against the award is disloyalty and dishonor." Advising the men to return to work, the war President bluntly told them that if they did not they would be denied employment in any war industry in their community; they would also be denied aid from the Employment Service and any claims for exemption from the draft because of their special skills would be disregarded.

In several respects the case of the Puget Sound lumber workers is not strictly comparable to that of the Bridgeport machinists. This letter was written when the United States was at war. The present National Defense Mediation Board is not patterned after and does not follow the same procedure as did the War Labor Board. Yet the problems confronting the two boards are similar, as are the problems confronting the Nation then and now. No group of employes can expect to go its own way, ignoring the national interest in this tumultuous period, without incurring a sharp rebuke from the President, the public and responsible union leaders.

Mosul Regained

Mosul is back in British hands. But this does not mean that the Nazis, who arrived in Mosul when the Iraq struggle began, have lost and the British have regained a great reservoir of oil. Actually, while there is oil underneath Mosul, it has never been exploited, the chief reason being that it requires a very costly process of refinement to make it usable. The principal wells in Iraq are not at Mosul but well to the south, in the vicinity of Kirkuk. Had the Germans been able to seize and hold Kirkuk the gain to them would have been very great even if they had not succeeded in transporting any oil from that vicinity. At least they would have been in a position to cut off oil that before the Iraq fighting was being sent to Haifa for the ultimate use of the British fleet. Apparently some damage was done either to the pumping stations or the pipe lines between Kirkuk and Haifa, for during the Iraq struggle no oil reached that port. Probably that damage can now be repaired. The fact that the British have succeeded in reoccupying Mosul suggests that they dominate the surrounding territory, including Kirkuk. Thus they are doubtless in a position to effect a junction with the Turks to the north and they will have an additional base for operations in Syria should that be necessary.

Steel Expansion

At long last the steel industry has been asked to plan a 10,000,000-ton increase of productive capacity. The request by the OPM, along with a promise of Government financing, is a clear-cut victory for the expansionist school of defense officials who have maintained for upwards of nine months that only a major increase of capacity will see the country through the critical times ahead. How much steel will be needed is still unclear, for the simple reason that none can safely predict the volume of military and civilian requirements. The obvious assumption, borne out by the experience of past months, is that steel demand, due to the expanding defense program, will continue to rise considerably beyond estimates which producers have considered more than generous. Capacity by the end of the year is reckoned at some 91,000,000 tons. But this is 6,400,000 tons short of 1942 requirements, according to the findings of Gano Dunn, senior consultant to the OPM's production division. Moreover, Mr. Dunn's report to the President on May 28 figured the military share of steel capacity at 25 per cent, or roughly 23,000,000 tons. It is now admitted that this will not come anywhere near meeting defense requirements.

Similarly, civilian demand, rising in proportion to increased national income, is certain to continue mounting—at least for the duration. Leon Henderson, who has charge of allocating steel after military needs have been covered and who is the dominant force behind the expansion plan, is not willing to wait and see what happens to civilian supplies. He has already approved use of steel to build additional capacity, on the theory that the country can better stand a shortage now than later. This is a very effective way of disposing of the producer's argument that a 10,000,000-ton expansion would divert over 4,000,000 tons from present output. Actually, the most significant thing about the OPM decision is that it emphasizes the emergency as a long-term proposition, requiring nothing less than an all-out effort over a period of years. Now that the decision has been taken, it is up to producers, regardless of their personal judgment, to cooperate.

Fate of Yugoslavia

Since the collapse of military resistance in Yugoslavia all of that nation has become occupied territory. A portion of it, however, has been set up as a separate entity under the name of the "Independent State of Croatia" and given an Italian princeling as its hereditary ruler. All the Yugoslav government can do at present is to protest, and this it has vigorously done through a statement by Dr. Constantin Fotitch, its Minister in Washington. The protest is clearly intended for the record. So is the response made by Mr. Sumner Welles, the Undersecretary of State, in which he reiterates "the indignation of this Government and the American people at the invasion and mutilation of Yugoslavia by various member states of the Tripartite Pact."

The ultimate fate of Yugoslavia will not be decided by such diplomatic exchanges. The time when any such hope could be indulged has long since passed. The fate of Yugoslavia, like the fate of Norway and Poland and the Low Countries and all the other captive nations of Europe, depends on the outcome of the struggle between Germany and England. It is this struggle, also, in which the United States is manifesting such vital concern. It involves every country, every people, no matter how distant they may be from the theater of war. So far as this Nation is concerned, we now have definitely linked our fortunes with those of the embattled British and their allies, including the Yugoslavs. The message to Dr. Fotitch is an indication that the United States has not forgotten the small nations whose sovereignty has temporarily been extinguished—that we are not prepared to recognize these German conquests. In this respect it is a further wedge driven between the United States and the Third Reich.

CORN SONG

There is no strength like the strength of maize,
No green like its green when it is growing;
Where else is there so much for so many days,
So much for so little sowing?

I have seen a summer of sun turned to fowl and cattle,
Eating themselves over, and over, and over—
Tassel to tail, leaf to loin, spike to wattle,
And stubble again into clover.

Corn is the miracle of sun and seed:
A poem of prayer and chlorophyll and toil;
And who but God would have thought to feed
The earth by sun and the sun by soil?

Letters To The Editor

All communications must carry the writer's name and address, though pen names are permitted at the editor's discretion. In fairness to other correspondents, letters should be held to 300 words. Letters are subject to condensation.

Land Of Sport

Who was it that said that in order to make this world a safe place for democracy, one of the first things to do would be to abolish "isms"? That person, whoever he was, was absolutely right with but one exception. Hitlerism, communism, fascism, socialism, and other organizations which have in mind the destruction of all save themselves—all should be wiped out. Only one "ism" should remain and that is Americanism.

America is a wonderful place; people don't take up arms to settle an argument over the ownership of a strip of land; they don't send ultimatums to their neighbors. Everything is settled amicably and to everyone's satisfaction.

America is a land of sports. Europe is a land of war—also sports, in a manner of speaking. However, the youth of Europe is deprived of real sport. To them, preparation for war is much more important. The art of firing a gun, the effectiveness with which a bayonet might be used, the art of spying, marching, plodding in mud, rain, snow—all this is sport—but, oh, how grim!

If you want to settle anything, shoot it out. And, apparently and quite obviously, that is the method being taught the boys of Europe. But over here in the good old U. S. A., the battlefield is the athletic arena. A contest takes place and the fittest, of course, comes out on top. But there is no humiliation or death for the loser. No, he gets another chance and he isn't afraid to show his face again in public. What a contrast in Europe!

When nations are warring, boys of 'teen ages are carrying deadly weapons in combat. A hand-to-hand encounter can result in only one manner—death for the loser. A hand-to-hand encounter in this peaceful Nation of ours sometimes affords the loser a larger ovation than the winner.

Don't erase Americanism. Thank God for America, where one can view an athletic event, take part in one, and come back for more with no fear. PAT ALLEN.

Washington, June 3.

Labor And Defense

Although a few employers continue to buck against the bit the weight of informed opinion today says that it is organized labor which is running out of control. With care I have read and listened to reasons given by some union officials why it is all right for their members on defense work to strike. A few frankly say in effect that now is labors' chance "to let the public be damned." A few beat around the bush with immature explanations. A few show deliberate mendacity.

Basic responsibility for this situation of threatening our national safety must be laid to the present Federal Administration, which has justly encouraged labor's rights but has drawn away from insistence upon labor's duties. The President overestimates the voting strength of such unions; by no means are all union members in favor of such tactics. The President has underestimated the rising resentment of the people against such tactics.

An all-out drive toward national defense cannot continue to make concessions to organized minorities. The absence of a firm hand now may well mean a steel fist later.

The Caesars

Anent that "Italian Void" that has Mr. Trazzare puzzled no little, let it be said at once that Little Caesar, unlike the mighty Julius, let his gaze stray across the Rhine once too often. Caesar the Greater had his fling in Gaul as we know from his commentaries, but there never were any "hands-across-the-Rhine." It seems amazing that he, who would have restored Imperial Rome, could have been so careless in his reading of history. PAUL SEWELL.

Washington, June 2.

First Consideration

My father fought in the Civil War and I commanded a battalion of infantry in the Argonne, although I was never a major. I have two boys about to finish school and soon to become available as soldiers for Uncle Sam. I would be ashamed to see them shrink from military service and I would want to go with them if this really were a war for our defense.

I would rather see England win, but our first consideration is the good old U. S. A. We should become strong and maintain a status of peace to conserve our strength. We are in no position to start out to police the world. Our statesmen have more important things to worry about than freedom of the seas. They would lead our attention away from their domestic failures and build a tyranny here. We should maintain freedom in America—freedom from an approaching Bolshevist regime and bankruptcy on the part of our own Government. We want a return to democracy, and that is worth fighting for. Freedom of the seas is comparatively unimportant. W. E. SIMPSON.

Elkridge, Md., May 29.

Chief Justice Hughes

In the summary of the distinguished career of Chief Justice Hughes, reference was omitted to his long religious life. In 1894 he conducted a men's class in the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, New York. Many of the young men of that day, under the influence of Mr. Hughes, felt and held to a rational but inspiring interest in personal religion. After the pressure of duties carried him to other parts of the State, he was succeeded by John D. Rockefeller, jr.

In Their Order

The writer's personal view is that first in our efforts for our defense program we should drop most every other item until we get at least 100,000 bombing planes, 50 per cent the equal and as heavy as anything now used in the European war.

Next in importance should be at least 100 lightly constructed submarines and submarine chasers. It has been proven that battleships, etc., of those large and expensive fighting craft can be destroyed very quickly.

Next in importance, in the writer's view, should be a heavily constructed highway from the rock-bound coast of Maine to California, for the transportation of heavy mechanized machines, etc. Our present road construction and bridges are not heavy enough to take care of such machines in an emergency.

P. H. GEOGHEGAN.

"Will Of The People"

Despite the fact that the American people are overwhelmingly opposed to war, as revealed by latest polls, are we going to permit a relatively small group of politicians to force us into the foreign inferno? Inasmuch as war has not been declared, just why are attempts being made to silence free speech and why is the radio "muzzled"? The Senate and House are apparently stuffed with robots who are not hearkening to the will of the people but to their "master's voice."

Liberty Bell, it's time to ring anew! E. K. GOLDSBOROUGH.

Of Queens And Bees

The "Queen of Defense" of Minnesota is shown in The Post this morning. Some time ago we used to have "Queen of the May," then later the "Apple Blossom Queen," and the "Cherry Blossom Queen," and not quite so fragrant—the "Tobacco Queen." Really hasn't this "Queen" business gotten to the slopping-over point?

Don't you think with this grand showing we are having of national patriotism in our defense-production effort we deserve another "Queen"? We need a "Queen of Sabotage," "Strike Queen," and for our health improvement—"Vitamin D Queen."

The F. B. I. is now hunting for the "Communist Queen," and "Spy Queen." The bees carry on a very efficient business, yet they only have one "Queen." They work very hard all day and you never see any strikes or shutdowns in their business. Each one works for the common good, and nighttime is the only letup in their industry.

Let us imitate the bees and get rid of the drones, and have an all-out effort of workers "busy as bees."

The Nation's Health

The writer notes with interest the effort of the Nutrition Conference to build up the Nation's failing health. It is too bad that we must wait for a war to become concerned over the 46 per cent of our citizenry who are unfit for service. Is it possible in this rich land of ours that the Government is just becoming conscious of the fact that the people are malnourished and something must be done in the name of humanity, or is it more likely that the recent reformation movement is spurred by the realization that the less meaty a citizen is, the less cannon fodder he will make?

The milk situation is also very interesting. Is it possible that our babies have been deprived of milk all these years, and this fact is just now coming to the attention of the press and public?

The surplus commodities we should be able to buy if we were paid enough are being denied us, or dumped on the underprivileged in the form of charity. Is not this a concrete example of just how our system works to the detriment of 46 per cent of our draftees and their babies who are unfit for service?

Welsh Americans

The letter of William Owen (Post of June 1) represents a Welsh-American viewpoint toward intervention in the war. A letter signed by Lewis Owen (Herald-Tribune of recent date) expresses the other side of the Welsh-American viewpoint toward isolation from war. In which case it is interesting to observe that the great Welsh clan, descendants of Owen Ap da Howel, the first King of Wales, are divided on the issue of how best to defend the America in which they live.

Wars, Past And Present

My children's ancestors have participated in every armed conflict in this country since 1638, with the exception of the war with Spain. That is history.

Due to disabilities incurred in combat during the last war I am unable to serve in the armed forces now. That is current history.

My only son is voluntarily serving with the Asiatic Fleet at the present time. That is patriotism.

The United States Government allows his life, and that of all other members of our armed forces, to be endangered by former convicts, Communists, bundists and other labor leaders. That is a damn shame. H. C. KINCAID.

The Post Impressionist

More Of Rejections

The collecting of mere rejection slips, as told in this column by Mr. Paul Oehser recently, is all very well, of course, but it cannot satisfy the true connoisseur. The number of variations of the theme "Your contribution does not meet the present requirements of our magazine" is, after all, finite. Then, too, from the collector's view, there is another difficulty. After a while the rejection slip begins to be replaced by the note of acceptance. "We have read your manuscript with much interest and are using it in our June issue." However pleasing this may be to the creative nature, it provides little to gratify the collector's instinct.

It is here, however, that you are on the edge of a great new field. You have appeared in a dozen or so magazines—in two or three, indeed, that were quite beyond your most optimistic expectations of a year or so before. But your day as a collector of rejections is not over. On the contrary, you are now ready for the real piece de resistance of your collection: the rejection of the manuscript of a book.

No longer is it a printed slip or a penciled note. The rejection of a book is a more serious matter. To say "no" to a book requires a carefully written letter, running to two or three pages.

If you have written a novel, or even a book of short stories, there is always the possibility that it will be accepted for publication. So to be sure of getting the collector's item that you are after, it is well to start with a book of poems. It doesn't matter how many magazine editors have liked your poems, or how many "Notes on Contributors" columns have described you as "a young poet of unusual ability," you needn't worry about a publisher accepting your manuscript.

But if you want a real rejection of the manuscript itself, don't make the mistake of asking publishers if they want to see it. They'll tell you not to waste the postage. Very nicely, of course, but firmly. You'll get a personal note with a signature you can't read (doubtless to discourage further correspondence) that goes something like this:

"As you know, poetry in book form is extremely difficult to sell, and while we do publish it, because we think that it is a form of literature which definitely should be kept in the public attention, we have good reason for thinking that the best market for poetry is in the periodicals. We shall, of course, be glad to give your poetry a careful reading if you wish to submit it to us, but under the circumstances described, we can't hold forth much assurance that we will accept it, even if, as is undoubtedly the case, its quality is very high. I hope that this straightforward response to your letter will guide, and not discourage you."

The straightforward response doesn't discourage you, of course, but you do try another publisher. And you have learned to send your manuscript on its way unheralded.

This time you get a real rejection. Your poetry has been read carefully, and there are quotations from the readers to prove it. It is good poetry, to be sure, but in these troubled times . . . It is here that circumlocution is at a real premium:

"I am really very sorry to have to report to you that in spite of the many nice things which our poetry readers had to say of your work, we have been forced to the conclusion that we will not be able to publish your book. I hasten to add that in more normal times the decision might have been a quite different one, but right now with the uncertain future lying ahead we are having to be extremely conservative in our commitments in this branch of literature, which is, alas, none too lucrative even in auspicious times. To temper this verdict and to show you that our advisers were indeed interested in your work from a literary point of view, I am going to pass on to you a few of their remarks, a thing which we do not often do. One of these men said: 'There are these qualities present: imagination, an ironic temper, feeling and a fair technique.' Another said: 'I think his straight lyrics are his best work. He has fresh and vivid stuff here.' I hope these kind words will persuade you to show us another collection—perhaps including the best of this present one—in, say, a year's time. We are genuinely interested in your work and you may be sure that we would bring to the consideration of a second collection of verse our enthusiasm."

If you feel that this doesn't complete your collection, and send your stuff off again, you may get a letter which gives the game away. What publishers really want is prose. The form is even friendlier:

"It is most difficult for us to convey to you the pleasure we felt in reading your poems and at the same time to report that we cannot undertake their publication on our list. We seldom publish poetry and so are at loose ends when we have the opportunity of considering such fine work as yours. All of our readers were enthusiastic, yet none felt the compulsion to take up a cudgel in your favor. One reader's description was 'Almost flawless but I don't feel the special qualities to cause rare excitement.' I can only ask you to keep us in mind, and to be assured that whatever you send in the future will receive the most personal and careful attention. We would be especially happy to see your prose work, in the event that you are inclined to that form."

There isn't much variety after this, and you are probably beginning to grow weary of the collection anyway. Maybe you'll send the poetry on its way once or twice again, but sooner or later you'll begin to work on a novel.

President's Problem

By Ernest K. Lindley

LINDLEY

THIS MUCH can be said of Ambassador Winant's report: some accounts of it have been exaggerated. The position of the British is serious, but not desperate. An exact appraisal of how serious it is requires not only a judgment on a mass of detailed military, naval and industrial facts, but shrewd insight into two factors which cannot be weighed exactly: propaganda and morale.

On the side of propaganda, the British, with respect to American opinion, continually have been on the horns of a dilemma. If they depict their position as desperate they play into the hands of the Lindberghs who say that Great Britain has already lost the war and that we are foolish to gamble on a dead horse. If they put on an optimistic front, they dull the sense of urgency in this country—and also, in a way, play into the hands of the extreme isolationists by indicating that further aid from us is not needed.

THE BRITISH have had great difficulty in fathoming just what admixture of pessimism and optimism is proper to obtain the maximum of assistance from this country.

Of course, they want us in the war as a full-fledged ally. Any people engaged in a life-and-death struggle would want the United States as a shooting ally. Last summer, after Dunkerque, many important American citizens subscribed to various petitions that we should declare war. Their judgment cannot be denounced offhand as wrong. A prompt declaration of war might have kept the French navy and the French possessions in Africa and Asia Minor fighting on the side of the British. It might have made possible the formation of a solid Balkan bloc which would have delayed the arrival of the Nazi legions menacingly near to the eastern gate to the Mediterranean and the oil fields of the Middle East.

But American opinion was not prepared for so drastic a step. And, even if it had been, it is extremely doubtful if the President would have suggested it. It was a grave question then whether Britain would survive the months of July and August. When he saw that the British were determined to fight on, the President gambled on them to the extent of some of our old World War stores of arms, plus some ammunition. When the end of August arrived, he took another gamble: the trading of 50 old destroyers.

AFTER THE ELECTION Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, returned to this country with the announcement that the British had to have financial help if they were to carry on the war. A concerted campaign began to compel this country to underwrite the war financially.

In this there was a great measure of propaganda. And the President knew it. By transferring to American hands their property holdings, not only in this country but in Latin America and elsewhere, the British could have continued to finance themselves for a long time. The President was fully aware of this, as he was of the way the British pulled the wool over the eyes of our Government during World War I, and as a result emerged from that conflict with scarcely any impairment of their vast overseas financial empire.

The President, nevertheless, presented his lend-lease plan, which in operation—so far—is an outright gift plan. He was persuaded that even though the British were not in immediate financial straits, they would eventually require our financial underwriting. And he was persuaded that unless such an underwriting were forthcoming, the small and quiescent, but influential, appeasement groups in England would come to the front.

NOW, ONCE AGAIN, the President is being subjected to the same type of propaganda. Privately, the British are putting the worst possible face on their predicament. Outwardly it looks almost as if the President were being told: come in shooting, or we will have to make terms with Hitler.

It is the President's tremendous responsibility to decide, or divine, just what the facts are. On the military side they are not bright, although much brighter than they were a year ago. In fortifications and weapons and ammunition the British are several times better able to defend the British Isles than they were in June, 1940. Their position in the Mediterranean is bad, but no worse than it was thought to be a year ago. Then, indeed, it was widely supposed that they would soon lose the Mediterranean entirely. It was not until their spectacular victories over the Italians that hope began to arise that they could hold Alexandria and the Suez.

In the North Atlantic, owing to the increasing losses of shipping, the British are hard pressed. The swing of the Vichy government toward what amounts to active subserviency to Hitler increases their anxiety—and ours—since it may bring the French navy and the remnants of the French air and ground forces into action.

WHAT IS MOST difficult to calculate is British morale. So far it has been superb—almost miraculous. But it would not be surprising if it were weakening under a barrage of reverses in the Mediterranean and of accumulated damage on the seas and in the industrial and shipping centers of England. If Hitler suddenly comes out in the open with peace terms, which he may well do—terms which outwardly are not unattractive—and threaten, as the alternative, the utter destruction of Great Britain, what will be the effect on British morale? Positive action on our part may be necessary to prevent a caving in of British determination to fight.

The President is faced with the frightening problem of judging not only the cold military facts involved, but of distinguishing between and summing up what is real and what is propaganda in the reports from Ambassador Winant and his other observers abroad concerning such intangible factors as civilian morale and the tides of politics.

Steel Men Agree to Raise Output by 10,000,000 Tons

By Frank MacMillen

Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, June 5.—Some of the leading steel men of the country appeared virtually agreed to raise the output of their mills by 10,000,000 tons annually in a gigantic $1,000,000,000 plant expansion program, it was reliably learned today.

Following a series of conferences among top executives of large and small companies in the industry, which discussed a request of the Office of Production Management for the big expansion, usually well-informed steel men said at least the 10,000,000-ton figure, and perhaps more, would be added to capacity of plants, which are now running at top speed, in the greatest building program in the industry's history.

The conferees, following a meeting of the executive committee of the American Iron & Steel Institute and of the steel industry defense committee, recently formed industry-wide defense cooperation body, made no announcement.

But steel men in a position to know said leaders of the industry would go to Washington shortly to inform defense officials the 18-month to 2-year job of raising the steel-making power of the Nation to near 100,000,000 tons annually would be started as soon as technical details could be completed. Capacity is now about 86,000,000 tons a year, with several millions tons more now under way.

The gigantic job of construction, however, involving a step-up in facilities all the way from the coal and iron mines, through the ore boats, coal cars, coke ovens, pig iron furnaces and up to the steel furnaces and finishing mills, presented many thorny problems to the executives in today's meeting, it was reported.

And there were said to be steel men who still thought it doubtful if more capacity were needed. These rested their case, it was said, on figures in the recent report of Gano Dunn to the Office of Production Management, in which it was estimated military and shipbuilding requirements in 1942 (the proposed new plants could not possibly be in production before late 1942), plus export requirements, would still leave 67,000,000 tons for civilian use, more than has ever been used in any one year.

The Newspaper Guild

I THOUGHT you might like to hear how things have been going in the long campaign of the Muscovites, or commies or crummies, as they are variously known to the Americans in the newspaper business, to destroy the American Newspaper Guild, which was organized a few years ago as a union of editorial workers for the avowed and limited purpose of improving wages, reducing hours and protecting us ink-stained wretches from the economic pogroms of the front office. It used to be customary to slaughter the editorial hands in hard times, because we had no union, whereas the box-cap trades in the mechanical departments were protected by union agreements, so, back in the NRA days, this editorial union started in Cleveland and spread.

Well, soon after it was organized the Muscovites began to creep in, and the first thing most of us knew we were being jerked around by a lot of persons unknown to our trade who addressed our meetings in a Weber & Fields accent and called us rats, finks and scabs or "company men" if we so much as said that, in a choice between an American employer and a Russian unioneer, we would string along with the American. If you called a crummy a crummy you were a red-baiter and disrupter of our dear union, and our people were pretty badly confused for a while, because we wanted to be broad-minded and even were willing to stand for a little pushing around for the sake of the organization.

A LOT of the Americans have quit the guild since then, but, on the other hand, a lot of Americans have been forced into the fold by the firm coercion of the union shop contract, but comparatively few of the members nowadays are journalists, because the Communists put over on the original group an expansion program whereby many workers in departments other than the editorial became eligible for membership. The Communists sold our people the idea on the plea that these poor fellow-slaves had no union and that we would never be able to sleep nights if we preserved our snobbish exclusion. So we let them in, and in no time the editorial workers, who pioneered the union, were just a little bunch of nobodies, badly outnumbered by the rest and driven damn near nuts by the ingenious political and parliamentary harassment of the bolos, who even got up little trick groups of their comrades who were not newspapermen at all but had voting rights equal to ours.

The Americans have been onto this for a couple of years, however, and, although a few intellectual bleeding-hearts, who wouldn't say Joe Stalin was a Communist lest the comrades call them red-baiters, have been insisting doggedly that communism is no issue, nobody is fooled on that point any more. Everybody knows communism is the issue, and the crummies have shown that they would wreck the union rather than let go—and probably will wreck it, too. They have condemned in typical Moscow trials one group of absentee defendants who got fed up and resigned only to discover that, like the Communist Party, the guild may kick you out but does not recognize resignation. Having quit the guild, the defendants said the bolos had no right to try them and refused to put in any defense, so, like Leon Trotsky, they were tried in their absence and sentenced, anyway.

But more lately the crummies tried to break up an old, strictly editorial union of journalists on a Jewish paper called "The Day," by calling a guild strike at the plant and made another very serious false move. The Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, which is an A. F. of L. organization, has a guild unit that is anti-Communist, and this unit challenged the justice of the guilt strike against "The Day," whereupon the crummies in control of the guild cited the garment worker's unit for lese majesty or words to that effect, and now threaten the union with loss of its c'arter merely for expressing an opinion.

BUT—and this will slay you—the guild is C. I. O., so this garment workers' unit is a C. I. O. union doing business with its deadly enemy, the A. F. of L. and, moreover, the bolos who control the guild tried to prevent the unit from obtaining a separate charter, according to its plain constitutional right, because the bolos wanted to keep these anti-Communists in a Communist unit known as the labor press group, which is one of the bolo constituencies.

And do you know the reason they gave for refusing to let the garment workers' unit have its own charter? This will knock you looping. They said it was a company union dominated by the boss, who is no less than Dave Dubinsky himself, the head of one of the biggest unions in the country.

But now you have to stand back to get the bold outlines of the situation, which reveal that an organization which purports to be a union or guild of newspaper workers engaged in regular American journalism is all balled up over an attempt by the Communists to organize a little foreign language paper whose type looks more like music than letters and is about to try for treason to the Kremlin a lot of people who are not newspapermen at all but house-organ people in the garment industry.

That is what the Communists have been doing to the American Newspaper Guild.

Drastic Measure

By Mark Sullivan

Congress Ponders An Extreme Bill

SULLIVAN

THERE IS a bill in Congress. It provides that the Government can seize anything you have, your factory, your farm, your checkbook, your automobile, your safety razor — literally anything. In the language of the bill, "property of any kind or character, real or personal, tangible or intangible." Just seize it and take it—no court proceeding, no argument. In the language of the bill, "requisition and take over." The Government will pay you whatever it says the thing is worth. If you are not satisfied with the price the Government fixes, then the Government will pay you 75 per cent of the price, and sometime later you can bring suit to determine how much you shall get.

As a war measure it is extreme; but there is, in a way, precedent for it. That is, there would be precedent—if we were actually at war. In a state of actual war, actual fighting, it has not been unusual for the head of an army to seize the goods of citizens, their horses, their cattle. In such case, it has been the practice to give the citizen a receipt for what is taken, and then let him recover the price later in some kind of proceeding.

IN THE PRESENT situation, a material factor is that we are not actually at war. This measure does, when we are not at war, what might be justified if we were at war. The difference between "at war" and not actually at war, is a formal declaration of war by Congress.

What is the purpose of this bill? It is not enough to accept the purpose as set forth in general terms in the bill itself. What we need to know is, what specific purpose was in the minds of the persons who thought up the bill? What was it they wanted to do that they could not do unless this bill is enacted?

Since commotion arose over the bill, various purposes have been put forth. Apparently some private owner of an airplane, used for pleasure or convenience, was not willing to sell his plane to the Government. Also it has been said the purpose was to seize toolmaking machinery. One feels the purpose may have been broader than these examples.

FOR THE BEST answer about the purpose of the bill, the best authority is President Roosevelt. He, when questioned at a press conference, said the purpose was to get delivery of defense orders. As an example, he alluded to the Allis-Chalmers plant, at which defense orders were delayed for many weeks by a strike. Apparently the purpose of this bill is to give the Government power to seize such a plant as Allis-Chalmers when there is a strike.

This looks strange. When there is a strike, don't do anything about the strikers—(the Administration has been conspicuously reluctant to do anything against strikers). Just seize the plant and operate it as a Government plant. That way, the penalty is put on the owners of the plant; they are required to give up their plant. The strikers don't give up anything. (Except that later on the strikers, and all workers, will find they have lost something precious—this way of getting around strikes would turn out to be a long step toward the totalitarian form of society and Government.)

Against this bill, Congress resists. One feature that disturbs Congress is that when property is taken there is no provision for later returning it to the owner. The property is taken absolutely, and, in the words of the bill, "temporarily or permanently." Congress wonders why. If the Government takes Allis-Chalmers or any other plant, why not return it after the emergency is over?

CONGRESS wonders if a purpose of this bill, or an effect whether consciously intended or not, is to take over industries and keep them—in short, to bring about a permanent system of Government ownership and operation of industry. As it happens, this bill was not drafted by New Dealers. It was drafted and indorsed by conservative men who came into the War Department temporarily to help in the war. They may either have been infected by the atmosphere of the New Deal, or affected by the traditional point of view of the Army about what is expedient in time of actual war.

What really disturbs Congress is recollection of what the New Deal has attempted in the past, long before war came into the picture. Step after step taken by the New Deal has been in the direction of economic and governmental revolution. As much as four years ago, Miss Dorothy Thompson wrote, about Mr. Roosevelt's court bill and other measures: "These bills . . . add up to a consistent picture. And the picture is of a tremendously centralized government, with a power and authority vested in the President, not far from equal to the power and authority vested in Mussolini and Stalin."

AND AS it was expressed by Mr. Walter Lippmann, June 26, 1937: "I feel, let us hope mistakenly, that he (President Roosevelt) really does have a plan and that he is determined to execute it . . . It is a plan, as I see it, to gather together an irresistible power over the economic life of this country, and to consolidate that power in the hands of his own following . . . irresistible power personally directed . . . These fears, I regret to say, are shared by men who have occupied high places in this very Administration and in the confidence of Mr. Roosevelt himself."

Recollection of this past record of the New Deal is now a tragic impediment at a time when some centralization of power is desirable for the purpose of war.

Ultimatum To Vichy

By Barnet Nover

Marshal Petain Must Choose

NOVER

THE STATEMENT on Franco-German relations given out to the press by Secretary Hull yesterday lost nothing of its force by being directed at, rather than to the Vichy government. It was, for all intents and purposes, an ultimatum.

Through it Marshal Petain and his colleagues have been warned that the choice they are about to make is not merely a choice between Germany and Great Britain, but through that very circumstance a choice also between Germany and the United States.

The statement avoided direct and specific threats. But it is evident that should the men of Vichy disregard Mr. Hull's warning, relations between Washington and Vichy will be broken and the Petain regime will be regarded simply and solely as a tool of the Third Reich.

IT IS IN LARGE measure so regarded now, and has been since the armistice of last June. Hitherto, however, Vichy has manifested a certain degree of resistance to the more extreme of Hitler's demands. Hitherto Vichy has been the slave of the Third Reich, not its willing accomplice. But the men of Vichy have recently given evidence of being ready and even eager to go further and to cooperate actively with Germany in the struggle against Great Britain.

There is something so utterly monstrous about such a possibility that it defies credulity. Germany has been France's hereditary enemy. Thrice during the past 70 years have German troops invaded French territory, bringing death and destruction in their wake. But neither the Germany of Bismarck nor the Germany of William II constituted so grave a threat to the French nation and French civilization as does the Germany of Adolf Hitler. Yet while France scorned the various efforts of Bismarck and William II to have both countries bury the hatchet (the bitter memory of the loss of Alsace-Lorraine stood in the way), and unhappily refused, until it was too late, to extend the hand of friendship to the struggling German republic, the men of Vichy are prepared to collaborate with the Nazis.

IN PART, their decision is attributable to the fact that the armistice which Petain and his colleagues agreed to has enabled Hitler to make life intolerable for the French and force them to make concessions they would not otherwise make. This is the most charitable explanation of the Hitler-Darlan agreement. But it does not tell the whole story. For if it did, the Vichy regime would not have been as careful as it has in keeping hidden the facts and implications of that agreement. The French will not be taken into Vichy's confidence until after the accomplished fact.

In addition to the pressures from the Reich, Vichy's readiness to collaborate with Hitler must be attributed to the gamble of Petain and his colleagues that Britain would not long survive the fall of France, to their profoundly anti-democratic sentiments, and to the Anglophobia which has long characterized some of them, notably Admiral Darlan.

ON JUNE 18, 1940, when there were still French armies in the field but at a time when the defeatists had begun to achieve the upper hand in the French government, Gen. de Gaulle broadcast an appeal to the French people urging them to continue the fight.

"I tell you," he said, "that our France is not lost. For France is not alone. She has a vast empire behind her. We can unite with the British Empire, which commands the sea and which is continuing the struggle. We can utilize to the full, as England is doing, the enormous resources of the United States . . . Whatever happens, the flame of French resistance must not and shall not be extinguished."

He was right insofar as his own efforts were concerned and those who rallied to his banner. But Petain, Weygand, Darlan, Laval and their fellows thought otherwise. They did not believe the struggle should or could be continued either in France or from the empire. They jailed those who had upheld a contrary opinion. They later made it practically a capital offense for anyone to join the De Gaulle movement. France, they said, wanted and needed peace so desperately that no price was too great to pay for it. So they threw their nation on the tender mercies of Adolf Hitler.

BUT THERE is no peace in the world today. And there has been no peace for France. She is as much in the struggle as though her armies were still on the march. And now that struggle is beginning to spill over into her empire. She cannot be neutral, no more than we can. She must choose sides—as we have done.

There is, for instance, the problem of Syria. If Vichy were faithful to its obligations the French troops in that mandated area would be ordered forcibly to resist any attempt by Germany to use Syria as a base of operations against the British. There is not the slightest indication that Vichy is prepared to offer such resistance. The signs all point the other way, namely that there will be no French resistance to German penetration of Syria, only resistance to a British effort to prevent Syria from becoming a German bridgehead for an assault on Palestine, Iraq and the Suez Canal. The latter possibility was one which Secretary Hull undoubtedly had in mind when he declared that a policy of collaboration of the kind which Vichy was contemplating with Germany "would not only be yielding priceless rights and interests beyond the requirements of a harsh armistice, but it would at once place France in substantial political and military subservience and would also make her, in part, the instrument of aggression against many other peoples and nations."

Such action of Vichy's part would be destructive of Franco-American friendship. By becoming the ally of the nation the United States regards as its enemy Vichy would fall into the enemy category as well.

'A Woman's Face,' Capitol, Is Play of Warped Minds

Joan Crawford, Melvyn Douglas and Cast Of Stars Redeem Grim Psychological Study; Major Bowes Anniversary Revue a Hit

"A WOMAN'S FACE." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of a play by Francis de Croisset, adapted to the screen by Donald Ogden Stewart and Elliott Paul, starring Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, with Conrad Veidt, Osa Massen, Reginald Owen, Albert Basserman, Marjorie Main, Donald Meek, Connie Gilchrist, Richard Nichols, Charles Quigley, Gwili Andre, Clifford Brooke, George Zucco, Henry Kolker, Robert Warwick, Gilbert Emery, Henry Daniell, Sarah Padden and William Farnum. Directed by George Cukor. At Loew's Capitol Theater.

A WOMAN'S FACE, it seems, can be made the symbol of spiritual and psychological, as well as external, disfigurement and thus the basis of drama that is grim, stark and not too pleasant to contemplate. It is so with "A Woman's Face," disclosed for the first time yesterday to capacity audiences at Loew's Capitol Theater.

BELL

"A Woman's Face" is a screen play of twisted mentalities and criminal enterprises that culminate in a trial for murder. The story is told by the flash-back method, the progress of events being depicted to visualize the testimony given on the stand by witnesses who trace the whole morbid career of Anna Holm and the accomplices with whom she has sought to pay a vengeful debt to society.

Horribly scarred by a fire set by her drunken father when she was a small child, Anna grows to womanhood hating all of mankind for their better fortune, their pity and their sometime ridicule. Blackmail is the comparatively placid medium of plunder in which she is engaged as the picture opens. Because Torsten Barring, renegade nephew of an aged steel baron, is the first to show her kindness, she plots with him to murder the 4-year-old grandson who stands between him and inheritance of the family fortune. It does not come out that way, but there still is little relief from the consciousness that it is a pretty sordid business—even after Anna has dispatched her evil genius and pledged her future to the plastic surgeon who healed her wounds and rid himself of a promiscuous wife.

Cast Is Flawless

In addition to being handsomely produced and photographed, "A Woman's Face" has been cast with impeccable judgment. It is, to all intents and purposes, an all-star group of principals that M-G-M has assembled for this adventurous excursion of Joan Crawford's away from "glamour" roles. Miss Crawford brings intense realism and an unerring suggestion of social revolt to her role. The evil implications continue effectively even after skillful surgery has removed their cause. The character is one not many actresses would wish to portray. In the two opposite roles, Melvyn Douglas, as the eminent surgeon, with the feather-brained wife, and Conrad Veidt, as the maniacal nephew, contribute contrasting character studies that are powerful in their restraint. Among the supporting players little Richard Nichols, one of the more precocious of the cinema's child actors; Albert Basserman, as the Swedish baron, unconscious of the conniving that is going on under his very nose; Osa Massen, as the faithless Vera Segert; Henry Kolker, as the judge; Marjorie Main, as a surprisingly subdued housekeeper, and Reginald Owen take first rank. Donald Meek, Connie Gilchrist, George Zucco and Henry Daniell are foremost among the others in their fidelity to the spirit of a play that is wholly without what usually is denominated "comedy relief."

Major Bowes Gives a Party

Major Bowes' Sixth Anniversary Revue, on the stage, is thickly peopled with amateurs who have proved their metal during the years since 1936. They are too many to be considered individually, despite the fact that every act scored a tumultuous hit at yesterday's first performance. Particularly liked seemed to be the Harmonica Bees, Tony Russo, with his pneumatic musical "instruments"; the Bertay Sisters, acrobatic dancers, and Dave Barry, with a fine line of impersonations—at least, I hope that's who it was. The 12 turns comprising the revue provide great variety and a degree of professionalism considerably above that displayed by earlier "amateur" units on the same stage from the same source.

The Fox Movietone News and usual house features, with the Rhythm Rockets and Lynn Allison having a finger in the goings-on, complete the bill.

MELVYN DOUGLAS AND JOAN CRAWFORD
in a pivotal scene in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's production of "A Woman's Face," which yesterday opened its first Washington engagement on the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater. The costars are supported by one of the most distinguished casts of the season, led by Conrad Veidt, Albert Basserman, Osa Masson and Master Richard Nichols

Leonard Lyons:

New York, June 5.

CHATTER: Admiral Yarnell, who always has advocated a be tough attitude toward the Japanese, has been called back into the service . . . Mayor Kelly, the Democratic boss who worked for the defeat of Wendell Wilkie last November, will be the official greeter for Willkie, when the latter goes to Chicago Friday night, for the All-Citizens Committee meeting . . . New York City's newest Surrogate will be Supreme Court Justice Francis McGarey, who will replace the retiring Surrogate Wingate . . . A man who was to have been a victim of Murder, Inc., was placed in protective custody yesterday, under $50,000 bail. He's Joel Clark, a linoleoum dealer. He will testify against "Red Rose" Pantiel, the only woman in the gang who will be tried for murder.

LEONARD LYONS

HEAT: The recent warm weather has been taking its toll of Gertrude Lawrence, who has such a difficult role to perform in "The Lady in the Dark." To ease Miss Lawrence's weariness, and to make the heat backstage less oppressive, electric fans have been installed in her dressing room, fire doors have been kept open to permit the breeze to enter—and everything possible has been done. . . . After last night's performance, Natalie Schaefer noticed that Miss Lawrence no longer has polish on her finger nails. . . . "Oh, yes—I removed the nail polish," Miss Lawrence languorously replied. "It's much cooler without it."

CORRECTION: Donald Macgregor recently wrote an article for "This Week," about Representative Sol Bloom. He submitted the article to Bloom, before publication . . . The Congressman corrected only one part of the story—the report that Bloom always wore a gardenia in his lapel. "That isn't true," Bloom assured him—and so Macgregor eliminated that paragraph. In due time, the shortened article was published. It was illustrated by a photo of Representative Bloom—wearing a gardenia.

PENALTY: Larry MacPhail, the manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, has fined his infielders, Dolph Camilli and Cookie Lavagetto, $500 each. He placed the fines when he discovered that they had been taking flying lessons at Floyd Bennet Field and making flights at that airport . . . MacPhail assure them that the fines will not be rescinded—and warned their teammates that any infraction of the no-private-flying rule would bring a $1,000 fine.

IMPROVEMENT: George T. Bye, the literary agent for Eleanor Roosevelt and the President, was one of the White House guests who were present during the President's broadcast. After the President concluded—with his declaration of an unlimited emergency—the guests shook his hand and congratulated him . . . "Mr. President," Bye told him, "I have a suggestion. Let's make that declaration retroactive for one year."

In Hollywood

Hollywood, June 5.

In 1935 Fritz Lang was the Nazis' ace movie director, and completed a picture into which he'd injected his own democratic ideals. He was notified that the minister for propaganda, Herr Goebbels, wished to see him. Fritz presented himself with misgivings, but Herr Goebbels explained that because they considered him Germany's ace, the Fuehrer was entrusting him with a picture based on the "glorious ideals of the Nazi Party."

HOPPER

An hour later Fritz was on a plane bound for Paris. Since then he has had two offers from Germany to return and make pictures.

Fritz always wanted to answer those offers in a fitting way, and at long last he's succeeded. That answer is his current picture, "Man Hunt." The story is about a British big game hunter who sets out alone to kill Adolph Hitler. Though he fails, the finish shows him once more in Germany, stalking his prey—and that should set the Nazis right back on their heels.

Gary Cooper and Walter Brennan, who've teamed in so many pictures, started as extras 16 years ago. They were in the lineup together at the casting window and both were taken on.

"I don't remember the name of the picture," says Walter, "but we trudged over a Hollywood version of the African veldt together, and "Coop" wore a long, flowing makeup beard. He's the same guy today he was then, except for the beard."

Columbia's "You'll Never Get Rich" certainly has what it takes, with Fred Astaire, Rita Hayworth, Cole Porter's music, and now Bob Benchley

Ida Lupino, who hates to cook and is one of the few women honest enough to admit it, got caught up with in "Ladies in Retirement." For five days now she's been preparing a large meal—and no faking allowed! . . . Victor

Army Air Film Rates 'Wings' At the Palace

By Richard L. Coe

"I WANTED WINGS." Paramount picturization based on the story of Eleanor Griffin and Frank Wead from the book by Beirne Lay, Jr., adapted to the screen by Richard Maibaum. Sig Herzig and Mr. Lay, costarring Ray Milland, William Holden, Wayne Morris and Brian Donlevy, with Veronica Lake, Constance Moore, Harry Davenport, Phil Brown, Richard Webb and Richard Lane. Directed by Mitchell Leisen. Reviewed Thursday afternoon. At the Palace Theater.

That enthusiastic devotion which has made man a citizen of the sky is both grippingly and beautifully caught in "I Wanted Wings," the Palace's new film—grippingly because of its sense of reality, beautifully because of the clean glory of its sky-scenes.

There's little obvious banging on the propaganda desk in this defense-conscious film. Instead, four well-drawn characters are placed in the authenticity of the Army's West Point of the Air, all of them imbued with the splendid fervor of the true pioneer. For, above all things, "I Wanted Wings" makes one conscious that the sky's limitless horizon is not even in sight and that to reach that unknown new world the spirit of the trail-blazers is vital.

The Army's Randolph and Kelly Fields in Texas and March Field in California are the settings. A quartet of forceful male stars—Brian Donlevy, Ray Milland, William Holden and Wayne Morris—are the leading players. Two earthbound ladies, Constance Moore and the highly-touted Veronica Lake, are important to the story, but far more important to the film is the aerial photography of Elmer Dyer and the never-flagging direction of Mitchell Leisen.

Realistically-Conceived Characters

Two years ago three young men arrived at Randolph Field. One was a noted playboy, heir to a fortune, but withal an able sportsman and an apparent gentleman. Another was a football player, not an All-American, but a hero of the Big Ten and mindful of nothing but football and his will to fly. The third was a garage mechanic who somehow had managed to get the admittance credits for Randolph, yet was unable to forget the trollop who had told him he'd never be anything but a failure. They all wanted "Wings."

Their training periods, their commanding officer and their relations with each other form the story. They don't all come through—to the lasting glory of the chap who wrote the original story after his own 1,500 flying hours with the Army Air Corps. One is killed through his hedge-hopping. Another loses his commission. The third does get his wings and eventually a worthwhile girl.

And now we come to the widely publicized Veronica Lake. To say she is a luscious bit of rarity is understatement, but there is a self-consciousness about her characterization that belies the arrival of another Jean Harlow. Constance Moore is pleasant as the good influence.

Four Stars Score

But it is Milland, Holden, Morris and Donlevy, who handle the central roles and all are superb at their assignments. Holden has the most demanding role and he manages his softer scenes with telling conviction. Morris is something of a surprise as the football player who's a natural flyer and this should revive his faltering screen career.

Altogether, if you're the slightest bit air-minded—and who isn't?—"I Wanted Wings" will strike you as an engrossing revelation of the wonders of the sky. Its timeliness will be brought home by a mock air raid over blacked-out Los Angeles, the all-important discipline of the Army will be illustrated by a court-martial scene and the technical details of the newer bombers will be endlessly fascinating. But most of all, you'll admire the strong devotion three young men bring to the beauties of flying.

"Flies Ain't Human," a Popeye cartoon; "Memory Tricks," by the tireless Pete Smith, and the latest news-clips complete the bill.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, June 5 (INS).—I have often wondered why, with the cry for leading men, John Loder was allowed to go unnoticed. He is a good-looking boy and a capable actor. When we were in London we saw a great deal of him, and although he had received very little attention in Hollywood, he had real success there. Maybe the breaks are going to be with him now, for John Ford has cast him as Ianto, one of the brothers in "How Green Was My Valley."

PARSONS

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Barbara Bennett telling her pals that she and Addison Randall are planning a Mexican elopement; Errol Flynn telephoned his father in Belfast, and finally, after two days, succeeded in telling him about the arrival of his son; Hedy Lamarr has rented the Pepi d'Albrew house for the summer; Joan Crawford and her little Christina returned today, per schedule, for her next movie; Judy Canova is vacationing in Honolulu, having made up her mind in a few hours to visit the tropical isle.

The new girl with Rudy Vallee at the Hollywood Tropics is Ann Fredericks; Carolyn Lee, the Paramount Glamour Girl, who kisses the boss, Y. Frank Freeman, celebrated her seventh birthday today; was she pleased with her birthday gift—a lapel watch!

Betty Field says she knows she is in the movies now because she's rented a house with a swimming pool.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

LaGuardia, D. C. Defense Chiefs to Meet

District defense chiefs, headed by Engineer Commissioner Charles W. Kutz, will discuss local civilian defense activities today at a meeting in Baltimore with New York's Mayor LaGuardia, new head of the Office of Civilian Defense.

LaGuardia, on a tour of the nine corps areas for a first-hand glimpse of community preparedness programs, will reach Baltimore at 1:30 p. m. for the conference. The meeting will be held in Baltimore's City Hall.

Accompanying Gen. Kutz will be Capt. H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways and executive officer of the District Defense Council; Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent and chairman of the council's committee on civil protection, and Robert Bondy, chairman of the committee on welfare and consumer interest.

LaGuardia has emphasized that he does not intend to outline any particular plan, but wants merely to learn for himself what is going on in the various localities.

District authorities said they would present a detailed description of all local activities, including preparations for the forthcoming registration of volunteer workers on June 10, 11 and 12.

Washington is the first city to call for city-wide registering of volunteers since the unlimited National emergency was proclaimed by President Roosevelt.

The District representatives also will be given an opportunity to exchange ideas with officials of other nearby jurisdictions. At today's meeting will be Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor of Maryland; Mayor Howard Jackson of Baltimore; Maj. Gen. W. S. Grant, commander of the third corps area and the mayors of leading cities in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia.

Parley to Map New Tax Plan For D.C. Today

District leaders in Congress last night scheduled a conference for today on a new tax program for Washington.

Money to be raised by proposed new taxes, it was said, may be needed by the District to meet expenditures for municipal services under the defense program.

Representative John F. Hunter (Democrat), of Ohio, chairman of the Fiscal Affairs Subcommittee, and Chairman Jennings Randolph of the House District Committee are scheduled to participate in the conference.

They will have before them a bill drafted by the legislative counsel which carries a provision to require expenditure of funds raised by new taxes for capital improvements in the District.

The bill proposes a 25-cent boost in the present real estate tax of $1.75 per $1,000 and a 1-cent increase in the present 2-cent gasoline tax. It was estimated that the proposed increases would yield an additional $2,500,000 from realty and $1,500,000 from gasoline levies.

Representative George H. Mahon (Democrat), of Texas, whose appropriations subcommittee today will start marking up the District's $55,000,000 appropriation bill, has stated that all "essential" defense needs of the city can be met out of revenues anticipated from existing taxes.

District legislative leaders believe, however, that if the city continues to grow at its present rate under the defense program, more money may be needed either during the coming fiscal year or in 1943.

In addition to the draft bill, Hunter's subcommittee has before it legislation calling for more drastic boosts in District taxes. Representative Rees (Republican), of Kansas, has introduced a bill to raise the realty tax to $2.50. Representative Springer (Republican), of Indiana, is sponsor of 4-cent gasoline tax bill.

Byrd Expedition's Biologist to Speak

Herwill M. Bryant, biologist with the recently returned Byrd Antarctic Expedition, will tonight speak on "With the Penguins in the Antarctic," in Rock Creek Park near Sixteenth and Kennedy Streets Northwest.

A former Washingtonian, Mr. Bryant is the son of Dr. Harold C. Bryant, former director of Research and Education, National Park Service. His talk is the first of a series which will be held throughout the summer by the National Capital Park campfire program.

Small Loan Bill Reported to House

House consideration of the District small loan bill Monday was scheduled last night after formal report by the District Committee of a measure intended to end loan-shark practices here.

Existing law, the committee told the House, discourages employment of legitimate capital in the small loan field in Washington by limiting interest rates to 1 per cent a month on loans up to $200.

The bill proposes to raise the allowable rate to 2 per cent on loans of $500 or less.

These Summer Drinks Cool, Nourishing Too

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

ICED drinks do more than furnish the cooling qualities necessary on days when the temperature is on the up-grade. Often it need be only the tinkling of ice in a glass containing a long cool drink that is needed to hurdle a conversational barrier. Besides creating a friendly atmosphere with their cooling qualities, many summer drinks contain a goodly amount of nutrition.

Martha Ellyn.

When you drink a frosty lemonade, you not only feel cooler, but actually are cooler. Science tells us that vitamin C—in which lemons as well as oranges abound—actually mitigates the effects of heat on body tissues.

Drinks containing milk are also nutritious as well as being smooth, creamy and cool. In the winning recipes of this month's Post recipe contest—whose theme is Cool Summer Drinks—there are a variety of tempting, nutritious and thirst-quenching drinks suggested. No need just to squeeze a lemon, drop in some sugar, ice and water and think you have done your best at producing a really delicious summer drink. There's infinitely more to the summer drinks than something to reduce one's temperature, for drinks can also be nutritious and colorful. Here are the winning contestant's offerings:

Miss Janet Campbell, 2629 Thirty-ninth Street Northwest, who in recent months has so successfully handled the publicity for the Latin-American Lecture Series in Washington, now carries her enthusiasm for our Good Neighbors into a cool drink for the summertime. Miss Campbell wins the first prize of $10 for her suggestion for a Spiced Fruit Drink, made with carbonated beverage to give it extra zip. The winning recipe follows:

Spiced Fruit Drink—Combine 2½ cups orange juice and 1 cup pineapple juice with 2 cups water and ½ cup sugar. Add the grated rind of 1 lemon, 1 tablespoon strained honey, 6 whole cloves, ½ teaspoon grated nutmeg and ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Mix well and chill for 1 hour in refrigerator. Strain and just before serving, add 3 pints of chilled ginger ale. Serves 12.

The way to make a mint julep has long been a point of controversy—that is, to bruise the mint, chop the leaves, or leave them whole. Also there are some who contend that a julep is not a julep unless frosted in metal. Miss Helen Richter, 24 Rhode Island Avenue Northeast, winner of the second prize of $5, avoids the difference by making an Orange-Mint Julep. This is not the potent variety that loosens tongues, but rather the kind that is cooling and eases the reserves of the socially diffident. Here is Miss Richter's winning recipe:

Orange-Mint Julep—Combine 1 quart of orange juice, juice of 6 limes, ½ cup chopped mint leaves and 1 cup powdered sugar. Chill for one hour. Strain. Pour over crushed ice in tall glasses. Fill with carbonated water. Stir gently. Garnish with mint and orange slices. Serves four.

With graduation just around the corner, Mrs. Grace F. Heihle, 3422 South Dakota Avenue Northeast, suggests a Graduation Party Supper Menu on which appears College Punch. For this excellent recipe Mrs. Hiehle wins the third prize of $3. Here is her recipe for College Punch:

College Punch—Mix 1 large can crushed pineapple with ½ cup sugar, 2 quarts of water, 1 quart white grape juice, juice of 12 lemons, juice of 12 oranges. Place in refrigerator to chill. When ready to serve, pour on block of ice in punch bowl, add 1 quart of stiffly frozen orange ice balls. Decorate punch bowl with frosted mint leaves. Serve one orange ice ball in each glass. The orange ice can be cut in small cubes instead of balls. Mint leaves are washed and while wet are dusted lightly with powdered sugar, then placed in refrigerator under unit until ready to serve. The sugar hardens and gives a frosty appearance. Makes 36 punch glasses full.

Nectar Soda is a drink that has long been popular in New Orleans and the southern parishes in Louisiana. This delicate pink soda with a very distinctive flavor wins one of the ten $1 prizes for Mrs. Leonce Legendre, 4916 Westway Drive, Friendship Station. If you are interested in a delightful summer drink try Mrs. Legandre's winning recipe which follows:

Nectar Soda—Boil 2 cups granulated sugar and 1 cup water for 5 minutes. When cold add 2 tablespoons almond extract and 1 tablespoon vanilla extract and enough red vegetable coloring to make a deep red sirup. The amount of coloring needed depends entirely upon the brand used as some colorings are stronger than others. Put 2 or 3 tablespoons of the sirup depending upon the sweetness desired) in a tall glass. Add 3 tablespoons of evaporated milk—or its equivalent. Add crushed ice and fill glass with soda water. Stir well and serve. Vanilla ice cream may be added for Nectar Ice Cream Soda.

Mrs. Pauline T. Crow, 1910 T Street Southeast

Cuban Buttermilk—Peel 1 large banana and mash with fork. Add ½ cup crushed raspberries, 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 teaspoon lemon juice, and mix well. Add 6 cups buttermilk, stir until well mixed and serve. Makes six servings.

Mrs. Albert Day, 206 Auburn Avenue, Bethesda, Md.

Russian Coffee—Fill 6 tall glasses half full of chipped ice. Add a tablespoonful of vanilla ice cream to each. Add 2 tablespoons sugar to 6 cups strong coffee and pour it into the glasses. Whip ¼ cup whipping cream, adding 1 tablespoonful of sugar and ¼ teaspoon vanilla. Top coffee with the whipped cream. Serves six.

Miss Regina Torricco, 1622 N. Lexington, Arlington, Va.

Tropical Nectar—Mix together 1 pint each of papaya juice, apricot juice and pineapple juice and sirup made by boiling 1 cup sugar with 1 quart water for 20 minutes. Then cool. Add slices of pineapple and orange. Fill tall glasses ¾ full, add 1 tablespoon mint sherbet. Garnish with orange and pineapple slices and serve. Serves 12. To make the mint sherbet, cook 2 cups sugar with 4 cups water, ¾ cup lemon juice, 1/3 teaspoon oil of peppermint and ½ teaspoon green vegetable coloring. Freeze in mechanical freezer or in ice cube trays. Beat thoroughly when frozen to a mush and continue freezing until set.

Mrs. George T. Glorius, 2606 Twenty-fourth Street Northeast

Rhubarb Beverage—Cook 3 pounds rhubarb with 6 cups water (washed and cut up without peeling) until tender. Strain. If it does not make 6 cupsful, add enough cold water to the rhubarb pulp, simmer a few minutes, then strain again. Add 1 cup sugar and ½ cup honey to the hot juice, stirring until dissolved. Add 1½ cups orange juice, ½ cup lemon juice and ¾ cup unsweetened pineapple juice and chill. At serving time add 1 quart of ice water. Serve with small pieces of fresh fruit in the glass. Makes 12 servings.

Mrs. John D. Swisher, 61 W. Washington St., Hagerstown, Md.

Orange Buttermilk Eggnog—Break 2 eggs into a bowl and sprinkle with a few grains of salt. Beat with rotary beater until light. Add 1 tablespoon sugar and beat until well mixed. Add 1 cup orange juice and 3 cups buttermilk and stir. Pour into four tall glasses and serve.

Miss Marion Yeatman, 2608 Tilden St. Northwest

Maple-Coffee Eggnog—Pour 1 cup scalded milk over 1 tablespoon coffee, and allow to stand 5 minutes, then strain. Add ¼ cup maple sirup and cool. Beat 1 egg until thick, add first mixture and blend well. Serves two.

Mrs. Leo W. Scott, 3819 Upton St. Northwest

Ruby Delight—Fill tall glasses ¾ full of finely chopped ice. Add 1 tablespoon honey (more if quite a sweet drink is desired). Fill glasses with juice of crushed pomegranate. To prepare pomegranate, peel, remove all membrane, then crush seeds in food press or wooden masher, strain through fine sieve. One good sized pomegranate will serve six persons. Makes a very clear; sparkling and delicious drink.

Mrs. Kathleen Jones Dame, Salisbury, Md.

Orange Delight—Squeeze juice from 5 large oranges and 2½ lemons. Add 5 teaspoonfuls granulated sugar, then 5 egg yolks lightly beaten, 5 cups whole milk, and lastly fold in 5 stiffly beaten whites. Place in freezing tray until thoroughly chilled. Ice cubes may be used instead of freezing tray. Pour into tall glasses and sprinkle with nutmeg. May be topped with whipped cream and dash of nutmeg. Serves 6 tall glasses or 10 to 12 punch cups. If one serving is desired, use portion of one instead of five, except of lemon and use ½ of the amount given.

Miss Agnes L. Mawyer, 2125 N. Military Road, Arlington, Va.

Supreme Apricot Punch—Dissolve 1 package orange flavored gelatine in 1½ cups boiling water. Cool. Add ½ cup sugar, ½ cup lemon juice, 3 cans apricot nectar, 1 8-ounce can crushed pineapple, and 1 quart carbonated water. Pour over ice cubes and serve. Makes 24 punch glass servings.

A Cool Interlude

A spicy sip for siesta is the suggestion of Miss Janet Campbell (insert), winner of the first prize in this month's contest. Served in glasses of Latin decoration from Indian pottery jug, this drink will give that lift needed on summer days. The donkey cartful of nuts is a good drink accompaniment

Pink of Perfection

Miss Helen Richter (insert), winner of second prize suggests a frosty drink, rife with vitamins from citrus fruits used. Present this drink in a graceful, efficient beverage carrier if you want to make service effective. This drink will be noted by "real" mint juleps drinkers with interest.

For Young America

Collegiate punch is Mrs. Grace Hiehle's (insert) suggestion for Young America who will soon be making merry at commencement festivities. She suggests serving diploma sandwiches with the punch. If a graduation party is around the corner, this refreshing drink would be ideal

Soft-Shell Crabs Now In Season

One sure way to know that summer is really here is to see the ever-welcome sign, "Soft Shell Crabs Now in Season." From the cool waters of Chesapeake Bay these succulent shellfish are brought alive to the millions who know their merits as palate pleasers.

From May until late October the art of getting soft shell crabs goes on—and it truly is an art, according to the Fishery Council. Very few people realize that hard and soft shell crabs are one and the same animal. With warmer weather, the crab tends to grow and his old hard shell becomes too small. So off comes the old and for a brief day, the crab is in his soft upper garment before a lime secretion forms a new hard shell to fit his new size.

In the short period of a day, the crab must be caught while it has a soft shell. This requires expert watching and timing. Some hard shells are kept under observation until they shed, while some soft shells are caught just as they "peel."

Then packed in special boxes in three layers with wet sea moss and a blanket of finely crushed ice over them, the soft shell crabs come to market. They can be kept alive 60 to 70 hours or time enough to transport them thousands of miles.

As interesting as is the production of the soft shell crabs, still more interesting is the eating of them. And that goes for hard shell crabs and fresh crab meat packed in pry-open cans—all of which go for better eating, particularly because they lend themselves so well to summer dishes, such as salads.

Following is a soft shell crab recipe from the Fish and Shellfish Cook Book which is offered free to readers of The Washington Post who write FISHERY COUNCIL, 204 WATER STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

To dress: With a sharp knife cut off the segments that fold under the rear of the body. Turn the crab about and cut off the face from ½ to ¾ inches back of the eyes. Lift each point at the sides and remove all of the gills. Wash the crab.

To cook: Put fat to heat in an iron kettle. Salt by dipping the crab into a solution made of 2 tablespoons of salt dissolved in 1 cup of water. Let stand from 1 to 2 minutes, remove and let drip. Place in a wire basket one layer deep. Cook at 365 degrees Fahrenheit until a golden brown. Turn while cooking. Remove, drain fat, and serve with tartar sauce. The entire crab is edible.

Lady Halifax Enjoys Salads, Likes Avocados

LADY HALIFAX, here from England since January, recently pointed out the value of our national custom of eating many raw salads, and said she found our California avocados delightful. The winter calavo—among best sources of "raw" salads—was in season in January when Lady Halifax arrived. Now the summer calavo is making its appearance for the first time on the Eastern seaboard and would undoubtedly stir even greater interest for any English visitors.

The calavo is a lush, tropical-looking fruit, and easily distinguishable from the winter calavo. It's apt to be round or oval rather than pear shaped. It's sure to have a thicker peeling. The color may be the same brilliant green as the winter fruit, or it may take on an exotic purplish-black hue with a knobby sort of surface. In any of these varieties the summer calavo makes a salad that Californians justly praise and are glad to pass on to the rest of the Nation.

Lady Halifax's interest in our greater salad variety is stimulating to American women. Our goal of giving the family all the vitamins and minerals needed in this inexpensive form is made still easier by the increased production of the summer calavo. Notice the next time you prepare a calavo salad what salad variety accompanies it. Prepare a bed of shredded lettuce, then arrange the sliced calavo in a swirl, or in overlapping sections. Sprinkle the calavo with lemon juice and add perhaps a few garnishing sections of tomato and cucumber slices. Possibly there's a sprig of watercress to tuck under the tomatoes. Often there's a dish of red radishes and green onions served with it, or hearts of celery.

Salvage for Dessert

Hollywood, Calif.—Olivia de Havilland, who lives alone and likes it, says she runs her house on a strict budget and even saves stale cake, which her cook turns into one of her best-liked desserts. Moisten the cake with sherry, Olivia relays, and pour a thick custard over it. Then drop on a generous helping of whipped cream and garnish with a maraschino cherry.

Omicron Chapter To Initiate Eight

Omicron Chapter of Kappa Beta Pi, international legal sorority, will initiate eight new members following a dinner at the Mayflower Hotel on Monday.

The dean of the chapter, Miss Louise O'Neil, will preside. Justice Wiley Rutledge of the United States Court of Appeals for the District, a patron of the chapter, will speak.

Other honor guests will be the dean of National University School of Law, Dr. Charles Pergler, and Mrs. Pergler; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bastian, Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey L. Munter, Mrs. Wiley Rutledge, Miss Elizabeth Reed, grand dean of Kppa Beta Pi, and Mr. and Mrs. George H. Stiles.

The new members to be initiated are: Miss Margaret Fitzpatrick, Miss Josephine Garrison, Miss Idella Hardy, Miss Lillian Ingram, Miss Noreen L. Mathews, Miss Helen Ryan, Mrs. Margarete Ryan and Miss Bernice Simmons.

Women's Group Formed To Support Symphony

More than 100 women interested in the National Symphony Orchestra yesterday attended the organization luncheon held at the Carlton Hotel by the new Women's Committee, of which Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe was elected chairman.

Mrs. Howe presided and explained there never before had been a women's committee because the emphasis had been on raising a sustaining fund yearly, rather than on forming a permanent organization for the support of the symphony the year around.

Discussing the need for such a committee, she said all other major symphony orchestras had them. The new group "will be willing to assume responsibility to function as adjunct of the orchestra," she said, "to be called upon for work, for ticket sales, for the sustaining fund campaign, for promotion, publicity, entertainment, for public approval, correct information, and for support of one kind or another, large or small, 12 months of the year—to be the intentional, well-informed, responsible liaison between the orchestra—and our public, the orchestra and other publics, or even the orchestra and any other orchestras."

"Eligibility equals willingness to work for the orchestra," said Mrs. Howe.

"The two major pieces of annual work will be the campaign for the sustaining fund and the filling of Constitution Hall by subscription sales in the autumn, which eventually will make the difference between progress and stagnation, for it is the obvious and sole method of increasing our present income," she concluded.

Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the orchestra, was a guest at the luncheon and spoke briefly, pointing out that no orchestra could continue to grow without a woman's committee because no artist nor combination of artists could hold or increase the interest of the public indefinitely without an organized effort behind them.

"Such organized effort is particularly important at this time," he said, "because of the need for spiritual defense. We aren't facing the past but facing the future, and we have a responsibility to the younger generation to build for them a musical birthright," he declared.

J. P. Hayes, manager of the orchestra, also spoke and announced that Dr. Kindler had been engaged as conductor for two of the N. B. C. symphony concerts this summer, on July 19 and 26 and that, as a gesture of musical good will, he would conduct at the Toronto promenade concerts on July 10, as an exchange with the Toronto Orchestra, whose conductor, Reginald Stewart, would conduct here at the Watergate on July 7.

E. R. Finkenstaedt, of the board of directors of the orchestra, also spoke, extending good wishes to the committee.

Seniors Hear Dr. Johnstone

The United States must mobilize economic weapons, propaganda and political weapons such as agreements and pacts, in "a new conception of foreign policy" to face a world in which revolutionary forces are at work, Dr. William C. Johnstone said last night at the senior banquet of Phi Pi Epsilon, international relations sorority of George Washington University.

The old conception of foreign policy merely as diplomacy and use of force—"speaking softly and carrying a big stick"—must be revised, declared Dr. Johnstone, faculty member at the University.

The banquet at the Kennedy Warren was in honor of graduating members of the sorority, and of Delta Phi Epsilon, international relations fraternity.

Dr. Johnstone pointed out that this Nation has shied away from the use of propaganda because it might seem an imitation of Hitler's methods. But, he said, if this country has anything worth preserving "we ought to let people know about it, both here and abroad."

He said that the United States must also have "a new aim for its foreign policy." Instead of being concerned merely with the defense of democracy and the Western Hemisphere, the Nation should have a more dynamic aim of working for a better democracy, he said.

Irma Gonzalez of Puerto Rico, junior at the university, presided at the banquet as head of the sorority which includes students in the school of government. Jane Costello was chosen as toastmistress.

Poetry Contest Prizes Awarded

"Night From a Skyscraper Roof," by Ida Elaine James, won the $15 prize presented by Mrs. Harvey Wiley in the ninth annual poetry contest of the District Federation of Women's Clubs, it was announced last night.

"Man Invades the Stratosphere," by Inez Barclay Kirby, was awarded the Frank R. Jelleff prize of $10. The awards were made at a program at the home of Mrs. Wiley, 2345 Ashmead Place.

Mrs. Grace Kiess Swiggett, chairman of the federation's division of poetry, who presided, presented the third prize, a copy of her book, "Welcome Dawn," to Lolet Smith for her poem, "What Of Us?"

The contest, which called for poems on some twentieth century experience, was judged by two poets, Ralph Cheyney and Lucia Trent.

The next four awards were books given by Mrs. Inez Shelden Tyler. They went to Anna Priestly for "New Walls for Old;" Mabel Vincent, for "Sagebrush, Stone and Sod;" Lula Minerva Schultz, for "I Was Hungary and Ye Fed Me Not"; Mattie Richards Tyler, for "Arlington Speaks." Mrs. Tyler presented subscriptions to "Blue Moon" poetry magazine to winners of the eighth and ninth prizes: Peggy Lawshe and Mary D. Castle.

Mrs. Adams and Mrs. O'Mahoney Give Luncheon for Mrs. Henry A. Wallace

By Hope Ridings Miller

BACK IN CIRCULATION after a brief stay in the hospital, Mrs. Henry A. Wallace was honor guest yesterday at a gala luncheon given by two Senate wives, Mrs. Alva Adams and Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney. The party took place in the Burgundy room of the Wardman Park Hotel, where guests gathered at 1 o'clock.

HOPE RIDINGS MILLER

An air of informality, all too rarely noted at most fetes given by official hostesses, accented the gathering. Mrs. Adams and Mrs. O'Mahoney received wherever they happened to be, taking each guest over at once to see Mrs. Wallace. The latter was smartly turned out in a black ensemble, with a small black hat, trimmed in dark red. Mrs. Adams had chosen a black and white print frock, with a wide-brimmed white hat; while Mrs. O'Mahoney appeared in navy blue, trimmed with a white collar and set off with a blue straw turban edged with pastel blossoms.

For a delightful change, protocol was forgotten; and guests, after being served at a buffet, seated themselves wherever they pleased, at tables-for-six. Centerpieces, fashioned of single pink peonies and paler gladioli blossoms floating in low crystal bowls, gave an original touch to the table decorations.

Mrs. Wallace spent a good bit of her time answering questions as to where she has been the last few days, and why. Yes, she had a good rest in the hospital. Went there for a very minor eye ailment; has now completely recovered; and is glad to be back in the swing once more.

Mrs. Hugo Black, looking like a picture in a broad-brimmed black hat and a matching dress—both touched up with pink—and Mrs. Robert A. Taft were among those at Mrs. Wallace's table. Mrs. Taft, incidentally, left shortly after the luncheon for Baltimore, where she spoke before a large audience last night.

Mrs. Wickard

Among Guests

"Come sit with us," was the invitation Mrs. Claude Wickard heard on all sides, as she made her way from the buffet with her plate filled. Mrs. Alben Barkley, who is one of the city's most entertaining women, had her table group in stitches during most of the party. Among those with her were Mrs. Fritz Lanham, Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, and Mrs. Robert Love Taylor.

Mrs. Nelson Johnson, wife of the United States Minister to Australia, was telling friends that she and her husband will leave some time next week for Wyoming where they will spend a couple of months before going on to his new post. Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark was at a table with Mrs. Scott Lucas. Mrs. William P. MacCracken, Mrs. Emil Hurja and Mrs. Prew Savoy. Mrs. Burton K. Wheeler and Mrs. J. Monroe Johnson were seated together.

Pretty Mrs. Lister Hill, who has been ill for several days, had a cluster of friends around her. Mrs. William H. Smathers was wearing a natty little powder blue poke bonnet that I wish I had, and Mrs. John J. Dempsey had on a millinery marvel in pink straw, trimmed in violet ribbon and swathed in pink veiling. I'd like that, too.

Mrs. James F. Byrnes moved from table to table to greet friends, while Mrs. D. Worth Clark, Mrs. Oscar Chapman, Mrs. Justin Miller and Mrs. Raymond Clapper were centers of a lively luncheon group. Mrs. Thurman Arnold, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Mrs. George Allen and three Guffeys—the Misses Ida and Pauletta Guffey and Mrs. Carroll Miller—were among others I saw at the pleasant party.

Mrs. Davies

Fetes Press Club

Ladies of the press, en masse, meanwhile were enjoying a luncheon given by Mrs. Joseph Davies at her home on Foxhall Road. The occasion was the second that Mrs. Davies has given in honor of the Women's National Press Club, and it repeated the success of the first, which took place last year. Originally, plans had been made for a barbecue, but the weather being what it is, arrangements were shifted to an indoor setting, and the house was abloom with a variety of springtime blossoms.

Mrs. Davies received wearing a dark blue print frock with front panels of a white figure. Helen Essary, retiring president of the club, and Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, new president, stood nearby to greet the guests.

Assisting the hostess were two of Mr. Davies' daughters, Mrs. Millard Tydings and Mrs. Davies Walker. (The latter, incidentally, will be off soon for a summer in northern Wisconsin.)

Tables were set up in three spacious rooms on the lower floor, and luncheon was served buffet style. Lobster newburg, sliced turkey, filet mignon, green salad, potato salad and flapjacks—a Davies chef specialty—were some of the items on the choice menu.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies will leave Washington the end of this month for an extended vacation, and will go first to the University of Wisconsin, where the former is slated to receive an honorary degree.

Mrs. W. W. Smith Gives Luncheon

Complimenting Mrs. John Trendholm Warren, publicity chairman of the Honolulu branch of the National League of American Penwomen, Mrs. William Walter Smith entertained at luncheon yesterday at Woodward & Lothrop's tearoom.

Guests included Mrs. Oscar J. Phillips, wife of Lieut. Comdr. Phillips, recently transferred here from Honolulu; Mrs. Angie Weaver Wright, whose husband, Col. Wright, was also returned to Washington from Hawaii last year; Mrs. Leah Helmick, former Washington resident and vice president of The Professional Driters Club here, whose husband, Col. Helmick, was transferred back to Washington March 1; Mrs. Edna Knight Gasch, Mrs. Theodore Hance Tiller, Mrs. George Gaydash and Mrs. Paul P. Lellewellyn, of Rectortown, Va.

The Minister of El Salvador and Senora de Castro entertained at a buffet supper last night at the Legation in honor of Senorita Rosita Arguello, the El Salvador soprano who gave a concert at the Pan-American Union a few weeks ago. Senorita Arguello, who was with the Opera Comique in Paris, came to this country when war conditions dissolved that famous opera company.

Among those present were the Ambassador of Mexico and Senora de Najera, the Ambassador of Cuba and Senora de Concheso, the Ambassador of Colombia, Senor Turbay; the Minister of Honduras and Senora de Caceres, the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de DeBayle, the Minister of Costa Rica and Senora de Fernandez, and the Director General of the Pan-American Union, Leo S. Rowe.

Julienne Cahill Fetes Couple

Miss Julienne Cahill was hostess at a dinner party last night in honor of Miss Nancy Hoskinson and James O'Grady, who will be married on June 11. Miss Cahill, who will serve as maid of honor, entertained on the terrace of the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. James F. Cahill, on Foxhall Road. Earlier in the afternoon Miss Martha Schoenfeld was hostess at a luncheon at Pierres in honor of Miss Hoskinson.

Hurricane lamps illuminated the garden for dinner and guests were seated at small tables. Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Edmunds, mother and father of the prospective bridegroom, and Mrs. Hilleary Hoskinson, mother of the bride-elect, attended the party.

Also in the party were Miss Nancy Rheem, Mrs. Margot O'Grady, Miss Ruth Quinn, Miss Doris Becker, Miss Margot Mink, Miss Virginia Chewning the Misses Jane and Barbara McKinney, Miss Jane Cahill, Miss Martha Schoenfeld, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Boss, Frank Holcomb, Barry Woods, Count Fumisoni Biondi, Robert Fleming, jr., Thomas Tighe, John Henry Hoskinson, Hilleary Hoskinson, J. Natalie Askenazy Is Party Hostess

Miss Natalie Askenazy's duplex apartment on Sixteenth Street was the scene of a pleasant cocktail party yesterday. Miss Askenazy is honorary attache of the Polish Embassy, and among those present were the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Ciechanowska.

The two newly arrived Military Attaches of the Embassy, Col. Wladimir Onacewicz and Maj. Stefan Dobrowolski, were among the guests. The latter came over on the last trip of the liner Siboney, whose captain furnished some excitement by taking on what he thought was a load of ambergris. If it should turn out that what he found was really ambergris (which is used to make perfume) the crew would be in line for a handsome profit.

Among the other guests: Miss Craig McGeachy, of the British Embassy, chatting with Mrs. Edgar Mowrer, a countrywoman . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Wilmerding, the latter in a printed redingote frock with a turban to match . . . M. S. Szymczak, of the board of governors of the Federal Reserve Board, who says that he gets many letters from Poles whom he does not know, but who appeal to him to get their visas . . . Jan Drohojowski, Counselor the Polish Embassy . . . Miss Page Huidekoper, chatting with Richard Randell and Blair Bolles . . . Peter Dewey, who did ambulance service in Europe at the beginning of the war . . . and dozens of others.

Coe, Commissioner of Patents; Dr. Elmer Louis Kayser, dean of university students and professor of European history; Samuel Hilton, former president of the American Pharmaceutical Association and practicing pharmacist, and Miss Lella Warren, author of the novel, "Foundation Stone."

House Speaker Gives Miss Hall In Marriage

Given in marriage by Speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn, Miss Mary Anna Hall became the bride of Thomas Stewart Matthews yesterday afternoon in Christ Church, Alexandria. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mansfield Hall, of Terrell, Tex., and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Matthews, of San Antonio, Tex.

Altar vases filled with white stock and carnations adorned the church. The Rev. J. R. Davidson, jr., of Palo Alto, Calif., and brother-in-law of the bride, officiated at the 4:30 o'clock ceremony. He was assisted by the Rev. E. R. Welles, rector of Christ Church. Mrs. Sue Blandy played the organ throughout the ceremony.

The bride wore a white chiffon dress with long full sleeves and bouffant skirt. Her finger-tip length veil fell from a Juliet cap of seed pearls and she carried a white prayerbook with a shower of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. James R. Davidson, jr., of Palto Alto, was her sister's only attendant. She wore a blue chiffon frock made with bishop sleeves, high round neck and full skirt. Her bouquet was of blue delphinium and yellow snapdragons. Paul Abry, of Montclair, N. J., a student at Episcopal Theological Seminary, served as best man.

The bride has been a member of the staff of Speaker Rayburn's office for four years. The bridegroom received his B. D. degree from the Theological Seminary in Alexandria this month. He will be ordained to the diaconate on June 18 in San Antonio, Tex. After July 1, he will be the curate at Christ Church in Alexandria.

Among the out-of-town guests here for the ceremony were Mrs. M. W. Hall, of Terrell, Tex., mother of the bride; Mrs. T. A. Matthews and Miss Helen Matthews, of San Antonio, Tex., mother and sister of the bridegroom.

When the couple left on their wedding trip the bride wore a cocoa-brown gabardine suit with wheat-colored accessories. Upon their return they will live in the Presidential Gardens, Alexandria.

Miss Clement To Fete Guests

Entertaining at a tea this afternoon, Miss Louisa Clement will fete her two houseguests, Miss Agnes Martin, of New York, and Miss Betty Nicrosi, of Montgomery, Ala., who are her classmates at Bryn Mawr College. Miss Clement, daughter of Mrs. Daniel Bingham, was presented to society last year by Capt. and Mrs. Bingham.

Among those attending the party today will be Miss Marianna Evans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., who will arrive in Washington today from Simmons College. Miss Evans will be here only for a month before going to Camp Hanoum, in New Hampshire, where she will serve as assistant riding instructor.

Last evening Miss Clement entertained at a small dinner party at the Chevy Chase Club for her two houseguests. Also in the party were Miss Sheila Broderick, Charles Grant, Richard Sherman, Harry Hull and Lieut. Laidlier Mackall.

Short-Hair Trend Finds Favor With Social Leaders

Mary Haworth's Mail

Secretly Wed for Two Years, Couple Is Now Ready To Acquaint Family and Several Hundred Friends Formally of the Marriage; How Go About It?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I hope you will answer these questions right away and help two young persons who really deserve help. This young couple is just out of the twenties. It will be two years since they were secretly married in another city. To date, the marriage has not been announced. Neither their parents nor their most intimate friends know anything about it. The young man's parents are living, but the girl's mother died a year before the marriage took place.

The bride's closest relatives are her father and an adolescent niece and nephew (with whom she lives). Her other relatives are several aunts and uncles who live far away, in other States. So how would an announcement of the marriage read? Should the announcement be made in her father's name?

The couple is planning to take an apartment of their own in another month and start living together. And they would like to have a reception for their many friends shortly after the marriage has been announced. Their combined list of friends would number between 200 and 500 persons. Would it be all right for them to have the reception in their own apartment, immediately after they get settled? (At present, the girl lives in a house of ancient architectural type,—which has two rooms on each floor, with the dining room and kitchen in the basement. It would be almost impossibly inconvenient to have the reception there.)

Both husband and wife are employed, and their means are very moderate. The money they have saved is to be used for furnishing their apartment, and making a down payment on a house. So what food and drink could they serve at a reception for several hundred persons, that wouldn't cost too much? And who should be in the receiving line? Please answer fully and as soon as possible, as the young couple is eager to go ahead with plans. E. L. F.

Inadvisable to Splurge With Big Reception

DEAR E. L. F.: In my opinion, the young couple would be indulging in a joyless extravagance in trying to give a reception for several hundred persons,—in either their own apartment or the bride's present home. Even the most inexpensive food, drink and service (including indispensable "caterer's men," or maid servants, silver, napery, etc.), for so large a company would necessitate an outlay of the best part of one month's joint earnings. I should imagine; and probably would add up to a rather hysterically confused assemblage, besides, at which none would have a very good time.

Since they wish to induct themselves into their new home with some degree of social "form," I think it far more advisable for them to spend what money they have to invest in the amenities, in mailing engraved announcements of the marriage, plus "cards of address," to their hundreds of friends. Announcements would be issued in the name of the bride's father, as:

"Mr. Paul Jones has the honor to announce the marriage of his daughter, Jean, to Mr. Abner Adams on Tuesday the twenty-sixth of April, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, in the city of New York."

The accompanying card-of-address (of visiting card size) would have the couple's name centered, as: "Mr. and Mrs. Abner Adams." Their future address would be listed in the lower right corner; and, if desired, these words at the lower left corner: "Will be at home after the first of July." In thus notifying friends when and where they "will be at home," they are saying in effect that the latchstring is out and that calls from well wishers will be welcomed.

By trying to splurge, when they really can't afford it, with a mammoth reception, they would be throwing away, overnight, a sum of money that would pay infinitely greater dividends in friendship, if distributed over a long period of time in a series of small parties. They might, for instance, inaugurate a series of Sunday breakfasts or buffet suppers, by way of introducing their "two to five hundred" friends to their domestic set-up, once they are established in the new apartment. In this way, they would, be taking their place in the community, as a newly married couple, much more effectively than they would by throwing one budget-wrecking reception of mob-scene proportions. M. H.

Miss Haworth will be glad to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Today's Social Notes

(From the Truthtown Torch)

Outstanding wedding of the week was that of Mrs. Flitterjig-Endive-Luker to Count Caspar de Menthe yesterday afternoon at the bride's estate, Lush Acres.

Mrs. Flitterjig-Endive-Luker was given in marriage by her father, Col. Jedediah Flitterjig, who accompanied his daughter to the improvised outdoor altar in a wheel chair. She wore a gold-colored ensemble with emerald accents. Her matron of honor, who was her daughter, Mrs. Endive-Trott-Plush, wore a silver-colored gown with ruby accessories. Four granddaughters who served as bridesmaids were in copper-colored gowns with topaz accessories. Flower girl was little Flossie Trott, great granddaughter Flossie Trott, great-granddaughter the matron of honor.

Business Venture

Buzzie Bellwether, son of Mrs. Badminton Bellwether, Truthtown's ranking dowager, has renounced his role of playboy and gone into business, Buzzie is starting a factory to manufacture collapsible ash trays.

"I firmly believe," said Mr. Bellwether yesterday seated in his air-conditioned office behind his mammoth mahogany desk, "that this country faces a shortage of ash trays. It has been my experience in social life that no home, and certainly no hostess ever has enough ash trays. My collapsible tray will enable all guests to carry a supply of trays in pocket or handbag."

This is not Mr. Bellwether's first business venture. He has previously tried his hand at gentleman farming, manufacturing airplanes, operating diamond mines, raising polo ponies, breeding boxers, backing musical comedies, conducting night clubs, publishing books, developing South Sea islands, and being a Hollywood producer. He also, at the beginning of his career, worked two weeks in his grandfather's bank.

Military Item

The Ladies Parachute Patrol will resume its drilling at the Plush Sofa Club as soon as two of its leaders, Mrs. Wynkoop Bigwigger and Mrs. Ethelbert Vanderpuffer return from their garden tour of the South.

The Entertainers

"Are you leaving town soon?"

"No, I simply can't get away—I have so many social obligations piled up. You know I'm giving this party next week for Ann Zombie——"

"Oh, is that the Mrs. Chauncey Zombie, the one whose husband's that big dollar-a-year man in defense?"

"Yes, they've just come down from New York."

"I didn't know you knew them."

"Well, I didn't. But I met her at Eloise Clymer's and, of course, she doesn't know many people here . . ."

"I'd love to do something for her—she was a Croesus wasn't she?"

"Yes, the glazed popcorn people. She's simply fascinating."

"Well, I have this week simply crammed full. I'm taking Zenobia Sappington to lunch tomorrow."

"Is that the wife of the author?"

"Yes, Nottingham Sappington, who gave the lecture——"

"I didn't know you knew her!"

"Well, I didn't exactly . . . But I met them at the Swaggs after the lecture and when I found they were to be in town several days I knew somebody ought to look after her a little."

"That was just the way I felt about Marie Dauber—you know he's doing all those murals, and she's so lonely so I'm having a little series of teas for her."

"Well, I've got to do something right away about Adele Dashhaven—you know, Mrs. Parmalee Dashhaven."

"The people who've taken over the Eiderdown estate?"

"Yes. You know her mother came from the same town as mine."

"Really. I hear they have oodles of money."

"Yes, and I think people like that are always so lonely—what I mean is they have so few real friends."

Piano Playing Self-Taught

NO REASON for any girl to stay a "Little Miss Nobody" at parties, when she could so easily teach herself the piano. Playing, she becomes a different, more glamorous person. People ask, "Who is she?"

With a helpful keyboard chart, you can quickly learn where to find your notes on the piano. Pictured life-size is the part of the piano keyboard most used in playing popular music. With each key is printed the note that is its symbol on the music staff.

When you've placed your chart behind the real keys you tell at a glance what key to strike for each note. Soon you're picking out melodies, playing waltz, fox-trot rhythms.

Then for a simple short-cut way to play popular tunes, to have a store of favorites with which to entertain friends. Instead of having to figure out the hard part of the music, with your right hand you play just the melody line. At the same time your left hand accompanies with simple bass cords you choose form a table of chords.

Complete instructions for this short-cut method are given in our 24-page instruction book. "A Short Cut to Piano Playing." Includes table of chordes and keyboard chart. Explains musical terms. Book is 8½ by 12 inches and has six favorite tunes for practice.

Send 15 cents in coins for our instruction book. "A Short Cut to Piano Playing," to the NEW YORK OFFICE of the Washington Post, Home Institute, 100 West Nineteenth Street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, adress, and the name of instruction book.

Shorter Bob To Be Style For Summer

TO LOOK pretty all four seasons, take a tip frim the weather vane. Blow with the winds in your beauty technique. Be ready to shift gayly and quickly from winter to summer effects and back again.

Chief problem now is to find a simple, becoming easy-to-keep coiffure. But this summer you have fashion backing you, for the trend is toward short, short hairdos. Many of Washington's society leaders, who not only respond readily to changing styles but set the pace for new ones, already are adopting short hair coiffures. This is the observation of Charles George, local hair stylist of national fame, who recently designed short hair-dos for Mrs. Edward R. Stettinius, jr., Senhora de Martins and Mrs. Robert Pell, three of the Capitol's leading socialites.

Sketches Drawn

Before snipping off the locks of any of these three, Charles George drew sketches for the proposed new hair arrangement. That took the guesswork out of the after effects.

In general, the short hair-do trend this summer may be attributed to the crowded calendar caused by the National Emergency, intense summer heat and the desire for a youthful, simple coiffure, according to Mr. George.

Heartily in favor of short hair for women of all ages, Mr. George says: "Short hair gives a neater and younger appearance. Also, it is far more flattering than the long bob, easier to do. However, there must be some individuality and consideration of type of hair, color and features."

Closely Curled

Length of hair ranges from two and one third to three inches. To be effective the hair must be closely curled to the scalp. There may be some shingling at the nape in the new short hair-do's but it will not be the harsh mannish single of post World War I days, according to Mr. George.

"The ideal and newest summer coiffures will be short, nicely tapered and convertible," said Mr. George. "If you are even moderately deft with brush and comb, you can change your hair-do from a casual daytime arrangement to a formal one for evening. Pompadour and bangs, both of which are still headliners, will be retained in short hair-dos."

If You Can't Blush Anymore, You Need Iron in Your Blood

By Ida Jean Kain

IF YOU don't blush any more, it doesn't necessarily mean that you have outgrown the habit. It might be a sign that your are not getting enough iron, the mineral which gives your blood its rich, red hue.

The chemistry of the blood is always a mystery, but the role played by iron seems to have an importance all out of proportion to the amount actually required. Besides being necessary to the roses in your complexion, iron is a big factor in pep.

This mineral enters into the composition of the red blood corpuscles, whose work it is to carry oxygen to all the tissues and to carry back to the lungs the discarded material that is to be exhaled.

Iron also plays a part, not yet fully understood, in the life processes. It is known that iron compounds are vital to the chromosomes, the determiners of individual characteristics which are transmitted from one generation to another.

Diet No Criterion

Since the requirement is so small, the question naturally arises as to why anyone should suffer from a deficiency. The answer is the difficulty with which the body absorbs iron. The amount furnished by the diet is no measure of the amount that is utilized.

Research along the lines of nutrition continues to bear out the general theory that the essential elements should be obtained from food, which can be depended upon to furnish more than one of the essentials. One of the latest discoveries is that unless a little copper is provided in the diet, the iron cannot be assimilated and converted into blood pigment. The requirement for copper is so small, however, and it is so widely distributed in foods, that it is unlikely to be deficient.

Experiments at the University of Nebraska indicate that iron alone does not increase the hemoglobin as effectively as the addition of certain other elements. Protein and the Vitamin B. complex were regarded as even more important than sufficient amounts of iron.

Common Cause of Anemia

But, although not all anemia is caused by the lack of iron, this deficiency is a common cause and every effort should be made to meet the daily requirements established by the committee of food and nutrition of the National Research Council. It is estimated that these amounts should be supplied daily: For the adult, 12 milligrams; a child up to 1 year, 6 milligrams; child from 1 to 5 years, 8 milligrams; child from 6 to 11, 10 milligrams; adolescent boys and girls, 15 milligrams; expectant mothers and nursing mothers, 15 milligrams.

Your diet should include red meats, liver, green vegetables, whole wheat products, molasses, oysters and egg yolks. A list of iron-rich foods, together with the number of milligrams per 100 calories, is given here:

Chintz Floor Covering

Chintz for floor covering is the most alluring fantasy in decorating encountered this year. It ranks with the velvet veneered dresser and the slip-covered logs for letting the imagination stray out of bounds. The chintz floor, in case you are interested, is achieved by means of pasting the chintz smoothly to the floor and giving it several coats of shellac.

A Matter of Choice

Omaha, June 5 (AP).—Loring Elliott, in a cross-petition for divorce, complained that his wife once tried to shoot him, once bit him and knocked him down.

But the worst of it, he charged, was that she insisted on "bringing her pack of German shepherd dogs" into the house and letting them run loose at night.

Leave It to the Sergeant

Camp Claiborne, La.—The men of Service Battery, 125th Field Artillery, gazed straight ahead as they marched down a street. Watching from a curb on the right hand side, were two pretty girls.

A trying tactical problem took shape as the soldiers approached the young ladies, but Sergt. Donald Fraser, of Duluth, solved it nicely by commanding "eyes right."

The Federal Diary

Government to Open Thousands of Jobs

War Department plans to hire thousands of additional employes here. Funds recommended in the 1942 appropriation bill that was reported yesterday to the House would bring the total number of civilian employes here to 19,231. Just a year ago the department had approximately 3,000 employes here and by June 30 the number is expected to jump to 16,173.

Civilian Personnel Director Heath Onthank told the House committee that plans were being made to place more employes on a two-shift basis. His office has been working two shifts for three months and Onthank told the committee that no efficiency was lost by night work because the employes weren't interrupted by phones and callers.

The trial of opposition leaders in UFWA's local at USHA has been postponed for 10 days. It had been scheduled for tonight. The union will attempt to expell Anya F. Smith, wife of the assistant general counsel of the C. I. O.; Dorothy Cline and Corienne Robinson. The accused objected to the manner the union was being operated. The trial is generally regarded as a purge of the opposition.

Wage and Hour will have to separate its temporary employes if the budget, as approved by the House, is upheld by the Senate. A few permanent employes also may be separated. . . . Two hundred employes in the War Department personnel division worked 808 days of overtime during March . . . Civil Service employes will operate Washington National Airport. It will be the first time Civil Service employes have been given such a job.

Only 311 of the 14,015 War Department employes here were given administrative promotions in the year that ended May 1. However, 2,492 got pay raises by being reclassified. There were 11,014 who didn't get raised. Col. Frederick W. Browne, budget officer, explained to the House committee that the department was unable to use the amount of money earmarked for administrative promotions because of the law restricting promotion which wouldn't permit it. The department didn't request funds for pay raises in 1942.

The House yesterday batted down an attempt by Chairman Robert Ramspeck of the House Civil Service Commission to knock out a rider on the National Youth Administration appropriation bill that will keep 3,600 NYA employes out of Civil Service. NYA employes had expected to be brought under the merit system by the Ramspeck Act on January 1. In defending the rider, Representative Tarver said that NYA was a temporary agency. The House upheld Tarver by a 70-to-13 vote.

Civil Service May Bar 20,000 on WPA Rolls

The action of the House appears to be more far-reaching than merely barring 3,600 NYA employes from the merit system. If NYA is to be construed as a "temporary" agency then so will WPA. The WPA appropriation bill will be reported Monday and it's appears to be a good guess that its 20,000 administrative employes also will be barred from Civil Service despite a personal plea from President Roosevelt that they be brought under the merit system.

It's a fact that the political group—the bigwigs of the Democratic National Committee, to be specific—is working to keep employes out of the merit system, and, furthermore, to replace certain employes with "good Democrats" before their jobs are covered in under the Civil Service system. The politicans are putting on the pressure in half a dozen agencies and the heat will get hotter as the time nears for the Ramspeck Act to go into effect. Despite the political pressure, it's doubted whether more than a handful of employes will be ousted.

A Federal employe who has taken a leading part in the activities of the American Peace Mobilization soon will be eased out of the Government service. The employe was mentioned a few days ago at a Dies Committee hearing . . . A War Department employe is reported to have worn a picture of Hitler on his identification badge for several days just to see whether it would be noticed. It wasn't. . . . Clarence Osthagen is serving as personnel director of the Federal Works Agency while A. J. Sarre is detailed to OPM. . . . Isadore Lubin occupies the old trophy room at the White House. He makes daily reports to the President on the progress of the defense program.

Play Means Cut 50%, Hunter Says

Declares Too Much Is Spent to Hire Supervisors While Recreation Suffers

By Robert DeVore
Post Staff Writer

Chairman John F. Hunter of the House Recreation Subcommittee, last night said he is convinced that opportunities of Washington children for supervised play have been cut 50 per cent, while the supervising office force has been enlarged.

After hearings on two legislative proposals for changes in the District's recreation setup, Hunter announced that the measures will be considered in executive session of his subcommittee next week with this general aim:

"More money for play opportunities for children and less to be spent on jobs for adults."

The Democratic Congressman from Ohio said that from several weeks of hearings and based on his own investigations he believes control of the city's play facilities should be given to a board dominated by citizens.

He expressed doubt that either of the bills before his subcommittee "will adequately serve the interests of children." Also he questioned the advisability of including the superintendent of National Capital Parks as a member of a recreation board. He added his belief that the District should be given control of major recreation areas purchased by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Policy Criticized

The District's recreation policy was under fire during subcommittee hearings yesterday attended by Hunter and Representatives F. Edward Hebert (Democrat), of Louisiana, and Stephen Bolles (Republican), of Wisconsin.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, declared that the policy is taking recreation "farther and farther from our boys." He called the subcommittee's attention to thousnads of dollars of damage done to school property each year by juvenile vandals and declared that wider play facilities "inevitably" would minimize the problem.

It cost the school board $14,000 in one year to replace broken school windows, Dr. Ballou said.

Milo F. Christiansen, acting recreation coordinator, presented figures to refute statements made that students of Terrell Junior High School no longer have access to play facilities since the schools program was moved to a regional center at Dunbar High School.

Gang Fights Charged

Hunter challenged the figures, saying his information comes from a source "that knows boys. Hunter neighborhood of Dunbar School won't let outsiders into the neighborhood and that students from Terrell are "beaten up" when they attempt to go to the senior high school to play.

Many play activities have been discontinued at elementary and other schools under the coordinator system, recreation officials told the committee. They listed dancing, dramatic clubs, art and music classes, athletic games, craft shops, public-speaking classes and gym classes for mothers.

Activities were discontinued partly because of lack of funds and partly as the result of the coordination policy, Christiansen declared. Dr. Ballou explained that many of the activities were considered supplementary education, but he insisted:

"This policy of coordination and consolidation . . . disregards the school as the center of community life and defeats individual school spirit by carrying activities farther and farther away from the boys."

Graduates Commence in Troubled World

Devitt School held its twenty-first annual commencement exercises last night in the auditorium of the school, 2955 Upton Street Northwest.

Undersecretary of the Treasury Daniel W. Bell, speaker at the ceremony, declared:

"You often hear it said today that the young graduate is in a tough spot, leaving school in a world at war, but I prefer to call it a real challenge."

"I don't see any gloom in the future of America, Bell said, "and I believe the American way of life will continue. He told the young graduates they were the ones who would be faced with the job of cleaning up the mess after the war is over. But now, he asserted, America must assume her responsibility in this world.

"If we don't, others will assume it for us, in a way we won't like," he said.

Calvary Choir Gives Comedy, 'The Sorcerer'

Calvary Methodist Church Choir presents Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Sorcerer" on Thursday night in the Guild Hall.

Exchanging the dignity of choirmaster for the geniality of an operetta director, Louis A. Potter gestured the choir of Calvary Methodist Church through an enjoyable performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Sorcerer" last evening in the Guild Hall. Nothing was pretentious in the production, which had the atmosphere of a family entertainment, inasmuch as the singers and most of the auditors belong to the same organization.

BROWN

Of the comical talents displayed in last night's performance the best was that of Paul Schnell, who impersonated the vicar, Dr. Daly. Close to him in their handling of caricature were Robert Black, as Sir Marmaduke Poindextre, and Elwood Baker, of the well-established firm of sorcerers.

Ione Shannon Bolin was the vocal star in her characterization of Lady Sangazure.

Dairy Wage Parley Makes 'Progress'

Representatives of 12 Washington dairies and the Milk Drivers and Dairy Employes Local 246, A. F. of L., made considerable progress yesterday in negotiations to avert a strike of employes of the milk concerns tonight, it was reported.

Another meeting was scheduled for today to complete agreement on a new contract.

Union members last week voted to walk out at midnight tonight unless management agreed to a new contract involving wage boosts and a closed shop.

Traffic Takes Two Lives In D. C. Area

New Yorker Dies Of Injuries Here; Alexandria Woman Is Fatally Hurt

D. C. traffic deaths now..... 35
This time last year..... 25
Total in 1940..... 79

The District's traffic toll mounted to 35 last night when a New York man died of injuries in Casualty Hospital. An Alexandria woman was fatally injured in her home city yesterday also.

Meanwhile, Prince Georges County police charged three motorists with manslaughter in the death of a pedestrian Tuesday.

Gordon David Brunner, United States Steel Corporation employe, was the local victim.

He suffered a fractured skull, a fractured right knee and internal injuries early Saturday when his car crashed into a tree on the Soldiers' Home grounds.

Mrs. Evelyn Walker, 32, of 330 S. Patrick Street, Alexandria, Va., died in Alexandria Hospital last night shortly after she was struck in front of her home by a car police said was operated by Mayo Doles, 22, of 419 St. Asaph Street, Alexandria.

Brunner, a supervisor of orders in the New York City office of the steel corporation, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Brunner, of 1419 E Street Southeast. He also leaves five sisters and two brothers.

The Prince Georges County victim, Daniel William Hudson, 35, of Berwyn, was struck by three autos on the Baltimore-Washington Highway just south of the Berwyn traffic light.

Police said a car going north, and driven by Elmer L. Baker, of Middle River, Md., struck Hudson and threw him into a southbound lane. There he was hit by the cars of Mrs. Beulah Mae Jarrett, 3445 Eads Street Northeast, and Paul V. Jackson, Hyattsville, officers reported.

Four-year-old Ann Huntt, of 1831 D Street Northeast, was in critical condition at Casualty Hospital last night after she was struck, according to police, by an auto operated by Robert Lee Atkinson, 37, Arlington Hotel, Arlington, Va., in the 300 block of Nineteenth Street Northeast. The child ran out from between parked cars, police reported.

Midway Citizens Indorse Police Drive on Din

Midway citizens, last night approved four resolutions of civic importance and another bearing on community welfare.

The unit indorsed the proposed nine-man recreation board, the anti-noise campaign sponsored by Police Superintendent E. W. Brown, and the newly established volunteer service for national defense.

Members of the education committee were instructed to attend the budget estimate hearings of the Board of Education at Thomson School June 13. They will present appropriation requests for Morgan and Wilson Schools.

The organization voted to accumulate funds to finance a summer camp vacation for a boy and girl in the area who are outstanding in school attendance, scholarship and civic-mindedness.

Suspected Heckler Of Police Seized

A suspected police tipster of long standing but one whose "tips" took the form of heckling last night was out of the hair of law enforcement agents including the chief and assistant chief of the United States Bureau of Narcotics, and officers of the Secret Service and Metroopolitan Police.

He is a 51-year-old former sailor who is suspected of calling police, notifying them of finding out-of-town autos, supposedly carrying narcotics. Officers would race to the address given to find nothing.

Recipients of most of the bogus calls were Metropolitan Detectives H. H. Carper and Robert S. Bryant. Also bothered were Harry J. Anslinger and M. L. Harney, respectively chief and asristant chief of the Narcotics Bureau and a number of Secret Service men.

Last night Carper and Bryant and two Narcotics Bureau members traced one of the suspect's alleged phone calls. He was under mental observation at Gallinger Hospital shortly afterward.

Colonial Group Fights Building Site Near Home

The District Zoning Commission yesterday took under consideration a petition by the Society of Colonial Dames of America to refuse permission for an apartment building adjacent to its Dumbarton House in the 2700 block of Q Street Northwest.

To preserve the "historic background" of its famous property, the society urged that a vacant lot next to Dumbarton House be zoned so as to prohibit construction of the apartment.

After listening to testimony on both sides, the commission withheld decision for "further study."

Earlier in the day, application to construct a "business island" in the fashionable Barnaby Woods section north of Pinehurst Parkway Northwest was withdrawn in the face of overwhelming opposition.

A petition signed by 150 residents of the community—including United States Attorney Edward M. Curran—was presented in opposition to the proposed project.

The hearing room was virtually emptied of witnesses after the application for a business development was withdrawn.

The Zoning Commission, however, ruled that both the construction request and the petition of opposition be filed for future reference.

Shute, Only Par-Breaker, Leads Open With a 69

Denny Shute's Sub-par 69 Takes Open Lead

Dutch Harrison, Vic Ghezzi Post 70s; Sam Snead Has 76; Ralph Guldahl 79

By Bob Considine

Fort Worth, Tex., June 5.—Playing with a made-over right wrist which was repaired with part of his shinbone, the veteran Denny Shute held the lead in the forty-fifth U. S. G. A. Open Championship here tonight with a splendid 1-under-par 69.

The former British Open and P. G. A. champion, whose golf career was apparently doomed early in 1940 when it was discovered that a malignant cyst had eaten away a big part of his wristbone, paced a brilliant field of 163 starters over the blistering 7,035-yard Colonial Club course.

He was a 50-to-1 shot in the pre-tourney betting, even though it was known that two Florida surgeons, Drs. Arthur Wieland and Charles Burbacher, a former caddy, had worked a medical miracle by grafting part of Shute's shin into the delicate machinery of the golfer's wrist.

Only Par Breaker

The ersatz wrist held up nobly for the freckled, baldish Chicagoan, only man to break par today.

He birdied the 220-yard fourth, after snaring a bogie on the 468-yard third. Coming home in a crackling 33, he birdied the 445-yard fourteenth with a 15-foot putt and rammed a great iron shot to within 5 feet of the pin on the 427-yard eighteenth and sank for another birdie.

It was the first time that Shute had ever broken 70 in his years of competition in this tournament.

One shot behind him at dusk, when the summery crowd of 6,000 footsore Texans drifted back to town, were Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., and E. J. "Dutch" Harrison of Chicago.

One Disqualified

Harrison was disqualified in the 1940 Open, along with Ed Oliver and Johnny Bulla, for starting his final round too early. But he was on time as well as on his stick today, and Oliver was drilling at Camp Dix.

The U. S. G. A. nevertheless found someone to disqualify. He was John S. Stammer, of Oklahoma City, who was caught red-handed with 16 clubs in his golf bag—two over par. As it turned out, Stammer needed about a dozen more knockers, for he shot an 80 before being chucked for taking this "unfair advantage." Ghezzi's round was steady but never brilliant.

Back of Harrison and Ghezzi with 71's stood Lawson Little, the defending champion, who blew up on the back nine after being three under par at the twelfth; Texas-born Dick Metz, Jug McSpaden, Gene Kunes and Jack Ryan of Louisville, who was out in 33 and who needed only four finishing pars for a 67. He exploded, went four over par on the last four holes, and staggered to his 71.

The blow-up champ of the first day, however, was Henry Ransom, Fort Worth pro who has been practicing on the colonial course for a year preparing for this tournament. He shot the first nine in 31 shots, tying the record set back in 1925 by Willie MacFarlane. Then he sprayed them all over the course and took a 41 coming home.

Heafner Has 72

His 72 linked him with six others, including Henry Todd, of Dallas, who led the 36 amateurs in the field, and Clayton Heafner, of Lynville, N. C.

Sam Snead, who'll be around when bigger blow-ups are in order, shot a 76 to tie 10 others for eighth place. Using irons off the tee on many of the long holes on this dog-legged course, Slammin' Sam none-the-less was wild. His [illegible] shots were sensational, but his put-

Andy Gibson Leads Locals With 76 in Open

Fort Worth, June 5.—The five professionals representing Maryland and the District of Columbia in the National Open Championship here were led by Baltimore's Andy Gibson today with a 76.

Gibson, an automatic qualifier by virtue of having finished among the low scorers last year in Cleveland, played each nine in 38 strokes for a 76, a score matched by such as Sammy Snead, but seven shots off the pace-setting Denny Shute.

Lewis Worsham, jr., played his second best round in three Open championships, a 38, 39—77, 7 over par. Rut Coffey, of Hagerstown, Md., barely broke the 80 mark with 41, 38—79.

Cliff Spencer, of Washington, who led the Nation's scores in the sectional qualifying rounds, could do no better than a pair of 40s for an 80. Leo Walper, an unattached pro, was out in 37, but on the 3,500-yard incoming nine he was in trouble throughout and posted a 44 for an 81.

Now 16 years old, the bay son of Sun Briar and Beautiful Lady now stands at The Meadow, breeding farm of Christopher T. Chenery near Doswell, 20 miles north of here. He is on lease from the estate of the late Willis Sharpe Kilmer.

Browns May Keep Haney in Organization

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 5.—President Don Barnes of the St. Louis Browns indicated today he might keep deposed Manager Fred Haney in the organization.

Said Barnes:

"We still have a high regard for Haney. Fred's a fine fellow and I believe he has given 100 per cent cooperation and effort. But when things are going bad, you can't stand still. You have to make a change.

"We hope to have some place in the organization for Haney and already have discussed it generally with him."

Haney, whose immediate plans were for a vacation trip with Mrs. Haney, said his decision would depend on what position he was offered him. He was paid in full salary for the remainder of this year.

Luke Sewell, former Cleveland coach who took over the seventh-place club, made no changes in the line-up for today's game with Washington.

Millions Wasted On Illini Football Teams, Official Says

By the Associated Press

Springfield, Ill., June 5.—State Senator John W. Fribley, Pana Democrat, isn't at all satisfied with the performance of University of Illinois football teams and says so in no uncertain terms.

"They're spending millions and they've got a coach who can't win a game," Senator Fribley said during a Senate roll call on the $17,705,000 University of Illinois appropriation bill.

"I wish the athletic council and the board of trustees would get together and stop passing the buck. I recommend, as an alumnus of the university, that they get us a football coach who can produce a football team at the U. of I. This bill should have an appropriation to set up the athletic council so they can hire a good football coach."

Illinois, coached for more than a quarter-century by Bob Zuppke, won its opening game from Bradley last fall and then lost seven straight.

A's Beat Sox, Climb Within 4 Games of Top

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Jun 5.—The Philadelphia Athletics put together two big innings today to trounce Chicago's White Sox, 9 to 3 and advance within four games of the American League lead.

Chicago, by virtue of Cleveland's loss to Boston, remained a game behind the pace-setting Indians.

Largely responsible for Philadelphia's triumph, its fourteenth in 18 games, was Pitcher Jack Knott, who held his former teammates to seven hits and permitted only one run until the ninth.

The A's first big inning was the second in which they counted six times off Edgar Smith on four bases on balls, a triple by Wally Moses and doubles by Sam Chapman and Frank Hayes. Jack Hallett pitched the next seven innings for the Sox and turned in shutout ball except for the eighth frame when another outburst by the Mackmen accounted for three runs.

An error, an infield out and a wild pitch figured in the first Sox run. Another error coupled with Luke Appling's single and Taft Wright's double gave them two more markers in the ninth.

St. Louis Hands Nats 3d Straight Setback

George McQuinn Star of Browns' 4-2 Victory; Sidney Hudson Losing Hurler

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

St. Louis, June 5.—It's a small world. Who should the Nats meet up with in St. Louis this afternoon but George McQuinn, from across the Potomac in Ballston, Va., and he slugged them into a 4-2 defeat—their third straight, by the way.

Neighbor McQuinn, who is now playing first base for the Browns out here in St. Louis, slapped a two-bagger into left field in the seventh inning, and two important St. Louis runs crossed the plate. It was off one of Sid Hudson's best fast balls, too.

The Browns were making their debut under the management of Luke Sewell, and did very well for their new boss. Sewell was not compelled to do a whole lot of masterminding today. He simply sent Dennis Galehouse out to pitch and watched Denny, old boy, shut the Nats out for the first seven innings with four hits.

Woe Is Griffith

The Nats sort of crowded Galehouse in the eighth and ninth when they had the tying runs on base, but Johnny Allen moved out of the bull pen and took charge in the ninth. At that point the Nats had the tying run on second with one out, only to abandon it.

And so Washington has a running start on another losing streak by virtue of getting mopped up in the three-game series here. The Nats are in the cellar and the horrible fact is that they have lost 16 of their last 18 games.

At that the Nats were a vastly

Red Sox Rout Indians, 14-1, Collect 16 Hits

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, June 5.—The Boston Red Sox turned 16 hits into a 14-to-1 victory today and gave the Cleveland Indians their worst shellacking of the year.

Mickey Harris handcuffed the Indians with six hits while the Red Sox knocked the ball into every corner of League Park, to garner two homers, a triple and three doubles off four Indian pitchers.

Southpaw Al Milnar started for the Indians but lasted only two and a third innings, during which the Bosox scored four times on five bingles.

Dom DiMaggio Homers

With one out in the third inning, Dominic DiMaggio drove a home run into the left-field bleachers and trotted around the bases alone. Then Louis Finney, Ted Williams and Manager Joe Cronin drove clean singles. Jimmy Foxx walked, and Milnar took to the showers.

Joe Heving finished the inning and set Boston down in order during the fourth frame.

Finney opened the fifth with a double, Williams homered, Tabor doubled and Newsome singled, which came to three more runs for the hammering Red Sox. Heving lasted the inning but was replaced by a pinch hitter.

Calvin Dorsett faced the Boston batters in the sixth. He walked Mickey Harris, and DiMaggio beat out a bunt. After Williams walked, Foxx drove the trio home with a double. Dorsett managed to finish the inning, and did well in the seventh, but the eighth finished him.

On the Line

CONSIDINE

Fort Worth, Tex., June 5.—Bobby Jones would have made a formal comeback and played in the United States Open which begins here today if it had not been for a sudden marshalling of his closest friends, all of whom advised the one-time Emperor Jones against trying his luck against a tough new generation of players.

Bobby's frustrated comeback was divulged here today by a close friend. "I don't know what came over him, but all of a sudden Bob got the yen to get back in competition," he said. "We thought he was kidding for a time, but he began to play more and more seriously, and two or three times he dipped down into the late sixties. Then he told a few of us that he was going to come back. You know, the old fire-horse stuff. Couldn't be a spectator any longer. We had a dickens of a time talking him out of it. It would have been an awful anticlimax to the greatest career in golf."

It's hard to believe of Jones. Except at Nassau in the four-ball match for the benefit of the Red Cross, he hasn't played a serious match for years. That is, serious in the old meaning of the word. He was bearing down at Nassau, as were Sarazen, Hagen and Armour.

But other than that, Jones has been giving a fine imitation of a retired champion since he put aside his clubs at the end of his incredible 1930 season, and called it quits. In the ensuing years he learned to shrug over missed shots; to relax. He was like a great thoroughbred, unwound.

He was talking to us recently about his kid, and what an ordeal it had been to be a party to the kid's scatter-shot debut in school competition. "I'm glad he's got a sense of humor," Jones told us, "or he would have suffered more than I did. I don't want him to be a golf champion. Sure, I'd like for him to play, play in peace, I mean. But if he ever gets around to shooting 85, that'll suit me."

It didn't sound like a man who, in the back of his head, was already plotting a return to the golf wars, with their nerve-jangling suspense, perpetual tension and wearying mental and physical demands.

We'll dismiss conjecture on how Jones would have fared against the grim young perfectionists like Hogan, Nelson and Snead and the lighthearted genius, Demaret, except to doubt whether he'd finish in the first ten. But if he had come back, Bobby would have returned to golf at one of its great milestones. For Texans of the kidney of Amon Carter, Buddy Fogelson, Representative Dick Kleberg, and Marvin Leonard, who built the splendid 7,000-yard layout at the Colonial Country Club here, are out to make this the Gol-Derndest Open since Horace Rawlins defeated a field of 11 entries at the Newport Golf Club in 1895—the first of these links classics.

They have made arrangements down here to take care of 50,000 spectators over the three days of the tournament. That may not sound like too many to you, if you visualize the spectators sitting in the Yankee Stadium, but on a golf course it is a fearsomely unwieldy mob. We once saw a crowd of less than 4,000 get so completely out of hand, during a match featuring Babe Ruth, John Montague, Babe Didrikson and Sylva Annenberg that the players could not continue beyond the eighth hole.

Leonard expects to school his stewards and rope-holders by letting them practice on the crowds of about 2,000 which have been watching the practice rounds this week. Then the real work will start, for advance ticket sales indicate to Leonard that the opening day crowd of 10,000 will grow to 25,000 by Saturday. That's a lot of stampeding man and woman-power to restrain with nothing more than a U.S.G.A. badge, a rope, or a thin bamboo pole. Especially in Texas, where folks don't hanker to be treated like sheep.

They've got a couple of par 5's on this colonial course that have helped much to give Texas its reputation for immense distances. One is the first hole, a 509-yard dog-leg to the right. The other is the eleventh, a 503-yard affair that is certain to drive the tournament's light hitters, a la Runyan, to distraction. Incidentally, the par 3 fourth hole is 250 yards—which is asking for one helluva tee shot.

This tournament is going to go to a distance hitter, but one who is straight. Hogan, Nelson and Demaret answer that description. Snead and Defending Champion Lawson Little answer the distance part of it, but are inclined to hit off line. Snead, we think, stands alone as a threat to what looks like a Texas sweep.

An Open in Texas is like a World Series in Van Meter, Iowa, the home of Rapid Robert Feller. For the Lone Star State produced Hogan, Nelson, Demaret, Ralph Guldahl, Dick Metz and Lloyd Mangrum, all of whom have a fine chance to win. It has taken the Open 45 years to get here, and Fort Worth is ready for her. The boys down here are afraid it might take 45 more years to wangle another Open out of the golf people. So they plan to do this one up brown, and make it the biggest and best ever. They've even promised Leonard to swallow their pride, and stand dutifully behind the ropes, and muffle every yipee that starts up their throat, in order to make it a tournament the players and game will never forget.

Detroit Scores Over Yanks in 10 Innings

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 5.—The Detroit Tigers nailed down a 5-to-4 10-inning decision over the New York Yankees today in a ragged game which ended with Bruce Campbell's single with the bases loaded and gave Buck Newsom credit in a relief role.

For five innings the contest was a tight pitching battle between Atley Donald, of the Yanks, and young Hal Newhouser, of the Tigers.

The Yankees were held to two singles in that span, but in the sixth Joe DiMaggio's triple, a walk and three singles scored two runs. Then Donald blew up, loaded the bases with three singles and a walk (one runner being trapped) and let in three runs on two wild pitches and his own error.

The Tigers added another tally off Marv Breuer in the eighth when Rudy York walked, stole second and rode home on a single by Pinky Higgins. But Tom Henrich homered with one on in the ninth to tie the score and bring Newsom to the mound. He held the Yanks hitless.

Mrs. Stokes, Meckley Meet for Women's Golf Title Today

Mrs. M. Davy Loses 20-Hole Semifinal

Mrs. Meckley Wins Over Mrs. Peabody, 7 and 5; Title Match At 9:35 at Manor

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

It's a natural today in the District Women's Golf Championship finals.

Mrs. Walter R. Stokes, on top of her game after two overtime battles in as many days, will meet Mrs. Betty Meckley, fresh after a march through the easy half of the draw, at Manor Country Club at 9:35 a. m. for the city title.

Mrs. Stokes advanced to the titular round after battling 20 holes through a driving rain to earn a 1 up victory over Mrs. Myron Davy, who in defeat played one of her finest matches since seriously taking to championship golf.

Mrs. Meckley, winner of the big championship mug in 1930-31 and 1936, won in easier fashion, a 7-to-5 triumph over Mrs. Hume Peabody, of Army and Navy.

Rain Hurts Match

It was a shame the Stokes-Davy match had to be played on a dreary, rainy day with only a few faithful followers for the Maryland State champion and her final round victim in that tournament last year produced great golf considering they were playing over a course absorbing its fourth consecutive day of hard rain.

It was close all the way with Mrs. Davy's two up margin after the first two holes the biggest difference of the 20 holes. They halved then through the sixth but in quick succession Mrs. Stokes won seven and eight to square the match and that's how matters stood at the turn, each out in 41.

Coming back, they divided 10 and 11 before Mrs. Davy played one of the finest shots of the match on the twelfth, an explosion from the sand which netted a four and a one-hole lead. Mrs. Stokes dropped a 30-footer to square matters on the fourteenth, and then went up on 15 after an Alphose-Gaston ace which found the eventual winner taking the hole with a six.

Mrs. Davy Squares Match

Mrs. Davy came right back with a long spoon shot and stony approach to square matters on 18, and they halved the seventeenth. Still getting unexpected distances off the tee they drove side by side on 18, but here Mrs. Davy hit one of her few poor shots of the day, a skid spoon. The Columbia player missed the green in three, but played a beautiful chip shot within inches of the hole to gain a half in fives and send Mrs. Stokes to extra holes for the second time in 24 hours.

It looked like curtains for Mrs. Davy on the nineteenth when she pulled her second shot deep into the woods, but she drove a low approach to the edge of the green for another fine halve and they went to the twentieth. Here Mrs. Davy hooked another second shot, this time into a trap, and when she blasted well past the pin and missed the first and second putts coming back Mrs. Stokes was a 1 up victor via a regulation par.

In the meantime Mrs. Meckley was a spectator as an out nine of 41 and four straight fives on the back nine were good for a 7-and-5 margin over Mrs. Peabody, who lost in the semifinals as she did two years ago.

In this same tournament two years ago Mrs. Davy defeated Mrs. Stokes in the first round on the 23, or fifth extra hole. Finals in all flights and consolations will be

Plaza Ten Faces Manhattan Auto

The skeptics will journey to Ballston Stadium en masse tonight about 9 o'clock when Ben Dunlevy's Plaza Wine and Liquor ten clashes with Manhattan Auto & Radio, as play is resumed in the Merchants' Night Softball League after a lapse of four days. The reason for those skeptics being on hand is that last week Plaza upset the mighty Senates and now a lot of fans are calling the Winemen greater than the Beermen. Tonight's game with the scrappy Manhattan ten will prove something one way or the other, and the skeptics must be convinced.

In the opening game of the doubleheader, International Business Machines, struggling to get out of third place, faces a soft touch in Adam Hats, winless in five starts.

Advisory Council Gets Behind Defense Program; Funds Expected to Reach $40,000

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 5.—Major league baseball got squarely behind the recreational program for the Nation's armed forces by allocating to the cause today net receipts of the ninth annual All-Star game to be played here July 8.

Departing from precedent, the major league advisory council, composed of Commissioner K. M. Landis and presidents of the American and National Leagues, earmarked the funds, expected to reach $40,000, to the United Service Organizations for National Defense, Inc.

Hitherto, proceeds of the "dream game" have gone to the Association of Professional Baseball Players of America for the relief of aged and indigent ball players. In eight years $280,000 has poured into the coffers of the association for this purpose.

Ample Funds on Hand

While voting to alter its policy in the national emergency, the committee pointed out that the player benefit program would be continued by the two leagues independently and through association funds still available.

"There are ample funds on hand for that program," said William Harridge, American League president. "Our league has its own association for this work, and so has the National League. The old players will not be forgotten."

Final details of the midsummer classic were mapped at today's meeting by Landis, Harridge, Ford C. Frick, National League president, and Walter O. Briggs, owner of the host Detroit Tigers. Personnel of the teams, to be named again by the 16 big league managers, will be announced July 1.

Big Advance Sale

One factor that required scant attention, however, was the advance ticket sale, which opened here ten days ago. Detroit officials reported their office literally swamped with applications and predicted sellout of the 57,000 seats at Briggs Stadium. This would be the third largest crowd in all-star history.

Remaining details will be the problems of the rival managers, Del Baker, of Detroit, and Bill McKechnie, of Cincinnati, who will be matched in an encore to the 1940 World Series. McKechnie is National League pilot for the second successive year, while Baker moves up from the coaching job he lled last year, when the American Leaguers were blanked, 4 to 0, at St. Louis.

The game at Detroit is scheduled to start at 1:30 p. m., Eastern standard time, but if postponed will be played at 10 a. m., on July 9.

Peruvian Turf Great Arrives In California

San Pedro, Calif., June 5.—The Peruvian thoroughbred Meissen, which ran itself out of competition with 15 firsts in 19 starts, came to California today to try for some big money.

The 5-year-old, 1,300-pound horse, which carried 134 pounds and made the mile and a quarter in 2.02 last year in one of his wins on the relatively slow South American tracks, arrived on the steamer Winland from Callao, Peru.

Meissen never has run out of the money. In 1939 he won six out of seven starts and was third in the seventh. In 1940 out of 12 starts he won eight, took a dead heat for first in another, was second twice and third once.

The big Peruvian was reported in good condition after nearly three weeks at sea. With Meissen came his personal groom and exercise boy, Jesus Gonzales.

A. T. Jergins, Long Beach millionaire sportsman, who leased him for an American premier, expects to have him in the $20,000 American Handicap, July 4, at Hollywood Park.

43 Tandems in Bannockburn Invitation Play

The second annual Bannockburn Invitation Tournament will get underway today with 43 two-man teams, and possibly more, competing in the 18-hole qualifying round. Match play rounds are scheduled tomorrow and Sunday. The field is an increase of 14 teams over last year.

What looks to be the strongest tandem in the field was the last to enter, Bobby Brownell, the District's top-ranking golfer in 1939-40 and Hank Russell, his partner on the Duke golf team. They drove in last night from commencement exercises at Durham, N. C.

There are several all-local duos plenty good enough to walk off with the title Sunday afternoon, however, including Volney Burnett and Eddie Bean; Harry Pitt and Earl McAleer; Martin McCarthy and George Miller; George Molloy and Billy Houghton, and Ralph Bogart, the District champion and Maury Fitzgerald, who won with Freddie Bolton, last year.

John Jankowski, former C. U. star athlete has a dark-horse partner in George Shanley, prominent Rochester, N. Y., amateur while the Janssen brothers, of Charlottesville, Va., are visiting threats.

The low-scoring 16 teams will qualify for match play rounds in the championship flight tomorrow. Today's qualifying round will be followed by a stag dinner and calcutta pool at the Bannockburn Club tonight.

Green Hornet Downs Groan Artist Numa on Arena Mat

Double-Dyed Masked Villian Gives Superlative Performance in Starring Role; Fans Irked

Assault, brutal and premeditated, was rampant again at Turner's Arena last night as the "mysterious" Green Hornet forced Leo Numa, nee Axel Anderson, of Seattle, to yell "uncle" in the main go of the weekly rassle extravaganza.

The Hornet, as dastardly as ever, applied an authentic-looking arm lock on Numa, who is much too handsome for Turner's Little Theater group, just 24½ minutes after the whistle and clinched the bout. The cash customers are still allergic to green and Hornet left the ring under protective custody.

Leo started out strong and had the Hornet bleating for justice as he went after the green mask. The hooded one resorted to hair pulling, midriff slams and even tossed Numa through the ropes several times before he could be subdued.

Legs Grobmier and Lou Plummer worked to a draw in the semifinal in a match that degenerated to a barroom brawl from the start. Grobby, who is about as athletic-looking as Walter Haight, used his famed kicking attack to fine advantage and booted Lou into the fans' laps on two occasions. Lou, as popular as the tax collector, was forced to fight several pugilistic gents in the audience before he could resume hostilities.

Rotund Abie Coleman eliminated one Angelo Leone with a full nelson in 13 minutes. Milo Steinborn used a bear hug to trounce Henry Kulkovich in 18 minutes, and in the opener, Maurice La Chappelle, of France, and Ace Freeman battled to a draw.

8,000 to See Jim Robinson, Nova Tonight

By International News Service

Minneapolis, June 5.—Lou Nova, who is to meet Joe Louis for the heavyweight title in September, was a heavy favorite tonight to whip Jim Robinson, Philadelphia Irishman, tomorrow night in spite of the optimism expressed in the Robinson camp.

Tickets for the bout, which will be staged in the Minneapolis Auditorium, were going well and it was estimated 8,000 persons would attend for a gate of about $10,000.

Sam Goldman, Robinson's manager, said he was certain his man would put up a good fight.

"Jim can take it," he said. "If he has regained the form which he lost after a great start in the East, he can surprise Nova. Both boys are in splendid condition—and anything can happen."

Robinson assured his manager he was in the best shape of his life and was confident of winning. He has been working in the gymnasium of Mike Gibbons, St. Paul, former middleweight boxer.

Lewis Takes Chevy Chase Club Golf Lead

Reeve Lewis, jr., took a seven-stroke lead with one round to play in the Chevy Chase Club Championship yesterday as the three principal contenders played summer rules over a soggy course through a driving rain which made low scoring an impossibility. There was a buried ball or two on every hole, and they played them.

Lewis added an 82 for a three-round total of 241 while John F. Brawner, a defending champion, soared to 88 for a 248 count. C. Ashmead Fuller, a former titlist, posted his third consecutive 85 for a 255 score for the 54 holes.

The Hortmann Trophy Tournament is 72-hole medal play, the only such affair among the local clubs.

White Tide Holds 1-Game Advantage

Contest Scheduled For 3:30 on Tide's Diamond; Curles, Kuldell to Hurl

The chance to get back atop the public school baseball heap from which Central knocked it in 1939 will belong to Eastern High today as it faces Western in the second, and what may prove the conclusive, game of a three-game series for the 1941 championship.

Hostilities will open at the Eastern diamond, barring a downpour, at 3:30.

Winner of the first clash of the play-off Tuesday by a 7-3 count, the White Tide will go after its second straight victory today with all the power at its command. It must win to avoid a third game next Tuesday at Anacostia.

And from indications so far Eastern has the necessary hitting and pitching to end matters without a third engagement. Ken Deavers, its ace fire-baller, was used only enough Tuesday to keep his arm in trim, the burden of winning the opening contest being placed on young Chester Spieser, a dark horse.

The possibility remains that Eastern's coach, Chief Guyon, will continue to save Deavers—just in case his starting choice runs into trouble—and send Kenny Curles or one of his less-tested hurlers to the mound.

Unless he decides to start Charley Hines again, Coach Cliff Moore, of Western, has only Clarence Kuldell to toss at the Tide today. Hines was knocked out of the box after 5 1-3 innings Tuesday and Kuldell finished the game. The Raiders' other pitcher throughout the season, Billy Grey, is no longer with the team.

Nats Mopped Up By St. Louis, 4-2

Improved club against Galehouse today. The last time they saw him Galehouse was holding them to one hit in Washington. Today they did knock him out of the box in the ninth and collect eight hits, but it was all very futile.

Nats Discomboberated

Galehouse sort of out-pitched Hudson despite the fact that both teams made eight hits. The former Indian, former Red Sox, who came to the Browns last winter without much reluctance on the part of Manager Joe Cronin, was befuddling the Nats with a curve ball, a screwball and an occasional fast one.

He wasn't any drawback with the bat either. Galehouse doubled down the right field line with one out in the third inning and scored the first run of the ball game on a single to center by Lucadello. The Browns upped their lead to 3-0 in the seventh.

That happened after Rick Ferrell drew one of Hudson's three walks. He was forced at second on an attempted sacrifice, but Lucadello also drew a walk. That's when McQuinn poked his bat into the proceedings and poked a two bagger far into the left field corner to score 'em both.

The Browns collected their last run off Alex Carrasquel in the eighth. Again it was a base on balls that led to a run. Carrasquel walked Clift who was sacrificed to second, and Berardino got the run home with a single to left.

Sic Semper Tyranis

The Nats wrenched a run out of Galehouse finally in the eighth after Pofahl walked. He was forced out by Pinch-hitter George Archie, but Lewis singled to right a bit later to score Archie. When Cramer drew a walk the tying run was on base, but Travis left it there with a fly to left.

That little flurry cut the Browns' lead to 3 to 1, but their eighth inning run off Carrasquel bolstered it to 4 to 1, and the Nats went into the ninth with a three-run deficit.

Mickey Vernon flied out to open the Nats' ninth, but all of a sudden the Nats got tough with Galehouse. Myer, Early and Pofahl singled to center in succession and a run was home. That's when Allen came in. Bloodworth batted for Carrasquel and grounded out, but the two tying runs moved into scoring position. That put the issue squarely up to George Case, and he grounded to McQuinn for the final out, as the saying goes.

'All Alone, I'm So All Alone'

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Gene Kunes started off as a onesome in the National Open Championship yesterday in Fort Worth as his playing partners withdrew. The Philadelphia pro had a gallery before long, however, as he was out in 33 and back in 38 for a 71 ter was ice cold and he couldn't take advantage of the opportunities these recoveries offered.

Among those who tied Snead was C. Tyrrell Garth, jr., 15-year-old kid from Beaumont. The 110-pound stripling was one of the four players who managed to birdie the intensely difficult fifth hole—a gully ridden 468-yard dog-leg.

Picard Burned

Byron Nelson, the Texas-bred favorite in the tournament, came in with an unimaginative 73, getting in and out of trouble with equal ease. The P. G. A. champ hit a tree with a resounding whack on the eighteenth. Henry Picard, who preceded Nelson as P. G. A. champion, shot a 77, but it was a fine round of golf, considering. A folder of watches went off in his hand yesterday, necessitating a trip to the hospital. He was out in 43 and came home over the tough back nine in 34.

Three Texans with tremendous followings, Jimmy Demaret, Ralph Guldahl and Ben Hogan, had a trouble for every fan. Demaret, who hasn't been over 70 in practice for the tournament, shot a shabby 75. Guldahl, though taking infinite pains with each shot, shot almost bogie golf on the first nine, where he had a 40, and was scarcely better coming home with a 39, for 79.

Hogan, the year's leading money winner but badly over-golfed, had to drop a curling 20-foot putt on the eighteenth to get a 74. Gene Sarazen had the same, 74.

76 for Chapman

Dick Chapman, on furlough from his duties as an athletic instructor in an Army camp, shot a so-so 76. The current amateur champion was very good and very bad, by turns. His total was one shot worse than that turned in by Willie Turnesa, former amateur champion, and tied the score of Johnny Goodman, last amateur to win this pro-dominated tournament.

The opening round was played under nearly 90 degrees of heat, but a brisk breeze made the going tolerable. They play 18 more holes tomorrow, after which the field will be cut to the top 60 men, to make it easy to handle for Saturday's final 36 holes.

Margo Lee, Mary Belin Play Today

The shower-dodging semifinalists in the City of Washington women's tennis tournament were kept completely out of play yesterday afternoon at Army-Navy Country Club but gradually clearing skies indicated that Margo Lee and Mary Belin will be able to meet at 2 this afternoon, followed by Willie Herbert against Charlotte Decker in the second semifinal singles match, set for 4:15.

Miss Lee, who has invariably bowed to Mrs. Belin in previous tournaments, is given an even-money chance to turn the tide if the rains stay away from Army-Navy's quick-drying courts long enough to permit playing.

In the semifinal doubles, top-seeded Mrs. Belin and Frances Rowan will play Sara Moore and Eleanor Fishburne at 5:30 today, while on an adjacent court Mrs. Herbert and Miss Decker will combine to play Frances Sturtevant and Jane Wilmerding.

Radio Chain Will Carry Turner Fights

It begins to look as though Promoter Joe Turner might get the break he's been chasing so long in the boxing business when the lean years forced all other local fight moguls out of the business barely hanging onto their shirts.

Joe, who made quite a bit of change in former years, but lately has been making more money on his rassles than his fights, has signed a contract that will put boxing on a "big time" basis in Washington.

The Adams Hats "Sports Parade" which carried Mike Jacobs' ventures throughout the Nation, will take over broadcast rights to all Turner's future fights of any note, starting with the Bob Pastor-Buddy Scott ten-round heavyweight affair June 16 in Griffith Stadium.

Sam Taub and Bill Stern—the same Stern who squelched Ancil Hoffman's beef over the air after the Buddy Baer-Joe Louis fight—will man the mike for the blow-by-blow descriptions. Scott will move his training quarters into Turner's Arena, Fourteenth and W Streets Northwest, Monday for a week of intensive work, and Stern and Taub will arrive early to do a radio series by way of building up the fight.

Ball Game Feature At Griffith Stadium

A baseball game between the Heurich Brewers and O'Donnell's Sea Grill, of the Industrial League, is the opening feature of the "night of thrills" at Griffith Stadium tomorrow, beginning at 4:30. Thirteen circus acts, a pageant and drills will complete the program, which is a benefit for the Masonic and Eastern Star Home.

Tickets are on sale at the Masonic Temple at Thirteenth Street and New York Avenue.

Capitol Hill in a Dither Over Short-Field Position

Statesmen to Meet Lowell Thomas' Team Tomorrow

The question of the hour on Capitol Hill yesterday was not gasless Sundays, but who will play short field for the Statesmen tomorrow at Griffith Stadium.

If you didn't know, the Statesmen, composed of Senators and Representatives, is going to do battle with Lowell Thomas' "Nine Old Men" in a softball game for sweet charity, and things were approaching a boiling point yesterday.

It seems that the short field jojb is in a state of confusion—there being two men for the job. The big problem is whether to send Vice President Henry Wallace out there behind second base, or Senator Joseph O'Mahoney, of Wyoming.

Both Wallace and O'Mahoney, according to reliable reports, are champing at the bit, straining at the leash, as it were, for a chance to do their bit for dear old Statesmen U.

The nonplaying staff is well organized, and if anybody is thinking about getting tough with the umpires, he'd better think twice. The men who'll bawl out the strikes, balls and putouts are Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson, Undersecretary of Navy James V. Forrestal, Undersecretary of Commerce Wayne C. Taylor, Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, chairman, U. S. Maritime Commission, and John J. Dempsey, commissioner, Maritime Comission.

Senators Carter Glass and Arthur Capper are on the trainers' staff, and Representatives Martin J. Kennedy and Clare Hoffman will be bat boys. "Fishbait" Miller, a Capitol employe, is the water boy.

The kickoff, pardon us—the first ball will be tossed over the plate at 2 p. m. tomorrow after ceremonies that begin at 1:30 with a Marine Band concert and go on the air at 1:45 p. m.

Thomas' "Nine Old Men" include well-known radio commentators and entertainers, columnists, cartoonists, sports writers and other nationally known figures. To make the charity venture a success, Mrs. Roosevelt and wives of Cabinet members and other prominent figures will act as patronesses.

Tickets are available at all Peoples Drug Stores, prominent hotels and the sergeant at arms of the House and Senate. The seats are selling for $1, grandstand; 50 cents, bleachers, and half price to children.

Senator Taft, Ohio, or Senator Lucas, Illinois, left field.
Senator Davis, Pennsylvania, or Senator Brooks, Illinois, center field.

No-Trade Rule Chief Item to Be Discussed at A. L. Meeting

Elimination Of Rule Seen By Harridge

Action Expected On Present Banning Of Championship Club's Trading

By the Associated Press

New York, June 5.—The American League next month is going to reconsider its restriction on trading by the championship club and this time some action is in prospect.

President William Harridge, who came here yesterday from Chicago for the funeral of Lou Gehrig, said the no-trade rule was one of the principal items of business he knew was to come before the meeting of the league at Detroit July 7, the day before the all-star game, and that there was a good chance it would be eliminated.

"If it is not rescinded, then I am going to see that it is clarified," he added. "As it stands now the rule is open to different interpretations.

"It reads that the championship club may not make a trade except 'through waiver channels.' The Yankees interpreted this to mean that they must claim a player in order to obtain him. But it appears to me to allow the pennant winner to purchase any player on whom waivers have been obtained. Our league counsel, who wrote the rule, was in the office the other day and I asked him how he interpreted it. His answer was the same as mine.

Radcliff Case Cited

"It was under this interpretation that Detroit bought Rip Radcliff from the St. Louis Browns. Waivers had been obtained on Radcliff in April when the Tigers still had Greenberg and were not interested in Radcliff. The waivers were good till May 14 and the Browns, if they had wanted to, could have sent him to some National League club and our circuit would have lost a good player. All other clubs had waived on him and the Browns had the right to do whatever they wanted with him."

The rule was sponsored by Clark Griffith, of the Washington Senators, in 1939 after the Yankees had won four consecutive world championships and was passed by a 7-0 count, the Yanks not voting. At last winter's meeting a proposal to rescind it was defeated by a 5-3 vote.

"Some of the clubs probably felt that removing the rule last winter would have made it appear too much of a slap at the Yankees but they may feel differently about it now," said Harridge. "It was passed to keep a rich club from making trades late in the season in order to hold on to the pennant. But neither the Yankees nor the Tigers ever have done that."

Harridge said he doubted the league would do more than discuss an increase in the seven-game limit on night baseball.

SPECIAL WEEK END WEATHER REPORT

Fresh north winds diminishing with fair weather today. Outlook for tomorrow—Moderate east or southeast winds and fair weather.

Capt. Trott, of Shadyside, reports that he made a good catch of rockfish or striped bass, around Poplar Island off Eastern Bay, which is over on the other side of the Chesapeake. Some old sockdolagers were caught chumming with live native grass shrimp. The cost of an all-day trip over to the Eastern Shore chumming for rockfish is $20, which, of course, includes 3 gallons of grass shrimp. Trolling all day, the cost of boat charter is $15.

JACK BELL

Reports out of Solomons Island are that rockfishing is improving daily. Out in the channel catches of 60 to 100 hardheads are being made, with a few trout included.

Off of Point Lookout and Point-no-Point good catches of trout or weakfish are caught. Point-no-Point seems to be the best place.

Weakfish ordinarily are bottom feeders, but a few are caught trolling. We would like to suggest a method we have seen used by light tackle sport anglers up in Long Island Sound. Bottom fishing is all right when the big tide runners are active; but when they are running small, it is wise to try chumming or throwing shrimp to them for the purpose of drawing them to the surface where they can be caught on light tackle.

Early in the season more success is attained in bottom fishing, particularly at night, by using a chunk of fresh squid. This is pounded out first so that it exudes an oil and helps lure the fish.

Shrimp is the favorite chum or bait of the trout anglers, but there is one commercial chum on the market which is said to be pretty good, and is much cheaper than shrimp.

More than 7,000 pounds of bonito were brought in by a party of fishermen out of Morehead, N. C. Most of them were caught around the Sea Buoy. The bonito ranged in weight from 2 to 4 pounds, altho two 6-pounders were reported. A few blues and mackeral were brought in, and the captains agree they should hit in about two weeks, "good and heavy."

It will be remembered that after the first year's absence of blues in the Chesapeake that old-time anglers said we would not catch any blues until the sweet waters leave the bay. It was in the spring that the East experienced the heavy floods. The theory advanced was that blues passed by the bay entrance due to this condition.

With the severe drought experienced this year it is hoped these old-timers are right. The bay should be anything but sweet now, and it is hoped to the liking of the bluefish.

Shrimps, which practically disappeared from the vicinity of South Port, N. C., at the time of the disappearance of our bay bluefish, are returning in quantity this season. News of this was welcomed by market fishermen and anglers as conducive to better fishing this year in the area.

Comes announcement of Maine's first major tuna tournament to be held some time between July 20 and 26 the exact days to be announced later. Invitations will go out to anglers in all sections of the Nation in the near future.

(Below is the week's best fishing yarn, contributed by Harold A. Vermuele, of 3231 Second Street Northwest, for which The Washington Post has given a prize of $5. How about it, fishermen, have you a tale to tell. Get 'em in early and you may be $5 richer.)

Dear Jack,

You asked for the fishing experiences of District of Columbia anglers and you expressed a desire to know more about fishing conditions on Big Hunting Creek, so I'll comply with both in this letter.

Understand, I don't claim this odd experience of mine, which I'll get around to presently, is a common "condition" on Big Hunting Creek. If it was, the place would have the worst reputation possible as a fishing grounds.

Well, my tale starts at about 7:45 one summer evening. I had just started fishing. The day had been hot and the water had been extremely low, causing the trout to wait until late evening to start feeding.

I had picked out a large pool, quite still, in which I figured there would be plenty of trout. I attached a dry fly in the semidark and tried several false casts to extend my line.

Suddenly my line became snagged in the air behind me. Figuring I'd hooked the branch of a tree, I turned to see my line fall to the stream bank. In the gloom I could see something on the hook, resembling a large wet leaf.

You may not believe me, Jack, but it was, of all things, a huge bat. The way I later figured it, the bat must have been circling around my head trying to get at the flies in my hat band. I hooked him with a false cast.

There's the story. Maybe it was my "condition" on Big Hunting Creek.

Just Enuf Wins Lewes Purse At Delaware

By the Associated Press

Delaware Park, Stanton, Del., June 5.—Displaying a keen fancy for the sloppy going, Dixiana Stable's Just Enuf raced to a 2½ length triumph in the featured Lewes claiming purse here today.

The Lewes was the sixth event of a progra mstaged over a track fetlock deep in mud and witnessed by a generous crowd of 6,000 which turned out despite a persistent rain and raw, uncomfortable wind.

The Lewes brought out a field of six and chasing the Dixiana colorbearer under the wire was J. H. Mannerheimer's Impenetrable. The colt was hardly a match for the winner, but was easily second best and headed J. H. Watter's Alpine Lad three lengths for the place. Cathode was a distant fourth.

Hilton Dabson was aboard Just Enuf and he rode a winning race from flag-fall to wire. Just Enuf sprinted to the front immediately, shook off a mild challenge from Alpine Lad midway on the turn. Another from Impenetrable at the eighth pole, and was coasting easily at the finish.

Alpine Lad was the favorite and the winner was second choice. The Dixiana gelding paid $8.30 and negotiated the six panels through the sloppy going in 1:16 2-5.

Md. Democrats Horse Show Set Sunday at Griffith Farms

Long List of District, Maryland, Virginia Exhibitors to Show; Course Is 'Foolproof'

With accent on outside course, the Young Democrats of Southern Maryland will hold a horse show Sunday at Griffith Farms, near Forrestville, Md., that is expected to attract a long list of District, Maryland and Virginia exhibitors.

Only complaint reverberating from last year's show, sponsored by approximately the same committee at Suitland, was that the outside course was composed of stiff, put-up-to-stay crossbars that occasionally unnerved feminine riders or brought about displeasure on the part of owners who disliked seeing their mounts' legs hurt if they banged into a rail.

As a result, the Young Democrats have erected a well-nigh foolproof course for their hunter classes, including working hunters, green hunters, ladies' hunters, and two events in the ring, for road backs and hunter hacks.

Highest point winner during the afternoon, in both conformation and jumper events, will be awarded the Elmer Pumphrey Memorial Trophy, a challenge cup of considerable proportions that is the ultimate goal of most of the vicinity's big stable-owners.

Ponies Prominent

Ponies, too, hold a prominent spot on the card, with two classes under saddle, and four over fences, leading up to the coveted pony championship.

Among those who have indicated that they will show are Woody Hartman, with Graystone; Ralph P. Counselman, with Way and Cateer; Charles Fletcher, with Nanette; Eddie Talbert, with Good Frjday and Crusoe; Lisbeth Stieg, with Hi-Ho; Jackie Warren, with David; Mrs. Lee Counselman, with Kristi; U. S. Randle, with his newly acquired Troop, Gee Ray Bee and Randle's Shadow; Mrs. N. H. McDowell, with Dunstar; Mr. and Mrs. Donald Bradley, with Best Time; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bryant, with Red Water and Red Haste; T. H. Welsh, with Hi-Boy; H. O. Welsh, with Elzora; Marrian Curran's St. Patrick and Need Moor, and many other widely known local owners.

Silver Spring Purse Taken by Clay Hill at Charles Town

Palumbo Up On Winner; Tantrum 2d

Connamista Runs Third; Short-Priced Favorite Scores By 3½ Lengths

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 5.—Clay Hill, a son of Mud, found the heavy, gooey track to his liking today and carried the colors of Capt. Ewart Johnston to victory in the Silver Spring Purse, featuring the program. Jockey Sammy Palumbo had the mount and rode a confident race, nursing the half-brother of Royal Business along in the early stages and then sending him to the front to draw out through the stretch run.

J. J. Maddox's Tantrum was second after setting most of the pace and was beaten 3½ lengths. Three lengths farther back came J. B. Key's Connamista to be third in the vest pocket field of five, going 6½ furlongs.

Clay Hill operated in the role of a heavily played favorite and paid $4.40. His time was 1:25, 6 seconds over the track record for the distance held by Here Goes. The running surface was deep. The sun shone intermittently during the afternoon. One of the smallest crowds of the meeting saw the action.

Eversole, who lost his apprenticeship yesterday, rode Dashing Doe to a long-shot victory in the second race. The mare upset the talent to win by four lengths, and she paid $21.80. Those who coupled Dashing Joe with Dona Montez collected $87.60. Dona Montez won by five lengths, with Canrock second and Wintona third.

Jockey Danny Scocca came through with another of his good rides to win the fourth race with Sir Broadside, a $31.40 shot.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLAY HILL, $4.40, $2.60, $2.40; TANTRUM, $2.80, $2.60; CONNAMISTA, $2.40.

CLAY HILL, steadied while closest to TANTRUM'S early pace, took command when asked and drew out to win easily. TANTRUM set a good early pace and closed willingly, but was no match for the winner. CONNAMISTA was vigorously handled throughout and weakened in the final stages.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $500. For 3-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 5:24. Off at 5:25. Winner, C. O. Ferguson's b. h. KINGOO took command in the opening furlong, drew clear and was not seriously menaced at any stage. BREEZING ALONG lacked early speed, improved his position gradually and closed with good energy. BAD DREAMS went evenly and was not a serious factor. PETSAMO was always far back.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $500. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 5:53. Off at 5:53½. Winner, Galt Davis' ch. g. Selections at Charles Town

Dear Al:

There was so much water on the track that the second race was delayed 15 minutes while a submarine sank a freighter at the three-eights pole. Jockey L. Eversole has graduated from the apprentice ranks. His victory on Marandan last Wednesday was his fortieth. Eversole rode his first winner in Florida in 1939 but was away from the saddle for a year. With good apprentices few and far between here now, Pete Peterson, who handles the book for Jockey Willie Kelly, has taken over the engagements for Apprentice D. J. Driscoll. Jockey Buddy Root had to take the day off yesterday on account of mud-in-eye trouble. Alan Clarke was a visitor. He says the colt Walter Haight has a sore leg as the result of bucking recently and will not start for another week. The sun came out after the fourth race and he hadn't been around for so long that one of the track detectives asked him for a badge. Fred Burton, the racing secretary, made a bold bid in the local sartorial parade, wearing a light blue suit, cream sweater, white belt and gray hat yesterday. I had on my mud shoes, Clymene goes a mile and a sixteenth today. She has all the earmarks of a winner. If she fails, I'm going to wear a bullet-proof vest tomorrow. Looks like Whirlaway will whirl again tomorrow. I'd like to claim him and bring him here for the handicaps. But he might run out at the turns. That middle mule in the team pulling the float between races looks at the odds board every time he passes. Maybe he's touting the other two mules. They might be betting oats at that. Today's feature is a 4½ furlong sprint. Despite the prospect of a tough track it should provide a battle with Hi-Blaze the probable favorite. Jockey Palumbo gets booed if he loses and booed if he wins. He still is the riding champ around here, however. See you on the rail.—BILL.

First race—MOWMET has done everything asked here and seems ready to add another set of brackets in this field. PETES GOLD is a fair sort and should do the No. 1 chasing. SUN MAKER for the minor award.

Second race — CHIEF HOLLIS will have Haber in the saddle and this combination is a good one. The plater carries top weight but I'm going to string along. QUICK VINE awoke recently and is dangerous. MIKE'S GRACE to take care of the others.

Third race—BOB JUNIOR will like the rough track and gets my call if taken off the reserve list. SILVER BEAM, another doubtful starter will be right there if sent postward. Of the eligibles, I prefer ROMNEY ROYAL.

Fourth race—PUSHKIN had poor racing luck last out. With clear sailing this could be the right spot. CLOCKS is fairly consistent and belongs close. CHIEF CHEROKEE is suited at this route and may surprise.

Fifth race—I'm giving SCHLEY AL another chance. This one was in close quarters last out. BROOMORIA has been knocking at the door and will be a threat. GOANTELL for the show end.

Sixth race—HI-BLAZE gets the outside post and should keep out of trouble and is the class of this field. Mud moves PANDORAMINT up but this one is better suited at a longer route. HIGH BUD for the show end.

Seventh race—CLYMENE demonstrated her fitness last out when she was beaten a neck. This is her route and we're going to be right in there pitching. BLUE CYCLONE and SUN SWEEP loom as the ones to beat.

Eighth race — OLIVILO breaks close to the rail and may lead all the way in the day's finale. GOODWINE and GOLDEN MAYNE to fill out the money bracket.

Best bet—Mowmet.

Credit Curb Needed, D. C. Bankers Told

Federal Reserve Aide Says Step Would Halt Competition With Arms Program

By S. Oliver Goodman,
Post Financial Editor.

Hot Springs, Va., June 5.—The need for credit regulation to curb civilian competition with the Government for defense materials and man power was emphasized today by E. A. Goldenweiser, Federal Reserve Board statistician.

Goldenweiser

Addressing the annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, Mr. Goldenweiser asserted that selective controls are now undue expansion to prevent undue evpansion of installment credit.

Earlier, the 250 Washington bankers and their guests heard A. M. McLachlen, retiring president of the association, vigorously assail "quarreling by selfish elements . . . which have used the emergency as a means of serving their own greed at the expense of their fellowmen and the good of our country."

Sees Too Much Toleration

Mr. McLachlen pointed out that in 1940 a total of 2,508 strikes involving 576,988 workers caused 6,700,872 man-days of idleness "during a period of great stress and danger."

"Those who profess to know tell us," said Mr. McLachlen, "that such labor disturbances are unimportant and have had little effect on the defense program. A general attitude of extreme tolerance seems to dictate the actions of our administrators.

"To the layman mediation seems all on one side and settlements seem to be brought about by requiring the employer to meet all the demands made on him with little or no concern on the part of the employes.

"Such behavior and methods and our growing peril are the background of the recent proclamation of a state of unlimited emergency by the President."

Must Help Defense

Mr. Goldenweiser also said that if private banking institutions are to be preserved they must "serve the common purpose, which at present is an effective defense effort."

"Later, a transition to post-defense existence with as little painful readjustment as possible," must be undertaken, he added.

"Bankers must energetically seek out the business of financing contractors engaged in defense effort wherever it may be done with the lowest rate of return consistent with the nature of the business.

"Secondly, banks must be a supplementary reservoir of funds to the Treasury, available when needed. They must not speculate in the credit of the Government. When they buy United States Government securities, short or long term, they must carry them through to maturity and not dump them at the first sign of alarm. Banks will never become insolvent through depreciation of Government securities. Temporary indebtedness to the Federal Reserve Bank is preferable to the dumping of Government securities by banks.

"Third, banks will find more opportunities for private nondefense loans than in recent years. Service to communities should continue to be their slogan, and they should not be carried away by speculative enterprises stimulated by the defense boom."

He concluded, "If banks accept these principles, they will do their bit. Inflation will not only hinder defense effort but greatly intensify the difficulties of post-defense effort. Inflation is the last resort of impotent nations—not for us."

Employe Reservoir Urged

Reviewing the past 12 months, Mr. McLachlen cited the steps taken by Washington banks to meet the city's rapid population growth. He touched on the likelihood of an acute shortage of bank employes due to the draft and the syhoning of skilled office workers to Government service. He recommended that the bankers take steps to provide a reserve of new employes prior to their actual need.

D. C. banks up to May 1, he said, had made 66 loans totaling $2,232,260 to finance the production of defense supplies despite the fact that Washington is not an industrial city. Additional loan commitments for defense purposes totaling $2,298,000 were outstanding on May 1, he pointed out.

Mr. McLachlen reported that Washington banks sold $4,818,060 in defense bonds at maturity to 3,717 individuals during the first month (May) that the securities were on sale.

Continuing to review the past calendar year, he stated that 20 reporting member banks on December 31 had 1,944 employes and officers as compared with 1,887 at the end of the previous year. Pay rolls totaled $3,815,327 for 1940, against $3,652,958 in 1939.

Interest disbursed in 1940 to depositors aggregated $1,602,163 and dividends paid to stockholders were $1,343,740. This compared, respectively, with $1,586,105 and $1,315,306 in the previous year.

Most of today's session was devoted to reports, the naming of committees and nominations. The bankers played golf in the afternoon and attended the president's reception tonight.

The sessions will continue tomorrow.

Baby Blonds Bought, Sold And Courted

By the Associated Press

New York, June 5.—Under the optimistic slogan, "There'll Always Be a Wall Street," the Bawl Street Journal will make its annual appearance tomorrow.

This is the satirical publication with which the Bond Club of New York has, each June since 1919, shocked the financial district. Brokers, bankers, and customers get slightly hysterical when they read, in what they think at first glance is a certain well known morning financial paper, such ads as:

WHY DON'T YOU
THE CHASE NATIONAL BANK

BABY BLONDS
COURTED

Or an investment house proclaiming:

We Announce the Removal of Our Offices to the Third Telephone Booth on the Righthand Side, United States Government Post Office Station "C."

Or the illustrations, such as:

A gasoline pump on the southeast corner of Broad and Wall and one J. P. Morgan partner saying to another J. P. Morgan partner: "It's the only paying part of the whole business."

The news stories include:

Washington—By a decision of 7 to 1 straight, 6 to 2 for show and 5 to 3 for place, the Supreme Court today finally reversed the laws of nature and restored the Tacoma Narrows Bridge which supposedly fell into Puget Sound last November.

The opinion, written by Mr. Justice Frankfurter, called the collapse of the giant new span "unconstitutional, illegal, impudent and even impossible," and ordered traffic to be resumed at once on this important arterial link.

Raleigh—After waiting for six months for a response to its application for an Army contract, the Cannon Mills Co. yesterday received a $1,000,000 award for cannon.

Or:

Grass fires which threatened some of the most prominent Wall Street landmarks early this morning were reported under control tonight.

U. S. Banks Extend Standstill Pact On German Loans

New York, June 5 (AP).—Renewal for one year from May 31 of the standstill agreement covering $31,192,000 in credits extended by American banks to German institutions has been announced by Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the American committee for short term creditors of Germany.

As of April 15 the American banks' holding of German standstill obligations of $31,192,000 represented a reduction from a year ago of $9,545,000. Since the standstill agreement was made in 1931 the total has been reduced by $434,000,000.

Northern Pacific Orders 2,200 Freight Cars

New York, June 5 (AP).—The Northern Pacific Railway Co. announced today it had ordered 2,200 freight cars at a price of about $6,900,000. The orders were distributed as follows: American Car & Foundry Co., St. Louis Plant, 1,350 Steel Box Cars and 200 Ballast Cars; Pullman-Standard Car & Manufacturing Co., Michigan City, Ind., 500 cars; Northern Pacific Shops, Laurel, Mont., 150 box cars.

U. S. Power Plants Aid Canadian Units

Boston, June 5 (AP).—Satisfactory operations of United States subsidiaries of International Hydro-Electric System somewhat offset difficulties encountered by Canadian subsidiaries of the system, President Irwin L. Moore said at the annual meeting of shareholders.

He said watersheds of the New England Power Association and Hudson River power were at their lowest level for many years—28 years in the case of the former and 40 in the case of the latter.

The number of directors was increased from seven to ten with the addition of Ira L. Letts, Louis A. St. Laurent and Lawrence G. Tighe.

Defense Work Fast Absorbing Auto Industry

By the Associated Press

Detroit, June 5.—Alvan Macauley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers Association, told the car makers at their annual meeting today that the motorcar industry "is at the transition point where makeready of its first large defense undertakings ends and where volume production begins."

Approaching, he said, is the time when defense production will be on a par with and ultimately ahead of automotive production.

Macauley told the automobile makers than more than 500,000,000 pounds of strategic and critical metals will be made available to defense production through the use of alternate materials in cars. The figures, he said, are based upon a projected reduction of passenger car output for the 1942 model season to a maximum of 3,460,000 units.

Involved in the materials savings, Macauley added, is the practical elimination in passenger car and truck construction of virgin aluminum, zinc and tungsten.

Big Hunt for Substitutes

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 5 (AP).—The possibility that war needs will deprive the automobile industry of all zinc supplies has engineers working day and night to find substitutes, Thomas A. Bissell told the Society of Automotive Engineers today.

Bissell technical editor of the S. A. E. Journal, estimated next year's cars would contain 50 per cent less zinc than this year's models and said means already have been found to substitute for 80 per cent of zinc parts.

Some of these substitutes, he added, will involve higher costs because of extra machine tooling required for alternate materials.

Shortages in other strategic materials will force further substitution, Bissell said. He foresaw such expedients as plastic instead of chromium trimming, cast-iron pistons instead of aluminum, and a steel alloy for nickel.

Dr. Robert E. Wilson, of the Office of Production Management, told the delegates last night that reducing civilian use of gasoline and fuel oil "is the only way in which I can see any solution to this problem" of a shortage of transportation facilities for crude oil.

Week's Output Heavier

Detroit, June 5 (AP).—The automobile industry's assembly plants will turn out 128,283 cars and trucks this week, according to the trade publication, Automotive News. This compares with 103,034 assembled last week and 97,556 this week a year ago, the survey says.

The trade paper places General Motors output this week at 55,183, compared with last week's holiday curtailed production of 44,143 units; Chrysler assemblies at 29,616 this week, against 3,649 last week, and Ford completions at 25,090, against 20,486.

Studebaker continued to lead the other manufacturers, the survey said, followed by Nash, Hudson, Packard and Willys, in that order.

Bantam Gets Army Order

Butler, Pa., June 5 (AP).—The American Bantam Car Co. announced today that receipt of an $864,141 contract from the War Department for reconnnaissance trucks has boosted its backlog of orders to an unprecedented figure of approximately $3,000,000.

President Francis H. Fenn said the largest orders call for 1,200 reconnaissance trucks and parts, in addition to "a substantial quantity of British war orders for which the company is now engaged in a tooling program, and on which production will start in September." He added that the company will have a profit this year "for the first time since 1936."

'Blitz Buggies' Ordered

Detroit, June 5 (AP).—The Ford Motor Co., it was learned today, has received an order for 300 small Army scout cars for use in the Dutch East Indies. Company officials said the cars, commonly known as "blitz buggies," would cost approximately $300,000 and could be produced at the rate of 25 a day.

Week's Bank Clearings Soar Despite Holiday

New York, June 5 (AP).—Bank clearings for the holiday-shortened week ended June 4 exceeded the total for the preceding six-day week and the rate of gain compared with the corresponding period of the previous year was the greatest recorded in years, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Transactions for 23 leading cities for the latest period were $6,886,250,000 or 43.7 per cent more than the $4,791,907,000 for the similar five-day week in 1940, and 512,872,000 above the total for the may 28 full week.

Stock Advance Trimmed in Late Trading; Turnover Heaviest in About a Month

New York, June 5.—For the fourth straight session stocks advanced on average in today's market with volume expanding to the best level in about a month. While the war news was far from optimistic, some of the day's bidding was attributed to a little more inflationary thinking based on mounting governmental expenditures, rising prices and wages. In addition, sentiment was buoyed by yesterday's action of the House Ways and Means Committee in tentatively shelving the Treasury's excess profits tax proposals.

Handicaps persisted, however, in cloudier war bulletins and lack of conclusions regarding the effect of spreading administration controls in many industries.

The list got off to a hesitant start but buyers began to step in and gains of fractions to a point were soon well distributed. A few "blue chips" shot up as much as 3. Activity broadened for a while on the upturn slackened after mid-day and top quotations were well trimmed at the close. Minus signs also were plentiful.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks retained a net advance of .1 of a point at 40.3. Transfers of 604,550 shares compared with 426,035 yesterday and were the largest since May 6.

Among the day's market considerations was the apparent agreement of the principal steel companies to expand annual output by 10,000,000 tons with the aid of Government financing; a more than seasonal drop in last week's freight loadings; reports of bigger pay raise demands by railway workers, and a sharp upturn in bank clearings.

U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet and Republic were up a shade but Bethlehem slipped. New highs for the year were recorded for Consolidated Aircraft, Lehigh Valley Coal preferred, U. S. Distributing preferred, Savage Arms and Continental Baking "A" and preferred.

American Telephone was up ¼ despite word the company would cut long distance tolls by some $14,000,000 annually.

Prominent on the upside were Du Pont, General Electric, J. I. Case, Philip Morris, International Nickel, Standard Oil (NJ), Consolidated Edison, Standard Gas preferreds, Union Pacific, American Sugar Refining and Holley Sugar.

Fajardo Sugar and South Porto Rico Sugar dipped to new 1941 lows as the status of some of the island producers was confused by new Porto Rican production and income tax laws. Other losers were Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Western Union, Pennsylvania, Great Northern and United Aircraft.

In the Curb, improvement was shown by Electric Bond & Share, Bell Aircraft, American Gas, Pantepec and Phoenix Securities. Turnover here was around 122,000 shares versus 85,000 Wednesday.

Moderate recessions ruled in most sections of the bond market today although resistance was shown by a sizable number of individual issues, notably rails and industrials.

Trading fell back to the low levels of last week at $5,372,600, par value, compared with $6,100,400 on Wednesday. The largest loss in the Associated Press index was .2 of a point in the rails. The foreign group moved up an equal amount largely as a result of improvement in some Latin-American issues.

Backing up mostly for fractional losses were, among others, Western Maryland 4s at 91¼, Southern Railway 4s at 61¼, New York Central 5s at 63½, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s at 29, Commercial Mackay income 4s at 43¼ and International Mercantile Marine 6s at 83⅜.

United States Governments followed a narrow and uneven course on both the Stock Exchange and over the counter. There was some switching in longer term issues and the new 15-17-year taxable 2½s at one time got a new high at 103 8/32 bid.

Commodities Advance to 4-Year Highs

By the Associated Press

Key industrial raw materials tilted a shade upward in commodity futures markets yesterday, in extension of the recent upswing which carried staples generally, and foods in particular, to the highest levels in four years or longer.

The Associated Press index of 35 weighted wholesale cash commodity prices, with 1926 as 100, advanced to 85.30, the highest since 1937, and compared with 85.27 Wednesday.

Closing with small gains were copper, lead, tin and rubber. Also advanced were wool tops, silk, coffee and sugar for forward delivery. Cocoa, hides and cottonseed oil dipped a bit.

Wheat futures at Chicago, after early advances, retreated and closed ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel lower as reports Hitler had a peace offer for England confused speculative sentiment. Corn lost ¼ to ½ cent a bushel. Cotton also ended under water, with final values 20 to 25 cents a bale below Wednesday's close.

In Chicago hogs dipped 10 to 15 cents. Yearlings and light steers were strong to 25 cents higher and spring lambs, in active demand, advanced as high as 25 cents.

"The Aldrich Family," which has had such success on the radio on its own, started out as just a dramatic insert on Kate Smith's Variety Hour. Comedians Abbott and Costello, now so well known in both radio and the movies, are another example of the popularity which accrues from appearances on Kate's radio show.

And so this is to announce that tonight over WJSV at 7 p. m., Kate is to introduce a new dramatic series which, by all the signs, should be equally as successful. It's to be dramatizations of the Broadway stage hit, "Claudia," from the stories by Rose Franken which have appeared in Cosmopolitan and Redbook magazines on the progress of a slightly wacky modern marriage. Miss Franken is to do the adaptations for radio. The major roles will be taken by Patricia Ryan, who's been acting on C. B. S. shows ever since she was 7—she's all of 19 now—and Richard Kollmar of the Broadway stage.

And, speaking of infinite variety shows, Ilka Chase, of stage and radio, is to introduce a superior type of one over WJSV and the Columbia network at 9:30 tonight. It's to be called "Penthouse Party" and will have guests from the stage and musical worlds each week taking part in merry machinations. Guests tonight are Yvette, the dulcet singer; Judith Anderson, the actress, and Rubinoff, the violinist. There'll be Paul Baron's Orchestra, too.

The Post Radio Highlights

6:30, WWDC—William M. Stuart: The Washington Philatelist.
7, WJSV—"Claudia," Rose Franken's play, takes to the Kate Smith air.
7:30, WWDC—Swap: New air audience participation trick with "swapper" and "swappee."
7:30, WRC—Information Please: Sally Benson and Oscar Levant.
9:30, WJSV—Premiere: Penthouse Party. This is the new Ilka Chase show, modeled on her vastly successful Luncheons at the Waldorf. Judith Anderson and Rubinoff are the guests.
9:30, WRC—United China Relief: Tyrone Power, Claudette Colbert, Jon Garfield, Ronald Colman, Lionel Barrymore and Abbott and Costello.
10, WJSV and WRC—Wendell Willkie: "Unity."
10, WMAL—Ten-round heavyweight bout: Lou Nova vs. Jim Robinson.
10, WOL—William Allen White speaks for Bundles for Britain in Emporia.

THE HECHT CO. . . . takes a tip from "ROBERT BENCHLEY" and THE SATURDAY EVENING POST on "How to treat Father on Father's Day"

F STREET AT 7th NATIONAL 5100

See ROBERT BENCHLEY in his Father's Day short, "The Forgotten Man," presented by Paramount Pictures at the Metropolitan and Ambassador Theaters starting Friday, June 13th.

NOW it's YOUR turn to give. For many, many years Dad has been dishing out with a free will . . . for those music lessons that didn't pan out so well . . . for that bicycle when you were in your teens . . . for your education . . . and for many other things.

BUT Dad is kind of funny about receiving gifts. You have to be mighty careful what you give. His life is a practical one . . . in business . . . in money matters . . . in almost everything. That's why your gift should also be on the practical side.

YOU'LL find hundreds of gifts at The Hecht Co. to please the "Governor." Come in this afternoon or Saturday. Look over the ones on this page. Then glance below at the others we've mentioned.

BINOCULARS . . . books . . . brushes . . . cameras . . . cards and chips . . . lounging chairs . . . clocks . . . cocktail sets . . . desk sets . . . fountain pens . . . pencils . . . hats . . . handkerchiefs . . . lamps . . . lighters . . . portable or bedroom radios . . . electric shavers . . . records . . . stationery . . . tie racks . . . typewriters . . . wallets . . . watches.
